PLATFORM AT THE PARK CAVED IN; DOZENS IN WRECK, SEVERAL HURT

A miniature city hall accident occurred at Queen's Park yesterday, when part of the platform caved in, dropping two dozen people to the earth. One lady had her arm broken, and others were badly bruised.

When the fire alarm was sounded for the veteran firemen, the great crowd on the platform surged to the rear. Part of the platform projects out under the framework that is used at fair time by aerial performers, and is not supposed to be used by spectators. The latter crowded on to it, however, and it suddenly gave way.

There was great excitement for a moment, and it took some time to get the people who had dropped to earth so suddenly disentangled from one another. Several doctors, who were in the ring, were hurried to the spot.

Mrs. Arscott, of 154 Ann street, had an arm broken, just above the wrist. Dr. W. J. Stevenson attended her, and had her removed to her home in a cab.

Mrs. George Hicks, of 523 Piccadilly street, was painfully bruised, and suffered from shock.

Flossa, the little daughter of Dr. Sweet, of Exeter, had her ankle painfully injured, and was taken to the home of the relatives whom she is visiting here in a cab.

The people on the stands did not notice the accident.

Rain Did Not Frighten Crowds From Queen's Park

Remained Throughout Evening and Witnessed a Highly-Amusing Programme.

In spite of the somewhat threatening weather, thousands of people were at Queen's Park to see the evening performance. The grandstand, as in the afternoon, was jammed to the roof, and the lawn was dotted with carriages and handsome turnouts. The rain came on shortly after eight, but the crowd never left the grounds. They were willing to take a chance. The clouds did roll by, and the guests were well repaid for waiting. The military tattoo created unbounded enthusiasm. The American bands were stationed at the south end of the track, and the Canadian bands at the north. When the trumpeter of the Seventh, C. J. Ward, had sounded first post, two buglers from the First Illinois Regiment, sounded the retreat, and the First Illinois Band, under the leadership of Bandmaster J. Hawstrawer, marched past, playing "Marching Through Georgia." It created great enthusiasm, the cheering being prolonged after the band had taken its position on the stand.

Next came the Forty-eighth Highlanders, who played their regimental march, "Highland Laddie." The braw Scotchmen are great favorites in this city, and added to their reputation on this occasion. As they reached the stand, the Chicago band caught up the strain, and the two bands played the number through in unison.

The Seventh Regiment followed next, playing the "British Grenadiers." Drum Major Cockburn created much enthusiasm and his work has been lauded everywhere. After the Seventh the pipers of the Forty-eighth Highlanders marched past. They also played "Highland Laddie." The St. Thomas Band, under Bandmaster Billings, was next in line. It played its regimental march, "The Twenty-fifth Regiment," and was also enthusiastically received. After this band came Dunn's Sarnia band, and they were also well received. The Twenty-sixth Regiment Band followed, and they received a great welcome from the stands. The I. O. F. trumpeters of Toronto were next, and the last position was taken by the Cleveland Band, who marched past playing the American National Hymn "America." After that the Canadian massed bands, under the leadership of Bandmaster Slatter, rendered the following programme: "The Maple Leaf," "Jolly London Old Boys," "Star Spangled Banner," "Semper Fideles," "Rule Britannia," "Home, Sweet Home," "Nearer, My God to Thee."

The American bands under the leadership of Bandmaster J. Hawstawser, rendered American airs in grand form. The First Regiment rendered a number that created great enthusiasm, and they responded with "Yankee Doodle" as an encore. The bands all did well, and despite the fact that rain was falling, not a person left the ground.

After the military tattoo was put on, came the Drummer Specialty. And it certainly was all of that. This unique performance was worth all the money, and all the star performances of this star bunch of burlesquers were faded before last evening's show. The first number was a quadrille with three sets dancing. The garbs were of ancient vintage, and they would have made Solomon in all his glory look very cheap. They had the "fiddlers" three, and as they sawed off melodies of an ancient date, the nimble-footed "drummers" danced right merrily. The grandstand was convulsed with laughter. Did the boys work Well, you should have seen Tom Gillean and Billy Ward. Billy, as grandma was fine, and "her" partner, the Dutchman, was great. J. Harkness, as the fat lady, with "her" Hebrew partner, was the admired of 10,000. It was a lovely show. After two spasms of the quadrille, the Seventh Band played a cake walk. This was also good. Movements that the greatest "coon" danseuse in the country never dreamed of were given with the greatest ease and abandon, and all the various touches that make a cake walk interesting were certainly not lacking. Fred Fisher was away to the good in this department. His yellow bonnet, etc., made a lasting impression on the on-lookers, and Fred was voted the best on the line. The feature was when the fat lady sat on her Jewish partner. This was about the best the travelers have put on yet. The couples were A. Garthwaite and E. Crawford, B. Moorehouse and J. Connor, Fred Fisher and Jack Dyer, W. Banghart and D. Ferguson, A. Gunther and L. Banghart, Billy Ward and Tom Gillean, Joe Harkness and Joe Leech, A. Thompson and Walter Pierson, George Weinge and Frank Harris, W. B. McPetrie and R. Deyo, H. Rennie and Jack Wood, Tony Grant and Ab. Moran, Bert Lind and A. T. Edwards, F. Smith and W. C. Webster, Lorne Rapley and George Banghart, and Bert Fowler and J. Jones. Mr. C. W. McGuire was chairman of the committee, and Fred Floyd was master of ceremonies. Ensign's orchestra "fiddled" for the occasion.

Mr. Rowan also gave an exhibition Irish jig. The I. O. F. drummers gave an exhibition that was worthy of note. It was a sort of drum drill. In one movement the drummers would pace in pairs and in perfect time exchange drumsticks. One drummer, of course, would carry the "tune," if it might be so described.

The fancy drill competition brought out three drill teams. The first to go through their paces was the I. O. F. Lodge, the First Royal Foresters, of Toronto. They executed several very intricate movements, and received a percentage of 62. The next was the W. O. W., Pine Grove Lodge, East London.

The company was smaller than the Foresters and was better controlled. They worked with almost machine like precision and accuracy. Their percentage was 82.

The last team was another W. O. W. lodge from Niagara Falls. It was Jubilee, No. 103. This team proved to be the best team in the competition. They worked like machines and made few mistakes. They executed more intricate movements than the other teams and did them somewhat neater and cleaner. They made a percentage of 87. Thus the winners were: Niagara Falls, W. O. W., first; London East, W. O. W., second; Royal Foresters, Toronto, third. The judges were Major Laybourne, A. E. Sommerville and Dr. Becher.

Only three entries faced the judges in the gentleman's turnout. Premier honors in this went to a fine brown horse, 4 years old, owned by Walter Blackburn, and handled by George Harding. The horse was away the best of the three. The second prize went to a small mare, owned by W. K. Darch. She was inferior to the third prize horse in many respects, but the turnout was better, and the horse was better behaved and got the second prize. The third prize went to A. McLurg, with a fine, big, bay mare. The judges were Donald Ferguson, L. Banghart and Dr. Hugh Stevenson.

The Veteran Firemen gave an exhibition drill last evening also, and created much enthusiasm. By this time the crowd had thinned out, as a thunderstorm was imminent, and when the last award had been made there was a great scurry to get the cars.

To Dr. Hugh Stevenson belongs much of the credit for last night's programme. The military tattoo was under his supervision and was splendidly handled.
