"HUMORESQUE," UNDOUBTEDLY BEST PHOTOPLAY OF THE YEAR, NOW SHOWING AT THE GRAND.

Nothing can be said in cold print about "Humoresque," and do the picture justice. It is one of those productions that one has to see in order to appreciate. Once you have seen it, you will agree, that it is one of the really big pictures of the year and the most enjoyable you've had the pleasure of viewing in quite some time. It's a great big heart-appealing drama of human lives that just has to get under one's skin. Fannie Hurst wrot the story from which "Humoresque" was adapted. She is the highest paid short-story writer in the United States. "Humoresque" appeared as a serial story in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Over 5,000,000 people have read the story and are just as keen to view the screen version of this famous drama. Few pictures shown in London in the past year can compare with "Humoresque" and the capacity audiences in attendance daily leave the theatre with that self-satisfied air of having seen a photoplay, that really made them weep and then rejoice, with its keen pathos and clever crisp comedy, "Humoresque" should break all records for attendance at the Grand this week.

When A. D. Jordan promised to outdo his previous effort in "Behold My Wife," in the form of prologues, he said something, for in his present offering, "Yesterday and Today," which precedes the screening of the big feature, he has really attained the utmost in so-called prologues, and the work of the local talent surpasses in some degree the work of more seasoned and professional stars seen here in high class road attractions. The singing of Mrs. Schofield and Carmen Learn are most commendable, and the rendering of "Humoresque" on the violin by Master Mendle bring forth a round of appreciative applause at every performance. A. D. Jordan has this week outdone any previous effort in the matter of amateur theatricals and puts his present company of stars in the class of professionals.

NO SPECIAL NEW YEAR'S EVE PERFORMANCE AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Manager Minhinnick of The Grand has previously announced a special New Year's eve show commencing at eleven o'clock, without knowledge of the staging of the big annual T. M. A. performance, which will be held at Loew's Theatre, Friday night at 11 p. m. A delegation from the T. M. A. awaited upon Manager Minhinnick yesterday and asked that he cancel his show so as not to interfere with the arrangements. The regular evening performance, however, will be seen at the Grand at the usual hour, 7:30, and the special New Year's eve show at the Grand will be cancelled to make way for the T. M. A.

CLIFFORD DEVEREUX AND HIS COMPANY AT THE GRAND ALL NEXT WEEK.

Seldom has such a talented array of actors and actresses been gathered together in one theatrical organization as has been done in the case of Clifford Devereux and his company which has been secured for a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House, commencing Jan. 3.

The company is headed by that popular star Clifford Devereux himself, and he is supported by his charming leading lady, Miss Zinita Graf. During the engagement of the company here they will present "The School for Scandal," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, which is one of the most delightful plays ever produced. It was first staged at Drury Lane Theatre, London, in 1777, and the fact that it has defied the changes of time and is still popular, is the most convincing proof of its qualities.

The play shows the disastrous results of that insidious habit of gossiping. Through scandalous stories concocted among the members of high society, the home of Sir Peter and Lady Teazle is almost wrecked. Through inability to arrive at the truth in spreading these stories a gross wrong is done one man, while another to whom the wrong is actually attributed, almost goes scathless. And it is only because Sir Oliver Surface desires to test for himself the true nature of his nephews instead of taking society's verdict for granted, that he finds out the real truth about the two boys and narrowly escapes placing his fortune in the wrong hands. The scandal habit also affects a pair of lovers and only by a narrow touch does it miss separating them. All these characters and situations arise in "The School for Scandal," which is one of the greatest arguments against the gossip habit ever propounded. Its lessons are forceful and convincing while it issues a warning against accepting the popular summing up of a man's character.

The story is so worked out that these features drop into their right places with the right precision, and while these tremendous lessons are being propounded the audience is held keenly interested in the development of the play, so that the influence of the lessons are being subconsciously received.

