The Murder Case.

UPON Saturday evening one Joseph Doiron, a grocer residing on Upper Great George Street, laid information before the Stipendiary Magistrate, charging James Henry McInnis and George Alexander McInnis with the murder of Patrick Callaghan, at Sherwood Cemetery. Armed with a warrant, the City Marshal, accompanied by three officers, proceeded late the same evening to Rustico Road, the residence of the accused, and about two o'clock on Sunday morning arrested the parties charged. They were immediately brought to Charlottetown, and on Monday morning arraigned before the Stipendiary Magistrate, who adjourned the case until yesterday, when the following evidence was taken. The Attorney General was present to watch the case for the Crown, and Messrs. Charles Palmer, Q. C., and H. J. Palmer represented the accused:—

JOSEPH DOIRON (sworn.)—I live in Charlottetown, on Great George Street. Been living here about eighteen months. Came from Rustico. Know two McInnis' (accused.) Have known James Henry McInnis 10 or 11 years. He lives about 10 or 12 miles from Charlottetown. I know now where Sherwood Cemetery is. McInnis lives about seven or eight miles from the Cemetery. I saw McInnis on Thursday before last, 21st of May. They were in my shop. I asked James Henry if the other was Allan's son. James Henry said yes. I asked James Henry what he came in for this time of the year. Would it not be better for him to work his farm. I asked him was it for a barrel of flour. He said he was on business. He was talking about the times. He said the times were dull. He bought a pipe and a fig of tobacco. He paid for them. He was short of a cent and asked his nephew for a cent to pay for the pipe. He said times were poor, and not much money going. I said that times were very dull in town. Said he: "Joe, I tell you what to do; why not go to the Cemetery and kill old Callaghan, the old Irish b——, and you'll get his money; then you'll have plenty money to do business. I wish I could lay hands on him." I asked him what old fellow. Says he: "Don't you know the old fellow in the Cemetery?" I said I never heard of him. He said, "That old man got plenty money; why don't you go and kill him." I told him I never heard there was an old man in that Cemetery, and never heard there was a Cemetery there itself. He said, "If I can catch hold of him I will kill old Callaghan." It was James Henry said all this. The other one was in the shop, a little distance from him. He never opened his mouth. They did not converse between themselves. This was between three or four o'clock. They might have been half an hour in the shop. I did not see them again that day. Their remarks made no impression on me at the time; but as soon as I heard of his death I thought of the conversation. I mentioned it first to my wife when I heard of the murder. My father's name is Jerome. I told him last Friday morning between ten and eleven. I told him because I wanted to take his advice. I told the City Marshall on Saturday night. I looked for him in the morning. The Marshall got me to make complaint. A warrant was issued and the men arrested. There was a man at my shop the same time—Joseph Blanchard—I don't know whether he heard the conversation. Don't remember any one else present except Blanchard. Did not know nor never saw Callaghan. Did not know he was there at all. Was never at the Cemetery. James Henry said he was thinking to get a wife. I heard there was another man in the shop at the time. I noticed no one else there. Pretty large shop, good many people come I do not notice. I remember nothing else said about the Cemetery. I told James Henry I thought he had a little drop. He knew what he was doing. I smelt liquor off him. He could walk about. He was not drunk. George looked well enough. They did not say where they were going. I heard of the Callaghan murder the same day they found it out, last Wednesday. Jas. Henry also said, "Why don't you get this place insured and set fire to this block, and burn the whole place up." He said it the same time. I told him not to speak like that for fear someone would hear him, and if the place got burned, we would be all taken up. He said nothing else that I remember now. James Henry generally passed my place. I was always on good terms with him and George.

