The London College of Physicians has arrived at the conclusion that the belief that leprosy is, under any circumstances, either contagious or infectious, is entirely without foundation.

Mobile reporters take matters coolly, as the following paragraph from a Mobile paper shows: "Night before last Mr. Harrington, shot at Mr. Worsham and killed Mr. Farragut. Such accidents as these are not uncommon.

A daring and skilful robbery of $13,000 was perpetrated at New Orleans on Saturday. A banker placed upon a desk in a back portion of his office, a bag containing $5,000 in gold together with a cheque of $8,000. Having urgent business at that moment with some one across the street, he left the office and run over. He was absent but a minute, but when he returned the treasure and the cheque were gone.

Savannah, Ga. Jan. 30.—There is further trouble on the Cheves plantation in South Carolina. The negroes will not leave the place, and still refuse to make any contracts for the year. A collision took place this morning, in which Lieut. Lemon, of the Freedman's Bureau, was shot in the left arm. He returned the fire and killed the negro. It is reported that Captain Hunnit is now held as a prisoner by the negroes. Col. Sibley has proceeded with seventy men to the scene of action. Rumours of an engagement are prevalent.

A Fine joke.—At Frankfort, a fortnight ago, the "Merchant of Venice" was played to one of the theatres, and when in the trial scene, the judge asked Shylock what he claimed from the debtor, and the latter replied, "A pound of flesh," a man in the gallery cried out "And a fine cigar." The Frankfort people applauded this allusion to the Prussian bill of fare during the war; the Prussians present lost their temper; a disturbance ensued, and the police cleared the house.

A New Trade.—Pickled geese and turkeys preserved in a novel manner, and packed in barrels made for the purpose, have been imported into Liverpool from New York within the last few days, and, as they sold readily and proved good in the eating, there is likely to be further supplies.

It is stated in the United States press that the New York Tribune has engaged Mr. Dickens to write a novel for its weekly edition, paying for it $25,000. Mr. Carlyle has also been engaged to contribute a single article, to cover a page of the daily edition, for which he received the sum of 150 guineas. Mr. T. Hughes, M. P. for Lambeth, in the London correspondent. Mr. John Stuart Mill has also been secured as a contributor for 1867.

Impropriety of Address Ward.—I fear that poor Artemus Ward will not be able to continue his entertainment at the Egyptian Hall much longer. The physical exertion is beyond his strength. I have been told that when the first excitement is over—and after the first three or four nights—a dreadful feeling of weariness and oppression seizes upon my listener. His attempt to be witty night after night in the same words and with the same gestures weighs him down with intolerable heaviness. Apparently this feeling has overpaken, dear friend "Among the Mormons." The other evening Mr. Ward fainted away while delivering his lecture, and had to be removed from the platform.—He looks extremely ill. You will see that his papers in Punch are discontinued.—London correspondent of the Sheffield Telegraph.

Saw Mill Offal.—The Commissioner of Crown Lands has made an order preventing saw-mill offal from being emptied into the river. The order states that the mill owners be required to erect machinery for grinding waste stuff such as slabs and edgings, and that the same be constructed and put into actual use whenever operations shall be resumed at the several establishments in question. Should there be any failure to provide and use the requisite machinery within such reasonable time, it shall be so reported by any fishing officer, and prosecutions will be continued in pursuance of the notice formerly given.

The Original Language.—At a convivial meeting the other night at Ottawa, one of the speakers, in alluding to the completion of the council, thought it singular that not a Scotchman was among the members elect for 1867. This appeared to him a most singular fact, when coupled with the allegation sometimes heard that Gaelic was the language of Eden, in proof of which the speaker, amid roars of laughter, gave the following:

"When Eve, in all her pristine charms,
Burst on proud Adam's view,
The first words that he said to her
Were 'Kamarsh on thu.'"

How Ladies Make Calls in Germany.—The Carlsruhe correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial gives the following item of gossip:—"Among the multitudinous ceremonies of society some are very amusing.—For instance, a lady is 'not at home' to one who calls in a carriage. Such airs of extravagance are not to be winked at. It is a highly proper performance for the consolation of poor people, doubtless. In one sense I should say not, however, if one's time is of any consequence. Making an estimate from the cheapness of carriage hire, and the length of fashionable calls, the cost per call would be about three kreutzers, to say nothing of the number to be made in an afternoon without fatigue. So, when Madame goes in the carriage she sends in her card, and the servant comes back, opens the door of the carriage, delivers the 'not at home,' and the same performance is repeated at the next place. Now, I know there are very many fashionable ladies at home aighing for this same custom, and it is not at all certain that it is always disagreeable to either party here. So, though Madame owns horses and carriages, herself, when she wishes to see her friends, she takes it like a true plebeian, and goes afoot. This affected simplicity of social life is in ludicrous contrast to the fact that if one wishes to go into 'society,' he or she must first be presented at court. As the Americans do not write 'De' or 'Von' before their names, no one has ever been invited at this court. In large towns like Berlin, it is quite different, but the smaller the court, the more necessity of guarding its dignity."

