THE GRIT CIRCULAR.

Something for Good Conservatives to Study.

The following private and confidential circular issued by the grits to the party bosses throughout the Dominion in connection with this year's revision of the voters' lists, is strongly recommended to the careful attention of the friends of the liberal conservative party:

"Organize in every polling subdivision a committee of three. Proceed methodically from some point therein and, taking each lot successively, ascertain who is qualified to vote therein, or what residents are entitled to vote on income and find out by the last revised Dominion voters' list what reform voters can be added.

"Place all such names on the list of additions and fill in all the columns fully.

"Follow up in succession all the concession and side lines, not omitting the non-resident owners and tenants.

"In some cases tenants may not be able to qualify as such in consequence of not having resided in the riding for a year. Perhaps they can qualify as income voters, or in some other way! After all your names have been secured arrange them alphabetically, surnames first.

"Proceed at once to fill in the declarations. Have them signed by the intending voters severally, and made before a justice of the peace, commissioner or notary public. Arrange these declarations in the order in which these names appear on the first list, and attach the list thereto and hand it in to the revising barrister, but keep a copy of the list of voters as a chetk upon the revising officer's clerk.

"Prepare at the same time and in like manner, a lst of the names of Tories to be struck off and particularly give the reason why they should be so struck off. If the voter so to be struck off has qualified on income and has ceased to be a resident or has lost a part of his income place in the list of objections "insufficient income,' or 'has ceased to reside in the electoral district'.

"Call this committee together again within a week and see if there are any omissions and complete your work. If any are not qualified to go on the roll by reason of their being under age, or otherwise, on the first of June, but if they will be able to qualify before the final revision, put their names on a separate list and keep it for the second revision.

"In like manner note the case of every owner who has sold his property and of every tenant, occupant, farmer's or owner's son who has lost his qualification. It would be well to have some person who knows the facts verify these objections and have these declarations attached to the list of voters to be objected to.

"These lists should be all carefully revised and the declarations examined by some competent person and handed in to the revising officer about the end of May and not later than the first of June next."

The members of the Shawmut Boat-Club are a happy lot for the reason that the club has just purchased from the Harvard Boat Club one of the best of 'varsity eight-oared paper boats. The purchase is a comparitively new boat, and is considered by Shawmut members to be as fast as any boat the college boys have ever sold to a boat club in these parts. The Shawmut club will therefore, in all probability, enter a good eight-oared crew in the coming New England Association regatta, so it is said, and they feel reasonably confident of success. It looks now as if at least five New England eight-oared crews would participate in the regatta at Worcester on June 18th next.

Wallace Ross can be addressed at the Harvard boat house for some time to come, and he is likely to get letters sent to him there. He will give advice to members of the Harvard 'varsity crew.

The chances were even until the sixth round when Mallon received a blow on the throat and another on the neck that laid him low.

New York sports are fond of prize fighting. About 30 of them paid $25 apiece Monday night for the privilege of walking several miles in mud and rain to witness the encounter between Mike Cushing of Brooklyn and Harry Bartlett of Birmingham. After fourteen stiff rounds Cushing knocked Bartlett out, and won the battle, which had lasted fifty three minutes, together with some $1250.

The Union Scheme.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE GAZETTE.

Sir:—The caption of the article which I wrote for the GAZETTE of the 4th inst., was a quotation in good Latin, but your compositor and proof reader conspired together to translate it into volupik or some other jargon. It would be more pleasant however, to have one's words correctly spelled, but then mistakes will happen.

By the scheme of Union, all our properties and the revenues now derived from them are to be merged into those of the new city making a uniform rate of taxation to meet all expenses. Now the water rate in St. John and Portland is four times as great as it is in Carleton. The police force on the east side costs many times more than ours, for we have but one policeman who has little to do, thanks to practical prohibition in Carleton, while on the east side a large force is required to look after the rumsellers, and the results of their business. In Carleton, we have no expense for market, very little for police, and our water supply is probably the cheapest in the province. In union, all this would be changed. We would have to pay an equal percentage with those living in St. John and Portland. Now I wish to ask my fellow citizens, are you willing to pay the enormous water tax of St. John and Portland? Are you willing to pay for restraining the villainies caused by the 80 rum shops of St. John and the untold number in Portland, when now you have to pay a very slight police tax? Besides all this we have a good deal more than one half of the assets to go into the common stock while we are only 17 per cent of the population. When seventeen per cent of the population is to turn into the common funds more than one half of assets, is it fair to ask us to unite with the East side "so that all burdens should be equally borne and all benefits equally enjoyed" (see page 29 of Report).

The time set for voting is so near that it is not likely that our people will have discussed the subject sufficiently to see the consequences of this wicked scheme in all its bearings.

CARLETONIAN.

Some Ungrateful Bees.

The late experience of Mr. Noah Pollock, of Paducah, Ky., is somewhat calculated to change that gentleman's benevolence, or at least to temper it with a tincture of justice. Mr. Pollock became enamored last year of farm life, purchased a manor near Paducah, bought some blooded cattle, thoroughbred horses and fancy fowl, and, thither moving all his Lares and Penates, together with Mrs. Pollock and three little Pollocks, settled down to an unremitting round of joys of bucolic life. His last acquirement was four colonies of Italian bees particularly commended by an experienced neighbor as possessing more spirit and staying powers than any other brand in the market. Mr. Pollock did not obtain these bees nor locate them upon his premises until late in November, when they were torpid with cold and self-immured in their hives.

Last Monday a burst of unusually cold weather struck Paducah, and it occurred to Mr. Pollock that it would be more merciful and thrifty to bring the Jersey calf, the Hambletonian colt, the Brahma rooster, the Angora cat and the merino ram into a large spare-room just abaft the kitchen, where they could not freeze to death, and after carrying this humane project into execution he bethought him of the benumbed bees, and in a few minutes had the four hives ranged pleasantly along the wall near the stove. He then, with Mrs. Pollock and the Pollocks, retired, conscious that the fierceness of the storm could not avail against his live stock, and so slept the sleep of the just.

By 8 o'clock the following morning there were three doctors at work at the Pollock manse and the neighborhood was in an uproar. By nine o'clock it was ascertained that somehow the bees had thawed during the night; that in the early morning they had impressed the premises man with the idea that fly-time had come; that he promptly butted over the hives; that within a few minutes the calf, colt, cat, ram and rooster were involved in a whirlwind of bees and trouble; that Mr. Pollock and his better half incautiously opened the door and drew a swarm and half of bees into the kitchen where the little Pollocks were at play, and that for half an hour no neighbor dared venture in to the rescue, until the windows were broken the cold air rushed in and the excited bees again returned to their midwinter drowse, proudly conscious of having got in some exceedingly fine work in a short space of time. Mr. Pollock has given it out that his model farm will henceforth get its honey through regular market channels.—New York World.

After an absence of 26 years from his parents and home, Mr. John Treadwell, a native of St. Andrews, has returned from Alaska, where he is the manager of, and largely interested in, one of the largest operating gold mines on the continent. His visit at St. Andrews will be necessarily brief.

DANGER!

People having Feather beds and Pillows do not seem to realize the danger there is in using them without being cleaned, especially in times of an epidemic, as feathers retain all the exhalations and poisonous matter exuding from the person, and by so doing spread sickness through the family.

Our steam cleansing process eliminates all the poisonous matter and leaves the feathers in a better condition than ever.
