FAMOUS FIRM IS BEING WOUND UP

Day and Martin Failed to Realize That Business Must Advertise.

Made Millions in Old Days—Fortune for Gift of a Shilling.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The famous old firm of Day & Martin, makers of liquid blacking for shoes for 155 years, probably better known throughout the world than any other British firm, is no more.

After a glorious history, piling up millions for its successive Days and Martins, the old firm ran to seed and expired. Refusal to adopt new methods, to meet competition by judicious advertising killed the business in the end.

Day & Martin figured in Dickens. Sam Weller used Day & Martin's blacking to polish the Pickwick Club boots. You can find Day & Martin also in David Copperfield. In its heyday there was not a country in the world where one could not purchase Day & Martin's goods.

RECIPE FROM SOLDIER.

Today Day & Martin is almost forgotten—a striking evidence of how quickly a great business can be ruined by neglecting to keep in touch with the public by advertising.

It was in 1770 that Mr. Martin, a surgeon-barber, was standing in the door of his shop when a soldier came along and asked for a loan. Mr. Martin, being a kindly person, responded with a shilling. In return, the soldier passed him a piece of paper on which was written a recipe for liquid shoe blacking, saying, "You can make your fortune out of that."

Mr. Martin, struck with some curiosity, thought perhaps there might be something in the scheme. He consulted his cousin, Mr. Day, who was a hairdresser in Covent Garden. The two of them tried out the soldier's recipe and it worked. They then determined to go into the manufacture of it and "Day & Martin" was born.

The firm met with enormous success. So much so that Mr. Day, when he died in 1836, left an estate of more than $2,000,000, a tremendous sum in those days. Mr. Martin also left millions. Successive Days and Martins took more millions out of the business.

Up to 20 years ago the great prosperity of the firm kept up.

SCORNED NEW METHODS.

It was the age of advertising that beat the old firm. They scorned to adopt new methods. Meanwhile fresh rivals who sprang up began to spend money shrewdly in advertising and soon Day & Martin realized that the public memory is not as long as they supposed.

Now one of its youthful rivals, a mere upstart in the blacking business, has bought all the assets and good will of Day & Martin for $100,000 and the original firm is being wound up. It does not mean the end of Day & Martin's blacking for that will still be on the market despite the fact that Day & Martin is no more.

These Are Busy Days At Sugar Refinery

The plant is being worked to full capacity to keep up with the orders coming in.

VISITING OLD HOME.

An interesting visitor to The Times-Star office this morning was Ernest Irons of Providence, R. I. Mr. Irons was born in this city and for a time worked on the Daily Telegraph. When 17 he moved to Providence. For five years he was employed on the mechanical staff of the Evening Telegraph there, and for the last 20 years he has been on the staff of the Evening Times of that city. Accompanied by his wife he has been spending the month of August with his brother, William J. Irons of West Saint John. They expect to return to Providence next week.

Germany Unfettered As To Security Pact

GOOD THINGS COMING TO THEATRES OF SAINT JOHN.

10 COMMANDMENTS PRICES AND HOURS

Imperial Theatre Preparing for Greatest Rush in History Monday

"The Ten Commandments," at the Imperial, beginning Monday, bids fair to eclipse in attendance records all previous outstanding film engagements. While special rental arrangements make it possible for the Imperial to show this wonderful film for 25c., 35c. and 50c.—same prices both afternoon and evening—this does not mean the picture is not worthy of even the $2 admissions secured in other cities. The 50c. price in this list applies to the usual reservations. There will be three shows daily, one beginning at 2:30, the others at 7.15 and 9 o'clock. Children's price in the afternoon will be 25c. downstairs and 15c. upstairs.

"The Ten Commandments' will create the same amazing interest in Saint John as it has done wherever shown. This is the first time it has been exhibited east of Montreal. In depicting the Egyptian bondage of the Children of Israel, their escape and dry-shod passage of the Red Sea, the picture presents many scenes astounding in their massiveness, reality and mechanical ingenuity. The modern section of the story is also spellbinding. The complete operatic score with which this great picture will be accompanied has been thoroughly rehersed by the Imperial's concert orchestra.

The funeral of Kenneth Freeze was held this afternoon from his parents' residence, 58 Moore street. Service was conducted by Rev. J. V. Young and interment was in Cedar Hill.
