HEALTH OR SICKNESS!

CHOOSE BETWEEN THEM.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ it necessarily produces disease. HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralizing the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady, whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

USED THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

ALARMING DISORDERS.

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infinnity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alternative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

GENERAL WEAKNESS—NERVOUS COMPLAINTS.

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victim of general debility.

DELICATE FEMALES.

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

SCIENTIFIC ENDORSEMENTS.

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:

Asthma	Female Complaints	Piles
Bowel Complaints		Stone and Gravel
Coughs	Headaches	Secondary Symptoms
Colds	Indigestion	Venereal Affections
Chest Diseases	Influenza	Worms, of all kinds.
Costiveness	Inflamation
Dyspepsia	Inward Weakness
Diarrhœa
Dropsy	Liver Complaints
Debility
Fever and Ague	Lowness of spirits

Sold at the Manufactories of Professor Holloway, 80, Maiden Lane, New York; and 244 Strand, (near Temple Bar, London,) by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicines throughout the United States and the civilized World, in boxes at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and 1$ each.

☞ There is a considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

Poetry.

A GOOD NAME.

BY MARTHA W. CANTON.

Some speak of riches and their worth,
And some of lofty fame;
But still, of all earth's precious stores,
Give me a bright good name.

Give me a name, though adverse winds
Howl loudly round my head,
That will not die when I am gone
But still aninfluence shed.

Give me a name that cannot die,
When I am laid to rest
Upon our common mother Earth's,
Cold, damp, and cheerless breast.

A name that all who loudly praise,
A name that all can love;
One that will brightly shine on earth,
And brighter grow above.

When I shall sleep within the tomb,
O, may my name remain;
And oft be spoken of by friends,
As one without a stain.

Miscellany.

MODERN HUSBANDS.

MR. EDITOR:—The following article was written by a bachelor friend of mine; and, though I am one of the class aimed at and perhaps hit, still, so acute and just are the ideas, and so tersely are they expressed, that I should be glad to see them in print in your columns.

WILL WINROW.

"O, wad some power the giftie gie us
To see oursels as others see us."—Burns.

A book has lately been issued, by Messrs. John Jewitt & Co., entitled, "The Moral Philosophy of Courtship and Marriage," which contains many brilliant and striking ideas on the subject that ever occupies much attention, but not of the kind which it merits. I have read that book with both pleasure and profit; and, as I am a single man, and not an interested party either way, perhaps I may not be deemed arrogant, or taking an unsolicited-for responsibility on my shoulders, if I say a few words on Modern Husbands.

No doubt our modern "lords of creation" deem themselves paragons of excellence and virtue, and regard themselves as injured parties when anything is said in derrogation of them; but, were they to behold with other people's eyes their varied faults, they would blush that they had been guilty of such unprincipled conduct.

At twenty-one a man begins to think he ought to marry, and to look up a lady, whose form and possesses those excellencies which, in his eyes, are sans reproch. He finds that lady, and, perhaps, for a year or two will wait with every species of attention upon her, think no effors too arduous to please her, and escorting her to all manner of amusements, and making her every variety of present. Nor is this all.

If the young man is unfortunate enough to indulge in the odious practice of smoking, chewing, or drinking, the appetite that would call for such henious indulgences must be corrected,—for the the lady's sake,—as she could not suffer such things while the young man is waiting upon her. These practices being restrained, they seem to pass through the period of their courtship merrily, the man "putting his best foot forward" to deceive—alas! how many are the instances that might be cited—his sweetheart into the idea that when she is married she will have a model husband. Poor female human nature is easily hoodwinked; the romantic girl sees not that her model of perfection is actually a model of deceit; she sees not that he has assumed a cloak to cover a multitude of grevious errors.

They are married! How happily passes the first year of their wedded life! Not a cross word is heard from the husband, nor any unkind look or ungentlemanly action. In fact, their life seems to make truth of the words which Moore uttered:

"O, if there is an elysium on earth,
It is this! it is this!"