Cross examined by Mr. Palmer.—This was last Thursday week. I remember because a man came for a barrel of flour that day, and I gave it to him. I kept account of days I gave barrels of flour if on credit. I made no memorandum of conversation. I first made the conversation known outside last Friday. I did not hear of any reward being offered. I heard of it on Saturday, not before. I informed my father on Friday. I told it on Saturday morning about nine o'clock to the priest. I looked for the Marshall, but could not find him. I did not know a reward was out till I went into the police office, about four o'clock. I found the Marshall about five o'clock. I heard a reward was offered on Saturday evening when I went in the office and a Policeman told me to look at the Proclamation. Cannot read English. Can read French. James Henry often comes to my place. He takes a drop of grog like I do. Have none in my house. I had none that day that James Henry and George were there. Was not talking about Volunteers to them. I don't remember that I was. They said it was poor times. Not much money going. I said times are poor enough. I said I was thinking to start a rum shop and make money (Counsel suggests he'd kill a man that way if not another.) I told him I was bound to make my living in town, and it was just as well to sell liquor as anything else. I know Allan McInnis in court. I don't remember saying anything to him about making money. I don't remember telling him I would be on hand with a bottle of brandy at any time. Jas. said, "Why don't you insure your place and burn it down and get money." I heard of the murder on Wednesday. I did start then to tell the conversation, but I thought it was gas and blab, and I took no seriousness out of it. I knew nothing of the proclamation till Saturday evening. It was not spoken of in my shop. I was around the market on Friday last but never heard of it. The conversation was such that anyone who listened could hear. They did not tell me to keep it quiet. I said I would open a rum shop to make money. I can work along pretty well. I have made a living for my family so far without selling rum. I have a little money. George never said a word during the conversation. Don't think George killed Callaghan. Know nothing bad of George or James Henry either. (Counsel reads deposition where he swore that James Henry and George did kill and murder Callaghan.) Joe Blanchard was in my shop. Saw no others but Joe Blanchard and the two McInnis'. James Henry told me he was going to get married. Can't tell whether he did. He did not say he was going to be married that day. I heard he was. If this conversation had not taken place I would not have suspected James Henry more than anyone else. I had no consultation with Joe Blanchard.

ADONIRAM CUDMORE (sworn)—I live on Appin Road, between 18 and 20 miles from Charlottetown, on Lot 30. James Henry married my sister. I came to town last Wednesday week. My sister Sarah Ann came with me. George McInnis came also, and James Henry. The reason we came to town was that James Henry and my sister were going to get married. The second live some distance from me. They came down to my sister's on the Winsloe Road; she was living by herself. We arrived in town about 7 o'clock a. m. I lived a while with my sister. We came in with a horse and truck wagon. We went to Mrs. Offer's and put the horse up there. We were with the accused most of the day. We were away from them no longer than half an hour. We walked about town in the forenoon. Rev. Mr. McLeod married my sister between 4 and 5 o'clock. I was not at Doiron's. I don't know whether the accused were at Doiron's. In the morning the accused went to Rev. Mr. McLeod's and arranged about the marriage. After the marriage we walked the streets a spell, and started for home about 6 o'clock. We went home in the truck-wagon. We started from Mrs. Offer's, the four of us. We went right out; I don't remember by what road. We were going home, and called in at Mr. Dart's, on the Appin Road, between eighteen or nineteen miles from town. Called at no other place between town and Dart's. Met Wm. Casford about a mile on the road. Met Rev. Mr. McLeod as we were starting. Met another man. I forget his name—the boys know him—about seven miles from town. Don't know whether the accused spoke to him or not. We got to Henry Dart's between 10 and 11 o'clock. There was no one at Dart's but the children. We stayed at Dart's that night—the whole of us till half-past five next evening (Friday) Then we went home—about half a mile from Mr. Dart's. Accused went home to Rustico Road. My sister and I went a piece of the road, about two miles to show them. They did not know the road. We then went home. It is about eighteen miles from Appin Road to where they live. The horse was middling strong, not very smart. Belonged to James Henry. Accused could not have gone near the Cemetery on Thursday. I heard of the murder first last Wednesday. I am not sure. It is about four or five months since I became acquainted with James Henry. I don't know whether accused knew Callaghan. I didn't know him myself. People at Offer's saw us leaving. I don't know whether accused were at Doiron's at all.

