Tuesday, as a first warning, loading some of the rest trees, which were scred and yellow leaved, fore they were denuded of their foliage. The rse chestnut, with its stiffened frond like leaves, hibited a singular appearance, covered with that nple load of snow. The cocks were crowing and stless and gave notice of this moisture approach-g, as early as 10 a. m. on Sunday last (and during any years of observation never knew them to ake a mistake or deceive us excepting as to quality
r they crow irrespectively whether the moisture overing round or approaching is fog, rain, hail or now.) with the wind from S. W. driving the scud the N. E. and obscuring the sun except for a few inutes at intervals about mid day; at 4 p. m. the ind was strong, which brought in a dense fog; at
p. m. the wind died away, and on Monday morng, the wind was blowing a brisk gale from N. with e temperature at 42°, cold, searching, and chilling —and during that day the sun only appeared out for ne hour; at 10 p. m. there was a sprinkling of some-ing fine not distinguishable whether snow or now, but on Tuesday morning between 12 and 1
. m. snow began to fall thick and feathery, and bout 7 a. m. when it ceased, there had fallen, as tated, 6 inches on a level. Clouds with moisture often pass and repass over this locality or near it everal times before getting depressed to falling dis-ance, the cocks recognising every erratic motion.
To day is bright sunshine and mild; temperature
n sun 74deg.—Communicated.

Extract of a Despatch received by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor from Lord Stanley:

No. 247. Downing street, 17th Sept. 1845.

My Lord,—

Her Majesty's Government have attentively considered the representations contained in your Despatches, Nos. 324, and 331, of the 17th June and 2nd July, respecting the policy of granting permission to the Fisheries of the United States to fish in the Bay of Chaleurs, and other large bays of a similar character on the Coasts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, and apprehending from your statements that any such general concessions would be injurious to the interests of the British North American Provinces, we have abandoned the intention we had entertained upon the subject, and shall adhere in the strict letter of the treaties which exist between Great Britain and the United States relative to the Fisheries in North America, except in so far as they may relate to the Bay of Fundy which has been thrown open to the NorthAmerican under certain restrictions.

In announcing this decision to you, I must at the same time direct your attention to the absolute necessity of a scrupulous observance of those treaties on the part of the Colonial authorities, and to the danger which cannot fail to arise from any overstrained assumption of the power of excluding the Fishermen of the United states from the waters in which they have a right to follow their pursuits.

Halifax Times.

Boston, Oct. 16.—The Steam Ship Great Britain.—A correspondent of the New Bedford Mercury, under date of "Holmes Hole, Monday," writes as follows:

"The steamship Great Britain, Lieut. Hosken, 16 days from Liverpool for New York, with 105 passengers, put into this port this morning for coal, having lost foremast and injured her propeller. A vessel is now alongside of her with coal, and after taking in a supply she will proceed on her voyage. The Great Britain fell in to the Eastward and came up over Nantucket shoals. Her mammoth dimensions rendered her indeed the "world's wonder," and her unlooked for arrival here has produced quite an excitement in our village.

Tuesday, 14th—The steamship proceeded on her voyage at 3 o'clock this morning.

The Nantucket Inquirer, in speaking of the arrival of the steamer in the vicinity of that island, says—

That she was discovered from Siasconset at about 6 o'clock on Monday morning, inside of the Bass Rip, heading in shore, and continued to run in until she was off the head of the harbour, some six miles south of Great Point, with the town of Nantucket full in sight, when she stopped her engines, being then about half a mile from the shore, set her signal and fired two or three times for a pilot, which Capt. Obed Luce made his appearance on the beach and a boat was sent from the steamer and took him on board. Captain Luce was not a pilot, but advised Capt Hoskins to run down off Siasconset where he could obtain one. This was immediately done, and at about 9, a.m., a boat, commanded by Capt. G. W. Collin, started from Siasconset, boarding her off that place, and laid on board Capt Nathan Gibbs a pilot who was in every way competent to extricate the noble steamer from the difficulty that she had been got into, and to take her to New York, the port of her destination. She then made the best of her way out, passed Great Point, and went up the Vineyard Sound in fine style, much to the delight of thousands, who embraced this opportunity of viewing her. She was in sight from town some five or six hours.