The horse and other animals annually shed their coat; and I can liken the gradual change which comes over the modern husband's nature to nothing but this. The horse's change of coat, however, is for the better, while the modern husband's change is for the worse. Probably he has married a woman, whom, after the intimate acquaintance induced by marriage, he cannot like; and he walks out to rid himself of his sorrow. He meets, perhaps, some of his old cronies who are yet single; they ask him to take a cigar; then invite him to drink.—The wife finds he is out late o' nights; waits anxiously for his return, as it is not his custom thus to stay. He comes home; and while on his way, knowing that he has done wrong, frames his mouth to tell the first lie. The ground broken, the "appetite growing by what it feeds on," the modern husband slides downward step by step,—not becoming exactly a drunkard, but what is equally as bad an habitual smoker, a tarrier at dram shops, going late to bed and rising surly and half-sick in the morning.

The poor woman, for whom so much concern and attention were manifested when the modern husband first knew her, is a nonentity. She is a household drudge, a piece of animated dry goods, and can be ordered round, fooled, insulted and grossly lied to, as the modern husband deems fit. Her life, which she thought was to be a blissful lot, is collapsed to a miserable dragging through the world, of which she would gladly see the end. Her love for her 'lord' is as enduring as ever. She puts up with his insults, with with his bad temper, and with his merciless tasks of labor, as calmly as she can; but she doubtless inwardly regrets her selection, and wishes she had exercised cooler judgement and sharper insight in the choice of what was not going to be for a day, but for all time.

When modern husbands will learn to act properly their part,—not to appear before their wives in false colors,—we may know again some of that love which our grandfathers and grandmothers knew. And when young females will look more to the head and heart of a beau, and not so much to the cut of the coat and the contents of the pocket as they now do, we may hear of happier matches than can at present be found on the connubial catalogue.

This your male readers may deem a false picture; but if the best of them will look back upon their actions, from the period of courtship until the present time, they can doubtless recall incidents which will justify the principal points in my picture of Modern Husbands.—Cor. New England Farmer.

"Where was I," said a little urchin one day to his mother, as he stood gazing at his drunken and prostrate papa, "where was I when you married pa? Why did'nt you take me along? I could have picked out a better man than he is."

"Sir, said a rather wild gentleman to an acquaintance, "my wife had a fine little boy two nights ago but unfortunately he died immediately after his birth." "I don't wonder," said the jovial friend, "that when he came into the world and saw who his father was he went immediately out of it."

NOT DEAD, BUT SPEECHLESS.—Two Irishmen happened to get into an affray, in which one of them was knocked down. His comrades ran up to him, and exclaimed;—"Arrah Dennis, if ye be dead, can't ye spake?" "I'm not dead but speechless," returned the other.

LOVE OF HOME.—We hear much about the folly and lavishness and display in the adornment and ornamentation of home. It is all moonshine.—There is nothing in which a man is less likely to sin or make an jacknapes of himself. There are few things in which pride is more commendable, and vanity more deserving of cultivation. The man who lays beautiful carpets upon his floors, adorns his walls with tasteful pictures and his hall with chaste statuary, stocks his library with choice books, is a man of taste, cultivation and refinement—and what is more important than all, he is likely to be a home man. There are exceptions in the slaves of display it is true—but they prove the rule. The man that can throw the soft spells of enchantment around his family circle, build a temple of art upon his hearthstones, and rear a college in his silent study, is a philosopher, and if he opens his purse-strings freely to satisfy his ambitions in this regard, we say let him do it.—They will enlarge his mind, strengthen his faculties, improve his tastes, give him a more proper conception of himself, and make a thorough family man. Whenever you cultivate a love of home, and in so doing throw around it all the beauties and grace you are able to command—not only of moral character and life, but of those material objects which are at once the epitomes of moral graces and the incentives to their development.—Boston Bee.

THE FUTURE.—What a land of promise is the Future? In it we have rich possessions, the coming enjoyment of which alone makes life endurable. The past has proved a weary way; the present is full of thorns, but the bright Future has recompense for all who would sell his birthright in the Future. Who would give up the chances it conceals in its misty depths? We may be poor and sick, broken down and deserted, without friends and without a home but so long as hope remains we will not despair of the Future. The poor debtor was ready to swear that he had not five dollars in the world, but hesitated when asked to say he should never possess that amount. He might die a millionaire—who knows! Ay, who knows, for who has ever found the fair land of the Future, with all its rich possessions and its heavenly peace? And yet the entrance to it opens in the Present. We hold the clue in our hands, and need no one to reveal its labyrinthian secrets.—What the present forms the future will reveal. If we would reap rich harvests in the coming time, we must sow the seed to-day. It is madness to continue in our old courses of procrastinations, of idleness and vice and still hope for happiness in the Future. That which we sow we shall reap. The Future is the product of the Present—to a great extent we may make it what we will.