Examined by Mr. Sullivan.—I am not married. My proper place of residence is Appin Road. My father and mother live there. My father's name is Robert. We started that morning from Winsloe Road. I went to Brackley Point for a cruise about a month ago, and was at Winsloe Road with my sister about a fortnight before that Thursday. My sister's home was on the Winsloe Road. My sister was married before. Her first husband lived on the Winsloe Road, and that was her home. Her place is about a mile and a half from McInnis' place. We left the Winsloe Road about 4 a. m., the four of us, and called no place on the way. We got to town about 7 a. m. I was present at Mr. McLeod's house at the marriage. There were the ofur of us present. I was not with the accused when they got the license. We left Mr. McLeod's about 5 o'clock. We then walked on the street to Mrs. Offer's. We stayed about an hour and went home. Our intention was to go home to father's. We were about half-way at dark. Mrs. Dart and James Henry are brother and sister; that is why we stayed there. My sister wanted to go home to father's and have a cruise, that is the reason she did not go with her husband. Did not see accused since Friday week at 6 p. m., until to-day. I don't know where they went; they told me they were going home. Henry Dart told me of the murder. My sister and I were down there. We heard it on Wednesday night between 9 and 10 o'clock. Dart was not in town that day. Don't know McInnis long; nor much about them. Don't know where they have been since that Friday evening. George was sober, but James Henry had some in him. He was able to knock about. My sister has been at father's ever since. We have both been absent from McInnis' ever since that Friday. James Henry got married without consent and without his mother or sister knowing about it—so James Henry told me, but his mother never told me.

HENRY DART (sworn)—I know James Henry McInnis my brother-in-law. I know George. Saw these parties at 10 o'clock Thursday night, May 21st. James Henry and George, and the two girls. I was up. They came and unharnessed and stabled the horse. Came in a wagon. Did'nt take particular notice. Kind of nice wagon. They stayed at my place that night and all next day, and left my place at five o'clock. The boys to go home to Rustico Road, and the women to Cudmore's. I was there all the time. My wife and family saw them also. The girls have been living with their father since. I heard a whisper in the settlement of the murder after they came to my place. Can't say to a day how long after. Did not know Callaghan. Did not know there was such a man there. I have a farm on the Appin Road. They called at my place for a rest, being acquainted with me. I did not expect them, but I made them welcome. I heard that they were coming around sometime, but was not sure. I looked at the clock when they came. When people are getting married they want a little time. Myself and missus were in a neighbor's house and we set out to get home by 10 o'clock. I looked at my neighbor's clock. I have a clock. It was run down. It was Mrs. Corney's clock I looked at. I had to walk about half a mile. I would get home about ten o'clock. I don't remember winding the clock. It might be run down. I had to attend to the people and did not look at my clock. I have a clock. It was going this morning. It goes 24 hours. The missus generally winds it. They were at my house when we got home. They were unyoking when we came. A nice driving wagon they had. I have three children, one 14, another 10, and another 8 or 9. I have been living on the Appin Road about eight years. I lived before that on the Winsloe Road. They staid till 5 o'clock on Friday, 22nd May. James Henry said his mother was very poorly, and he had to go home. The four of them got in the wagon when they left my house. They left the girls at Mr. Cudmore's. I did not see the accused from Friday until to-day. I heard of the murder about last Sunday. It was whispered about. It came in the papers yesterday. I heard a man reading it. It was Henry Balls, a neighbor, read it yesterday. It was a small paper, about half size. I take no paper myself. I don't remember who whispered it on Sunday. It was at my house. There were a lot of youngsters there who talked about it. Miss Cudmore was at my house yesterday evening. I saw her on Sunday at Mrs. Corney's. After she left my house on Friday week first time, I saw her again at Mrs. Corney's on Sunday. I did not see her on Wednesday, and could not tell her about the murder, for I had not heard of it myself. Balls and Campbell read the paper together.