"The School for Scandal" is one of the most entertaining plays ever written, and nobody should miss seeing it when it is produced here by the Devereux Company. Its comedy is brilliant; its dramatic touches are powerful, and its plot is consistent. Sheridan leads his characters through a maze of situations, but he sorts them out in the last act to the satisfaction of everybody concerned. Sheridan builded well when he penned this immortal play, and seeing it produced by the Devereux Company will bring home the ancient reflection that human nature is pretty much the same in all countries and centuries. It is really enjoyable from beginning to end, and in an age such as this, when there is a demand for sensational and hectic plays, and a craze for the newest dance and the most novel stage effects, Mr. Devereux's production of "The School for Scandal" will be a refreshing treat for all theatregoers and lovers of the finest in dramatic art. Seats on sale tomorrow, 9 a.m.

"The funniest play in the universe" is the way Majestic patrons describe "Cappy Ricks," that screamingly funny comedy, which is drawing capacity audiences this week to the Majestic Theatre. Every line is a laugh and from the time the curtain rises until the fall, it is one long lingering laugh. James Swift is seen in one of the best roles he has yet enacted, that of Cappy Ricks, a rich old steamship owner. Miss Pates is his charming little daughter Florence, and George V. Dill is the aspirant for her hand and heart, and the three combine in making "Cappy Ricks" one of the funniest plays to be seen in London in the past year back. Cappy Ricks has stipulated that the man who takes his daughter must have $50,000, and how one Peasley (George V. Dill), gets the money, and also proves himself a clever business head, finally making the old man toe the mark and see his way, forms the basis of all the merry-making. If you've wanted to enjoy a real laugh, this week at the Majestic will enable you not only to laugh, but to scream at the funny complications and the funny lines in Cappy Ricks. It is easily the best bit of work, the Majestic Players have offered since they introduce stock in London.

BARNUM'S SAYING STANDS
His "Sucker" Theory Exemplified in "The Jailbird."

The truth of P. T. Barnum's famous statement about "suckers," is demonstrated in pictures by "Shakespeare Clancy," the role portrayed by Douglas MacLean in his new Paramount picture, "The Jailbird," at Loew's.

Clancy puts over a "Wallingford" on the citizens of Dodson, a typical Kansas small town, but only after he has tried to get along with them and failed because of their prejudice against a young man with modern and progressive ideas. Clancy's deal takes a most unexpected turn which greatly multiplies his fortune, and gains for him the respect and admiration of the whole town, as well as the girl who will rid him of all tendencies to put over crooked deals in the future.

"The Jailbird" gives this rising young star every opportunity for increasing his already excellent reputation as one of the screen's foremost juveniles. The story, by Julien Josephson, was directed by Lloyd Ingraham. Doris May heads a splendid supporting cast.

A rollicking comedy with Buster Keaton as the chief funmaker, takes care of the comedy end of the bill. Loew's Pictorial is just as newsy as ever. An excellent bill of vaudeville balances off a tidy holiday program. Tomorrow Charles Ray comes for the remaining three days of the week in "An Old Fashioned Boy.".

LONDONERS ENTHUSIASTIC OVER GREAT FILM SPECTACLE OF EARLY INDIAN DAYS AT ALLEN.

Never in the history of films in the city of London has a picture received such enthusiastic praise from every class of person as has that sensational photo spectacle of Indian life, "The Last of the Mohicans," which is showing at the Allen today and tomorrow.

Teachers and school officials are unanimous in their praise of the historical, and educational value of the picture, the general public voice their enthusiasm for the numerous thrills, the dramatic interest and the great scenes of it; and the children, those who are the best judge of the entertaining value of a picture, cheer and applaud from the opening scene until the last foot of film. The best part of it, though is that the picture really deserves it. It is thrilling and interesting; it is one of the most vivid and picturesque photoplays that have yet been made, and no word of praise that has been uttered for it, can go far wrong in describing the stupendous breadth of it, the power, and interest it casts as a spell over the great audiences that have been attending the Allen.

The matinees have been crowded with children, for during the holidays the Allen is permitted to admit a child of any age unattended during the matinees, and you cannot imagine the fun that the youngsters get out of this picture unless you have been here in the afternoon. Cheer after cheer rings forth with each great scene, and the picture impresses on their young minds as no amount of book teaching could, some of the most stirring times of Canada's early history.

A beautiful feature of the special musical program is the overture, "Indian Pictures," played by Allen's famous concert orchestra. An exceptional Christie comedy, educational films, scenic films, and the Allen news complete the offering.