CURE FOR CANCER.

Our attention has been recently called to a cure for cancers, which is of so much importance, that we wish to make it known as widely as possible. Some eight months ago, Mr. T. B. Mason, who keeps a music store on Wisconsin street, and is a brother of the well-known Lowel Mason, contrated that he had a cancer on his face of the size of a pea. It was cut out by Dr. Walcot, and the wound partially healed. Subsequently it grew again, and while he was in Cincinnati on business it attained the size of a hickory nut. He has remained there since Christmas, under treatment, and has come back perfectly cured. The process is this:—

A piece of sticking plaster was placed over the cancer, with a circular piece cut out of the centre a little larger than the cancer, and a small circular rim of healthy skin to it were exposed. Then a plaster made of chloride of zinc, blood root and wheat flour, was spread on a piece of muslin of the size of the circular opening, and applied to the cancer for twenty-four hours. On removing it the cancer will be found to be burnt into, and appear of the color and hardness of an old shoe sole, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled, as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed, and the outside rim soon suppurates and the cancer comes out a hard lump, and the place heals up. The plaster kills the cancer so that it sloughs out like dead flesh, and never grows again. This remedy was discovered by Dr. Fell, of London, and has been used by him for six or eight years with unfailing success, and not a case has been known of the re appearance of the cancer where this remedy has been applied. It has the sanction of the most eminent physicians and surgeons of London, but has not till recently been used in this country, and many of the faculty, with their proverbial opposition to innovations look upon it with distrust. We saw Mr. Mason at church yesterday, and have since conversed with him and took particular notice of the cicatrized wound, and we can only say, that if the cure is permanent—and from the evidence of six or eight years experience in other cases we have no doubt it is, the remedy ought to be universally known. We have refered to this case, because Mr. Mason is so well known both here and at the East. The experiment excited much interest at Cincinnati, and we call the attention of the faculty of this State, to the remedy. If it is what is claimed for it, this terrible disease will be shorn in most of its terrors. The application is painful, but the pain is of comparatively brief duration, which any one so afflicted would cheerfully endure.—[Milwaukie Free Democrat.

BEWARE OF LUCIFER MATCHES.—A German paper relates the following:—

Two men entering a tavern in Cambria (France) ordered some coffee, and after drinking the first cup both fell down dead. The landlady fetched the police—they talked of poisoning. How is it possible? exclaimed the landlady, they only drank one cup of coffee and that could not have hurt them. Thus saying to prove the harmlessness of it she herself drank a cup. Hardly having partaken of this, she dropped down dead, too. On examining the coffee pot, they found a packet of lucifer matches at the bottom of it.

AMUSING EPITAPHS.—The following is from a graveyard in Massachusetts:

"Here lies
The bodies of John and Lucy
Leaven,
Killed by lightning sent from
Heaven,
In 1777."

In St. Mary's Churchyard, Whitlesea, England is the following:

"Here lies the body of Elizabeth Addison
Her son,
And old Roger to come."

"Old Roger" was her husband, it seems, and nearly twenty years afterwards, when a traveller visited the place, was still living and not yet 'come.'

THE BISHOP OF LONDON AND HIS SERMON MINISTRY.—Bishop Bloomfield had a family by his first marriage then married a widow with a family and afterwards had children by his second wife. These three families afforded an omnibus driver who plied his whip through the town of Fulham, the well-known illustration of English laws of inter-marriage which is so pithily expressed, that, despite its coarse pun, it deserves to take a place in the memory with "Thirty days hath November."—"His'n may marry her'n, (said John emphatically, pointing with his whip to Fulham Palace,) and her'n may marry his'n, but his'n and her'n can't marry his'n or her'n.