MARGARET DART, wife of Henry Dart, (sworn)—My husband is very dull of hearing. I remember last Thursday week persons came to my house while I was at Mrs. Corney's, a neighbor, half mile off, with my husband. It was about ten o'clock when we got home. Jas. Henry, George and the two women were at my place when we got home. They came with a horse and truck-wagon. They were unyoking when we arrived. They remained at our house all night. I am positive it was a truck-wagon. They staid all night and till five o'clock on Friday. They started as they came, and were to leave the women at Cudmore's, and go to Rustico. That was the last I saw of them. I don't remember hearing of a murder till Sunday. Mr. Campbell read it out of a small paper, and yesterday two of them read it. I don't know what paper. I told that to Henry in Great George Street. I did not tell him I believed they were innocent. I never told my father those words. I told him thinking about those men was troubling my head a good deal. Neither my father nor my wife asked me what was troubling me. I told my father what the two men had said. My father never asked me was it Connolly's bill was troubling me. I never told my father that I had laid an information against McInnis boys and they were innocent. I talked to my father about Connolly's bill last Monday, before the information was laid.

The Stipendiary Magistrate, not considering the evidence sufficient to commit accused to the Supreme Court, discharged them.

—positive. There was a chiverie in the evening at the homestead. There was Jas. Duffy, John Duffy, John Neal, Henry Neal, John McQuarrie, Chas. McQuarrie and a lot of others. These men were all at Jas. Henry's till 11 o'clock. James Henry was in the house lying on a settle bed. George was at the door when I went in. These men whom I have mentioned could all see him. He was home from Saturday morning till Monday morning when I went peddling. On Sunday morning James Henry came to my house. My wife and family saw him. I saw him on Sunday evening at Mrs. Gallant's house on the opposite side of the road. This would be before sundown. I did not see him afterwards till Monday morning, when I sold him a tin teapot. This would be a little after 7 o'clock. It was after breakfast. I have no timepiece. That was the last I saw of him. I heard of the murder on Wednesday evening, at Bedford Station, at Miss Hughes', where I stayed overnight. I am George's uncle. His father's name is John. I am a peddler. I did not see him that day. James Henry got married. That day I was in Charlottetown and the next day I was in the country. I know where the Cemetery is. I live by the road about seven miles from the Cemetery.

JOHN MCINNIS.—I live on Rustico Road, next to my brother's. I did not see my brother, George Alexander, last Wednesday week. He was in town. The first I saw of him was last Saturday week, early in the morning. I was anxious to see him, and I saw him going into the barn just about daylight. I saw him off and on through the day. He could not be in town on Saturday without my knowing it. He was ploughing and working on his farm. I did not see him that evening or after night. I was not at the chariverie. My two sons—George Alexander and John Angus—were there and came home about 11 o'clock. I recollect James Henry and George Alexander going to town. We partly guessed what he went for. I saw James Henry on Sunday at different times. I saw him Monday, working about. No doubt he was home that Saturday morning. He was arrested last Sunday morning about 3 o'clock. Don't remember seeing James Henry Sunday night week. James Henry was home Saturday, Sunday and Monday. First heard of murder last Thursday evening from a man who had been in town. Did not know Callaghan, and all I knew about Cemetery was from having a glimpse of it once when passing in the train. I saw James Henry and George start that Thursday morning with truck wagon and horse, so that no one would suspect they were going to get married. They started to go where this woman lived. Did not see them again till Saturday morning at daylight; saw James Henry going to his stable. Think George was with him—not positive. Saw him through the field all day; saw George all that day and that evening. Saturday George made a pair of pants for William Neal, Rustico Road. Wont swear I saw James Monday night; I saw him Monday and Tuesday. George slept at home Saturday night, Sunday night, and every night till he was arrested. George is a tailor by trade; he works in a shop of his own near my place. He finished his time with Mr. Riggs, in town. Set up for himself this last winter. I started him and bought him a shop and machines to work. I gave him no money. I bought him a sewing machine and other necessary articles. I found the means. I might have heard there was a man living at the Cemetery, but never saw him to my knowledge, and had no acquaintance with him.

