and ease danced before them, and just while in the midst of their rejoicings and hilarity an unfeeling wretch shouted "April fool! April fool!" The effect was as sad as description. Indescribable blankness sat upon every countenance. From the mountain top of worldly honor and bliss at one dash they fell into the valley of hopeless poverty.

Music at the Rink.

Some complaints have been made of the number of bands that have been furnished during the skating season. But music costs money, and the Directors have only a certain amount to pay for it. By the Treasurer's books it appears that, for the season of 1871-72 $629 was paid; for 1872-73 $695; for 1873-74 $728.

There are said to be 123 Masons in the British Parliament—56 in the House of Lords, and 77 in the Commons.

Lord Rossmore of the First Life Guards, while riding his horse Harlequin in the race for the Guards' Challenge Cup at Windsor, England, on March 20, was seriously injured by his horse falling and rolling over him. While in the act of taking a fence the horse put his foot in a hole and stumbled. Queen Victoria, who saw the accident, has expressed much sympathy, and has from time to time since the occurrence sent special messages to the Spital Cavalry barracks, where the sufferer now lies.

The six largest steamers in the world are the Great Eastern, owned by the International Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, 678 feet long, 77 feet broad; the City of Pekin (Pacific Mail Steamship Company), 6,000 tons, 438 feet long, 48 feet broad; the Liguria (Pacific Steam Navigation Company) 4,520 tons, 460 feet long, 45 broad; the Britannic (White Star) 4,700 tons, 455 feet long, 45 broad; the City of Richmond (Inman) 4,600 tons, 4554 feet long, 45 broad; and the Bothnia (Cunard), 4,500 tons, 425 feet long, 42½ broad.

A sailor from Portland, Me., employed on American vessels for more than thirty years, had contributed annually something toward supporting a hospital for sailors at Portland, the sum aggregating not less than $1000. On his last voyage he shipped for home in a Danish vessel, but before reaching his destination was laid up with inflammatory rheumatism. On applying for admission to the hospital he had helped to support for so many years he was told that having been taken sick on a foreign vessel he could not be admitted. The sailor is now homeless and very likely to die from the want of proper care. So much for red tape.

A singular tragedy of the late war has been brought to light by the return of Thomas Clark to his family in Jacksonville, Rensselaer county. Clark was a doctor, and deserted his family about the opening of the rebellion. He entered the army and was reported to have been shot for desertion. His tomb, marked by a pine board, had been seen near Union Mills, Va., by a Johnsonville man. After thirteen years absence Clark has reappeared in his native town. He is surgeon of a Liverpool steamer. He says that the night before the execution he changed clothes with a comrade, and escaped. The comrade, less lucky, was shot in Clark's place.

The savings banks' statistics of Great Britain show either that the working classes are thrifty and prosperous, or that capitalists are using those institutions, as do capitalists here, as safe places of deposit, yielding small but sure interest. Of the $300,000,000 deposited in the savings banks of England, Scotland, and Ireland, $100,000,000 has been put there within twelve years and $20,000,000 last year. The workingmen's friendly and benevolent societies have about 4,000,000 members and a capital amounting to nearly $100,000,000. There is nothing the British workman so much dreads as that refuge of the country squire's worn-out laborers, the poor house. A friendly society secures him a support in his declining years and a decent funeral.

A despatch from Austin, Nevada, gives the particulars of a horrible tragedy in Smoky Valley in that State. It appears that Christopher Reckstein had been for a long time jealous of his wife in consequence of attentions paid to her by a young man named Norton, and they had frequent quarrels about him. A man named Osterhaus went to Reckstein's house, and, receiving no response to his demands for admission, broke open the door. On the floor lay the naked body of Mrs. Reckstein cut into pieces, and the head split open. At her feet were the bodies of their two little girls, their heads nearly severed from the bodies and near by were the dead bodies of Reckstein and young Norton, grappled as in a death struggle. Reckstein grasped in his right hand a large bowie knife covered with blood, and in Norton's right hand was a dragoon pistol two chambers of which were discharged. There is no living witness to the terrible affair.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs.

AMONG the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to man than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact that CHERRY PECTORAL will, on applying for admission to the hospital, he had helped to support for so many years he was told that having been taken sick on a foreign vessel he could not be admitted. The sailor is now homeless and very likely to die from the want of proper care. So much for red tape.