This is the second time that captain Hoskins has been in sight of this island during the time that he has commanded a steamship across the Atlantic; once in the Great Western and now in the Great Britain. We understand from Captain Luce that Captain H. cannot tell how she got inside of the Bass Rip, but had the weather been thick, we can tell that his vessel would have been high and dry upon the shore in a very short time.

WARNING TO THOSE WHO SET THE LAWS AT DEFIANCE.

Conviction and Sentence of Boughton, the King leader of the Anti-Rent Conspirators in the county of Delaware.—The trial of the Anti Rent leader Dr. Boughton (Big Thunder) terminated on Tuesday, with a verdict of guilty. Judge Edmonds, having first granted the prisoner a few days wherein to arrange his private business, sentenced him to "confinement in the Clinton county state prison during the term of his natural life!"

The following is the sentence pronounced by the Judge:—

Smith A. Boughton.—You have been arraigned and tried on a charge of robbery, and a jury, almost of your own selection, have found you guilty of the charge.

You have had a very fair trial. The jurors were selected with great care, two weeks having been spent in subjecting their opinions to the severest scrutiny, and you have yourself afforded the best evidence that they were eminently impartial. You have been allowed to go at large and fully to prepare your defence. You have been defended by able counsel. You have been surrounded by numerous friends, and every item of evidence, which you or they deemed material to your defence, you have been allowed to lay before the jury. You have been, notwithstanding, convicted, and it now only remains for the court to passsentence upon you.

Your offence, though in form it is presented to us as robbery is in fact high treason, rebellion against your government, armed insurrection against the supremacy of the laws.

Until you came among them, the tenantry on the Manor were, in outward deportment at least, what every might have been their feelings, a quiet, orderly, law observing people, yourself suffering none of the evils of the tenures of which you complained; you came here a volunteer from another county.—If you had confined your operations within lawful and peaceful bounds, you would doubtless have encountered, and perhaps been aided by the sympathy of many wise and good men, to whom the evils of those tenures are as apparent as they were to you. But such was not your purpose.

You came accompanied by a band of armed and disguised men; you early avowed your intention to resist the execution of the laws. A man of education, you well understand yourself to be a citizen; yet when remonstrated with on the impropriety of your course, you admitted that you knew it to be wrong, yet you avowed your intention to persist in your measures of resistance, because thus alone you could attain your end.

Possessed of a species of popular eloquence, you made your appeals to the interests of the tenantry, by holding out to them the prospect of exemption from the payment of rent. To the more lawless and depraved among them, you held up, by means of the disguises which you were the first to introduce among them, the hope of impunity for any crimes they might commit. You thus enlisted in your service several hundred men, whom you publicly paraded in different parts of the country, armed and disguised. And you publicly notified them to meet you on the appointed day, armed and equipped, to resist the sheriff in the discharge of his duty. When that officer arrived at the village of Copake, in the peaceable line of his duty, you placed yourself at the head of your armed band, and with pistols cocked and swords drawn you captured him. You warned him not to proceed, but avowed that you had thus met to resist him, and you intended to do so even to the shedding of blood. You held him a close prisoner for several hours. You surrounded him with your armed associates, and finally, with your pistol presented to his breast, you compelled him to surrender to you the legal process which it was his duty and his purpose to execute. Not content then to discharge him, but most fully to manifest your contempt of the law and its process, you kept him your prisoner until in his presence, and that of the multitude whom you had assembled there, you burned the papers of which you thus robbed him.

You afterwards, surrounded in the same manner, publicly avowed that you and they were thus armed in order to resist the Sheriff and his posse, in any attempt to arrest you for the crime you had committed. And you carried out your purpose by calling upon your associates to stand by you, when he came to arrest you, by causing yourself to be rescued from his custody, and by yourself presenting a loaded pistol at him, and threatening to shoot him with it.

Under the impulse which you have thus given, and in imitation of your example, peaceable inhabitants have been driven from their homes at night.—Houses have been torn down, farms laid waste, the laws forcibly resisted, and the officers of justice fired upon and wounded, while in the discharge of their official duty.