The Court then adjourned until Wednesday morning.

At the examination to-day before the Stipendiary Magistrate, Timothy Burke and Joseph Blanchard were examined. They both testified that they were in Doiron's shop while McInnises were there. Burke remembers that he corrected Jas. McInnis for saying something, he could not remember what, but it was such words as might bring him into trouble. Joseph Blanchard swore that McInnis told Doiron he ought to insure his building for a good amount, and he (McInnis) would set fire to it, and Mr. Burke told McInnis he should not use such language, for he did not know what it might come to. He heard no mention made in the conversation about Callaghan, or about killing him.

Mary McInnis, sister of James Henry, was then examined, and swore that James and George came home Friday night between eleven and twelve o'clock, and were home all night.

William Noy, of New Wiltshire, proved selling oats to George McInnis on Friday night, as they were going from Appin Road to Rustico Road.

James Duffy and Henry Neal proved being at the chevari, and seeing James Henry McInnis on Saturday evening.

Angelina Cudmore, recalled, deposed: Accused came to my sister's Wednesday evening. They remained till next morning, both of them, and we left at four o'clock. They could not have gone down to the Cemetery Wednesday night.

RICHARD FLYNN—(sworn)—I was at the Cemetery with Mrs. Watson on Thursday week morning. Left town at 10.30. We went to tell Callaghan to meet the train in the afternoon to get some trees we were to send out. I did not go into the house then. In front of the house about three parts of garden were planted with potatoes, and one drill dug and line stretched along the drill. A wheelbarrow was there about half full of manure, about the centre of the drill there was a basket with a few potato sets in it. There was a fork and two spades—one was up against the fence, and the other was left where he had been using it digging the drill. I went up and told Mrs. Watson I could not find him, and I went into the yard and looked in at the kitchen window, (north). I went out again in the afternoon. Saw no trace of Callaghan. I went in the house into the kitchen. I noticed nothing particular; was not in the other rooms. There were half blinds from the lower sash on each window. When I came out the front garden was in the same state as in the morning. That would be about 3.30 p. m. Mr. Prowse was working in the field. I remained until the train came along. I was looking for Callaghan but could not find him. I left my message for Callaghan with Mr. Prowse. I asked Mr. Prowse had he seen Callaghan. He said he had not seen him all day. The front door was locked. The back door was closed by a stick placed against it. I never noticed the door fastened that way before. As soon as I took the stick away it swung open. The kitchen door leading into the porch was shut. The kitchen was in a pretty bad state. There was a kettle on the stove; no fire in the stove. I did not care to stay around long. I called him. The cat was in the other room; the connecting door was shut, when she heard me speak she bawled.

JOSEPH DOIRON (recalled).—Since conversation with McInnises I have slept well. Been a little on my mind. Others may have noticed it, but never told me. Nobody asked me if it was the bill at Connolly's was worrying me. I owe Connolly. Being asked did he say "No, it is not the bill at Connolly's, but I informed against the two young McInnises and they are innocent." He replies he never made use of those words or words to that effect. I'll tell you what I told: "I wish if the poor men are innocent they may clear themselves." I told that to Henry in Great George Street. I did not tell him I believed they were innocent. I never told my father those words. I told him thinking about those men was troubling my head a good deal. Neither my father nor my wife asked me what was troubling me. I told my father what the two men had said. My father never asked me was it Connolly's bill was troubling me. I never told my father that I had laid an information against McInnis boys and they were innocent. I talked to my father about Connolly's bill last Monday, before the information was laid.
