CANADIAN AMBASSADOR ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF GATT COUNCIL

Minister for International Trade, John C. Crosbie, welcomed today the election by the contracting parties of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) of Mr. John Weekes, Canada's Ambassador to the GATT, as Council Chairman of the multilateral trade organization for the coming year. As Council Chairman, Ambassador Weekes will oversee the operations of the GATT's regular decision-making body. It is also customary GATT practice for the Chairman of Council to be named in the succeeding year as Chairman of the Contracting Parties, the designation given to GATT members when they act collectively, and the senior-most body in the GATT.

"Canadians can take pride in the election of Ambassador Weekes as Council Chairman", Minister Crosbie said. "Canada has been a leading voice within the GATT for the dismantling of trade barriers and the strengthening of the multilateral trade system throughout the organization's forty-year history. The Government's two-track approach to trade liberalization rests on a continued commitment to the GATT and the enhancement of bilateral export opportunities with the United States through the Free Trade Agreement. Canada is a trading nation. Our economic future lies in ensuring that Canadians can trade in a more open, secure, and predictable international environment", the Minister concluded.

Canada was a founding member of the GATT, which came into effect in 1948. Current membership totals 96 countries, accounting for over four-fifths of world trade.