These offences, serious as they are, have been aggravated by the recklessness with which you have persisted in pressing upon the court and jury testimony which you knew to be false.

You have been the leader, the active instigator, the principal fomentor of these disturbances. You have made yourself an example of disorder and violence, and you have caused many erring and misguided men to follow it to their ruin and the disturbance of the public peace. You have therefore rendereded it necessary that the court should cause you to be an warning example of the certain consequences of such conduct,—that your misguided followers and others may learn from your fate the important lesson that order must be maintained, the laws must be enforced.

Deeply as we may feel for the ruin which you have brought upon yourself and those connected with you, our duty teaches us that forbearance toward you heretofore hagenly led you on to acts of more aggravated outrage, would be cruelty to the ignorent men whom you have misguided, and to the community which you have so deeply injured.

You are therefore to be withdrawn for the residue of your life from the society whose peace you have so wantonly disturbed, and whose laws you have so violently and so frequently violated, in the confident hope, that from the example of your fall, all may learn the salutary lesson that the supremacy of the laws must and will be maintained.

The sentence of the Court is that you be confined in the state prison in the county of Clinton, at hard labour, for the term of your natural life.

The new steamer Reindeer, was a few days since, as far up the River St. John as the mouth of the Tobique; a steamer never having been there before.

We cut from the Quebec Freeman's Journal of the 10th inst. the following article respecting the health of his Excellency the Governor General and we sincerely trust that the report may be incorrect or much exaggerated:

"From a gentleman who arrived by this morning's boat from Montreal, we have learned that his Excellency the Governor General has most dangerously ill, and that the disease under which he is labouring, presents very alarming symptoms, so much so, that fears for his recovery are entertained. His throat is now affected.

Provincial Appointments.—Henry Chubb and William O Smith, Esquires, to be additional Commissioners for the Alms House at St. John.

John M. Robinson, William H. Scovil, and Edward L. Jarvis, Esquires, to be Commissioners for the Provincial Penitentiary.

William James Gilbert and William B. Chandler, Junior, Esquirers, are called to the Bar, and admitted, sworn and enrolled Barristers.

The Potatoe Crop.—Extract of a letter from Cornwallis, dated 6th Oct—"The Potato disease is much more serious in this Township than was anticipated a short time ago, even five days past has made a visible alteration, and the potatoes that were standing and put into small heaps in the fields, barns, &c. which at the time they were raised, appeared to be sound, have since become useless for man or beast. Persons who had stowed their potatoes in cellars have found them in such a state of rotteness that they have been obliged to carry them out and cover them up as a compost. God only knows what the poor people are to do.—Novascotian.

The celebrated schooner Fair Rosamond, is ordered to be broken up at Portsmouth Dockyard.—She was originally a slaver, and on being captured was commissioned for her Majesty's service as a cruiser, and obtained a very high reputation for the number of captures of slave vessels made by her.—She is only 175 tons burthen.

Captain Daniel Pring (1815), an able and active officer, who commanded the Pique, frigate, and subsequently the Thunderer, 74, has been appointed to the Imaum, 72, at Jamaica, on board of which ship to hoist a broad pendant of commodore of the second class, as second in command to Sir F. Austen, the commander-in chief of the North American and West India station.

Great Strike in of Mackerel.—Near 3000 barrels of Mackerel were taken lately by the Fishermen in the Cove to the Westward of Halifax.

☞ We have been obliged to defer the communication of "An Observer."

Just Published,
A NEW SYSTEM OF MODERN GEOGRAPHY, PRINCIPALLY DESIGNED FOR USE IN COLONIAL SCHOOLS.
COMPILED BY James Paterson, L. L. D.

As an elementary work very great care has been taken to avoid two very common evils—that of extreme brevity on the one hand, and of too great prolixity on the other. As a Class Book for British Colonial Schools it is certainly unequalled, being the only one ever got up expressly for their use. It is printed on good paper, from a clear and distinct type, and substantially bound, for the astonishing low price of Five Shillings.