An Incident in the early life of Mr. A. H. Stephens.—The following incident in the early life of the Hon. Alexander H. Stephens is going the rounds of the American press:—He was reported to him that he had been pensioned a traitor to the south, in a public speech made by one who held high position in the state. In a personal interview with this person, he inquired whether the charge had been made, as reported; and though the charge was denied, and the parties separated in friendly manner at the time, yet the words used by Mr. Stephens on that occasion led to a subsequent demand for retraction. The next morning, he was accompanied by his second, who was more than twice his size and weight, was duly presented, for the rencounter which he sought. Upon the signal to commence the combat, the assault was made upon Mr. Stephens, with an iron bar. This he for consistency parried with an umbrella, receiving several severe blows upon his arm and breast; but his assailant, rushing upon him with all his superior force and weight, threw him upon his back. One blow with the knife aimed at the heart would have done its fatal work, but for the fortunate position of the wicked end of the knife. Another blow, on the other side, passing between two ribs, severed the intercostal artery. The strong man then, with his left hand on the forehead of his adversary, and the knife in his right hand, said, 'Now—retract, or I will cut you—asunder.' The reply was, 'No, never! Cut!' As the knife came, Mr. Stephens caught it in his right hand, and with his left seized the right elbow of him who wield ed it. In this way the struggle lasted until both parties were on their feet again, and others came to the rescue. The right hand that seized the knife as it was aimed at the throat was horribly mangled by the turning and twisting of the blade in the efforts to get it out of the grip. The hemorrhage from the artery would have resulted in speedy death, but for the fortunate presence of Dr. Hitchcock, of the United States army, whose skill arrested it. The scene occurred in the piazza of Thompson's hotel, in Atlanta, Ga., on the 4th of September. Mr. Stephens was laid up for several weeks with these wounds."

☞ The Times telegram says:—"The Southerners who expected that their reconstruction plan would be acceptable to Congress are much mistaken, for there is a not inconsiderable number who will not accept any modification of the constitutional amendment. It will, however, be submitted to the reconstruction committee, which meets to-day."

The Post's special says:—"The reconstruction committee this morning agreed upon a strong bill for the government of the Southern States. It provides for the temporary establishment of martial law in the states lately in rebellion."

A lad five years of age, son of Mr. Calvin Gilbert, of Cashway, Peterboro', met his death in a fearful manner on Friday afternoon last. He was playing about the Victoria flour mill when he became entangled in the machinery and in a few moments was fearfully mangled.

The Waterloo Salt Wells, A Speculative Fever Engendered.

The inhabitants of Waterloo are in high spirits over the discovery, in their region, of what is supposed to be a rich and inexhaustible deposit of salt: The enterprise of penetrating the bowels of the earth in that locality was first instituted in the expectation of obtaining petroleum; but in the absence of any show whatever of the oleagenous fluid, the projectors now consider themselves more richly rewarded in the discovery of salt than they were encouraged to hope for at the outset. Under a flaming heading, the Chronicle remarks as follows:

"The Waterloo oil speculation has long been looked upon by "outsiders," and even by some in the "ring," as nothing but a losing and sinking venture. When the funds of the first company were exhausted, many prophesied a total suspension of operations, supposing that no more money could be raised for the further prosecution of such a wild and foolish speculation. Some who had not the warmest feelings towards the managers, even seemed to rejoice at the prospect of seeing the whole thing end in a general smash up. Still, with all these disadvantages before them, some of the managers, with earnest hope and stout hearts, went to work and succeeded in getting up a new company with a capital of nearly two thousand dollars. The work was again commenced, and prosecuted from week to week, and now we have the welcome intelligence to announce to the world that we have struck salt in Waterloo.

When the well was 700 feet deep, faint tracks and indications of salt were discovered. Not much was said then, but the substance brought up from time to time in the sand pump was being tested by Mr. Zoellner, chemist and druggist, and was found to contain more salt as the well was sunk deeper. At present it is 800 feet, and the substance through which they are drilling is dark soap stone. This is saturated with salt brine, of the strength of about 40 per cent. Beautiful white salt has been obtained from this brine, and has been seen and tasted by hundreds. At first there were some impurities in it, but they are becoming less and less. The theory of those who have given this matter the most attention, and are acquainted with salt works in other places, there is below the soap stone any quantity of salt brine. Were there a formation of solid salt; it could not have so much saturated the rocky layer above it. It is therefore expected that by continuing to deepen the well, a fountain of brine will be reached which cannot but be of sufficient strength to pay for manufacturing it into salt. We may state that the Goderich well, when at the same depth, had no such indications. We hope, therefore, that before long we will have in Waterloo salt works second to none in Canada.

LOTTERIES IN THE STATES

The mania for gambling is spreading in the States, and lotteries are now a recognized mode of wooing the fickle goddess. But hypocrisy is closely connected with many of the "schemes" put in operation, and the New York World hits it off neatly in the following:

"We are returning to the good old customs of the Puritan fathers, who used to set small boys in the stocks for playing at chuck-farthing near the meeting houses which their elders had built out of the proceeds of a lottery. On Sunday night the police made a gallant swoop upon the gambling 'establishment' of John C. Heenan, the once redoubtable champion of America in the English prize ring; and on Monday morning the same police assisted in keeping order at the drawing of the great lottery organized by ladies and clergymen for the benefit of the 'sailors and soldiers' orphan home.' That in the captain's box a cholera word, which in the soldier is flat blasphemy. Far be it from us to speak evil of dignities, or to dampen with a chill word the joy of the lucky or unlucky individual who yesterday drew "a prize of ten thousand dollars in greenbacks" for the sake of this country, her defenders, and her institutions. But if black be white and laudable, why should white be black and damnable?"

WELL NEIGHBOR, how do you get along with your plowing this wet weather?

Why, I have thrown aside a good plow that cost 24 dollars, it was like plowing with a log, and went to Searle & Davis' and bought a steel plow for sixteen dollars; now I have no trouble in plowing; my horses go right along, it cleans so nice; they are real thistle cutters!
