DANBURY NEWS.

Three old boots, a gaiter and a hoop skirt in front of a house indicate that the family has moved.

A Methodist clergyman in this conference was recently so deeply impressed with the evil of chewing tobacco that he gave up the habit, and went to smoking.

Cider is becoming too old to have about the house. A New street scholar has put on paper the fact that he would "rather be a little girl and obey his mother than be a dog and obey the moon."

A gentleman with one leg broken in four places, three fractured ribs, and a hand with no two fingers pointing in one direction, was in Danbury, Friday, making arrangements for organizing a base ball club.

A crowd of quarrelsome people were dispersed from the front of a Munson street residence in a very singular and sudden manner Saturday night. A stranger visiting the family slipped into the crowd unperceived, and extending an inverted hat, announced that he would take up a collection. Two minutes later he stood there alone, with not a single member of the turbulent mass to be seen in any direction.

The most accommodating man we ever saw was he who was captain of a steamship which plied between New York and Port Royal, during the war. One day a soldier lost his cap overboard, and went to the captain about it. The old gentleman said it was impossible to stop the vessel to recover it, but kindly offered to make a mark on the rail where it went overboard, and get it when he came back. We saw him make the mark ourselves, and well remember that in all that motley crowd there was not a dry eye.

One of the best cement cellar-floors in this town is that of a Pine street resident, and the one who sincerely and even profanely regrets this fact is the man himself. His wife left a plate of bread pudding on the cellar stairs, Saturday, to cool for dinner, and unknown to her he went down there for a pitcher of cider. When he and the pudding met there was a time. His wife heard an awful crash which almost paralyzed her, but before she could move to see what was the matter, he came tearing into the kitchen with one hand on his pistol pocket, and the other swinging mysteriously in the air, and a streak of streaming pudding the whole length of his back, and he was shrieking camphor and profanity at every leap.

Suicide in High Life.

The inquest on the body of Earl Delawarr cleared up the mystery at first surrounding his suicide, and, as usual, there was a woman at the bottom of it. He was unmarried, but for some years a Miss Annie Nethercote has been living in one of the fashionable streets in the West End of London "under his protection." This lady, who was very many years the Earl's junior (he was in his 58th year), died lately of irritation of the stomach, brought on at first and greatly increased afterward by the habitual use of stimulants. The Earl was greatly affected by her death, and insisted that he had been the cause of it, although the physician in attendance assured him that it was not so. He also feared that she had not been properly attended to during her illness by the people of the house. After her death he seemed unable to sleep, was distraught in his mind, gave contrary orders, and was evidently suffering great mental distress. On April 21 he went down to the Bull Hotel at Cambridge, having previously telegraphed to his agent to meet him there. All night he walked up and down his sitting room, and next morning early he walked out and threw himself into the Cam, where his body was afterward found. Behind him he left a note to his agent in which he said: "I have been the cause of the death of Miss Annie Nethercote, who was living under my protection. I could not survive this; indeed the law would not allow it, so I shall be found in the river." A second note gave more explicit explanation as to the spot where his body would be found. The jury of course returned the stereotyped verdict of suicide while in a state of temporary insanity.

Stealing Legislators.

The N. Y. Sun declares that the members of the late Arkansas Legislature acquired such a habit of thievery that they got into the way of stealing the bills which were in progress through their own body. It was owing to this propensity of the Legislature that the Hon. Mr. Furbush, a colored member from Phillips county, was recently moved to curse the whole Assembly, individually and collectively, from his seat in the House. Mr. Furbush was engaged in promoting the formation of a new county, of which he expected to be made Sheriff. He got a bill favorably reported creating the new county under the name of Logan. The bill was stolen from the Clerk's desk. Then he introduced another bill creating the county of Coolidge, and pending the consideration of the report, this bill also was stolen. But Mr. Furbush was not discouraged, and he successively introduced three other bills to create the new county under three different names. Finally he succeeded in procuring the passage of one which established the desired county under the name of Lee. It was while he was engaged in these arduous efforts to reconstruct the map of Arkansas that the Hon. Mr. Furbush pulled off his coat and told his fellow legislators what he thought of them in words which were plain, besides being exceedingly profane. This appears to have had the desired effect, for the bill passed, and Mr. Furbush is now Sheriff of the new county which owes its existence to his perseverance and eloquence.

In the stationery line the new English "primrose" paper is the latest. It is of every hue, heavy, glossy and altogether handsome.

A female advocate, in the person of a farmer's wife, appeared in the Sheffield (Eng.) police court on Saturday, and skilfully defended her husband in an excise case.

President White, of Cornell University, tells the boys if they will be good and not bet or gamble, they may go to the college regatta and he will give them a bran new boat. They have promised, and are getting up their muscle with tremendous enthusiasm. Nice boys, but if they should break their word, now!

Professor Agassiz has reason to like young ladies for pupils. A number of scholars of his school for young ladies have raised the sum of $4,050 as a token of their affection, and he says it will just enable him to carry out a pet scheme of his own in the museum. Who says that ladies are not valuable as scientific students?

Nursery Rhymes--No. 24.

A STORY OF DOOM! (almost.)

CANTO I.

The coffin-maker bent low at his work,
And, coughing, cast his eyes upon his bench,
A spasm came, which gave his frame a jerk,
And shook his head about with fearful wrench;
The blood skipped from his ears and sought the ground;
The Undertaker deemed his lungs unsound.

CANTO II.

It was a cuid and dismal afternoon,
The ice had melted in the Skating Rink,
And lovers sighed to walk beneath the moon,
And men paused at Bars to get a drink;
The coffin-maker hummed an air, then stood,
And drove a nail deep in the coffin-wood.

CANTO III.

Another spasm came, then down he fell,
And sought the pitch-pine floor, quite ill at ease
And listened to the knell of deep-mouthed bell,
His gold hair fluttering madly in the breeze;
But Ham's Invigorator cured the pain,
And Ayer's Vigor brought in the hair again.

CANTO IV.

These two great Cures he at the Chemist's bought,
The Pharmaceutist's, King street, twenty-four,
Where Drugs and Medicines are often sought
By iron-mongers when life is nearly o'er;
And coffin makers, when they's re coughin' loud,
Take Trachea Drops, and thus postpone the shroud.

JEAN INGELOW.

HAM'S INVIGORATOR, AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, TRACHEAL DROPS, and other excellent and popular household remedies. For sale in any quantity at the Pharmacologizer's,

READ THIS.

PORTLAND, March 14th, 1860.

To MRS. WATERBURY,—Dear Madam,—I desire to add my testimony to your already Celebrated Dinner Pills. During my whole life time, until about six years ago, I was severely afflicted with Indigestion, Biliousness and all their attendant evils. I had tried many medicines, and got but temporary relief. At the time above mentioned, I was advised to try your Pills: I did so for three months, according to directions; since that time I have had no occasion to take any medicine, and have enjoyed good health.

I am yours, &c., THOS. DALE.
