PIRATES FROM HAMILTON.

An Ambitious City Opera Company's Performances at the Grand.

An amateur company composed principally of musical talent from the ambitious city, gave two performances of the Pirates of Penzance at the Grand Saturday, afternoon and night. There was a fairly large attendance at the matinee, but the house at night was thin. This is to be regretted, as the visitors gave a pleasing and creditable presentation of Sullivan's piece. But the limited patronage bestowed upon them must be solely attributed to the inadequate notice of their appearance: a crowded house awaits them whenever they choose to come again.

From an amateur point of view the opera was produced in good style. The dresses were correct to a degree, and nothing could be more picturesque in stage costuming than the scene of the general's daughters by the seashore. The chorus numbered about forty voices and sang well. Mrs. McCulloch, who sings ballad music so exquisitely, took the role of Mabel, and although it is one not exactly suited to her voice, she appeared to good advantage. T. D. Beddoe, a former Torontonian, sang with all his old-time sweetness, and it would be almost impossible to find a better Frederic. Fred. Warrington of Toronto sang, acted and certainly looked the part of the pirate king. M. B. Wild made a capital major-general, and left a good impression. The other characters were well taken. There was a little of that stiffness of position and repetition of gesture inseparable from amateurs, but judging it as an amateur performance, it was on the whole very successful.

A COCKING MAIN SPOILED.

Midnight Raid by the Police—Some of the Alleged Sports.

Late Friday night the police learned that a cocking main between Toronto and Kingston birds would be commenced at midnight at Slattery's hotel, Bloor street, kept by Samuel Drury. Accordingly detachments from No. 5 and No. 6 stations were detailed to interrupt the alleged sport. A hall over the driving shed was the scene of the gathering, and when the police arrived the place was crowded. Some of the officers were posted outside the building to prevent the escape of those inside, while others proceeded to effect an entrance. When this was accomplished the would-be sports stood not on the order of their going but went in a hurry, many of them jumping through the windows in their effort to escape.

The police secured the following names: John Parm, John Seager, Robert Green, John Meaney, James Johnston, Henry Smith, Gus Carruthers, Andrew Henderson, John Thompson, Healia Jenkins, William Blair, Fred Thompson, John Jackson, James Johnston, Thomas Jones, Ed Phair, J. Flanagan, hack driver. It is believed some of these names are fictitious, but the real ones will doubtless be ascertained without difficulty. Seventeen birds were captured in the pit. County Crown Attorney Fenton has drawn up an information against Drury for permitting a cockfight on his premises, and the case will be heard at the police court in a day or so. The others will be summoned for taking part in a cock fight.

ONLY TWENTY CENTS.

An Interesting Suit for Damages at the Civil Assizes.

William Losso is the name of a young man who in March last obtained a suit of clothes from James Sinclair, Yonge street. He failed to pay for them and Mr. Sinclair had him arrested for obtaining goods under false pretenses. He put in twenty-two days in jail waiting his trial at the summer sessions in June last, when he was acquitted. He then commenced an action against Sinclair claiming $2000 damages for false arrest. The case was tried Saturday before Justice Rose and a jury when instead of $2000, Losso was awarded twenty cents damages.

A job lot of needle-worked slipper patterns, only 25 cents per pair, now opened at the Bon Marche.

Death of an Ex-Toronto Policeman.

Samuel Campbell of the Union house received a telegram from Peterboro Saturday night informing him of the death of Charles Follis. Deceased was a member of the Toronto police force from 1859 to 1862, and was considered the strongest man of his day on the force, being a terror to the rowdy element. He was afterwards Grand Trunk policeman at Union station for many years. Mr. Follis was detailed as special policeman to guard the Prince of Wales during his visit to Canada in 1860. Mr. Campbell and other friends leave today to attend the funeral at Millbrook.

Evolution versus Creation.

The platform of Albert hall was occupied last evening by J. Ick Evans. His subject was Evolution versus Creation. Many of the orthodox clergy adhere to evolution, among many others Prebendary Luney of Exeter cathedral. Evolution was taught by St. Augustine and other of the ancient fathers of the christian church. Many thousands of scientific facts verify evolution which is a scientific theory based on a countless number of analysable demonstrable positive facts. The hypothesis of creation recognizes the fact that creation took place according to the order of evolution.

Thieves and Vagrants Jailed.

At the police court Saturday Walter Chick was sentenced to three months in the Central prison for stealing a hand sleigh. Hugh Doran and John Sheehan, vagrants, got three and two months respectively. John Burns, who confessed to stealing 18 pairs of boots from the store of Turner, Vallance & Co., was sentenced to fifteen months in the Central. John Lodge, charged with stealing a couple of pine boards, was handed over to the custody of his parents.

Turfmen in Court.

London v. Smith will be called in the assizes to day. Plaintiff invested $2200 in the Alexander stable, which owned Lloyd Daly and Scalper, both of whom were killed on the track last year. He now seeks to recover this amount from defendant. Mr. Smith claims, however, that Mr. Louden bought the horses and that he merely held them as security for money advanced.

Agriculture and Arts Association.

The following gentlemen have been elected members of the council: No 1 district—D. McKinnon, South Finch; No 2—Ira Morgan, Metcalfe; No. 3—Joshua Legge, Gananoque.

A grand slaughter in dress silks is now going on at the Bon Marche.

Last Year's Complaints Re-Echoed.

Visitors from the States to the Montreal carnival have been badly bled by the Canadians, "Thousands of dollars," says a Montreal correspondent, "are being spent by the Americans, who, in many instances, came but ill prepared to withstand the severity of our winter, and have since their arrival invested heavily in seal and other expensive furs. The game of grab is also being resorted to rather freely, not only by cabdesmen and sleighmen, but also by the proprietors of respectable hotels, who have been guilty in one or two instances of disgraceful attempts at extortion."

A Machine Agent on His Muscle.

John T. Whatmough called Saturday evening on Wm. Thwaites, shoemaker, at 95 Markham street, for money due on a sewing machine. Whatmough was drunk and made himself so disagreeable that the money was refused. He then insisted on taking a pair of boots in payment, but Mrs. Thwaites objected, whereupon the gentlemanly agent struck her. Thwaites came to his wife's rescue and a lively time ensued. Nobody was much hurt but some lamps were broken and five gallons of coal oil spilled, Whatmough's clothing being saturated therewith. The affair resulted in his arrest on a charge of assaulting Mrs. Thwaites.

Sermons by Telephone.

Mr. J. D. Miller, one of the managers of the National telephone company, writes to the Aberdeen Herald as follows: "Sir,—With reference to the leader in your paper on the American article of 'Talmagon Tap,' it ought to be made known to your readers that all that is hoped for in the connection of the Brooklyn tabernacle with the telephone exchange there has already taken place, with brilliant success, in this country. On this company's system, churches in Birmingham and Bradford have been in connection with the exchanges in these towns for two years now. The first connection of a church with a telephone exchange in this country was that of the George square congregational church to Greenock, which I connected up so far back as June 1882, ever since when sermons and the entire services have continued to be served hot each Sunday to a number of private residences in Greenock, and at the same time several in Glasgow—a distance of over twenty-two miles."

FOR THE AMERICA CUP.

A Challenge on Behalf of Two English Yachts.

Two challenges for the America's cup were sent from England on December 6 to the New York Yacht club, the first on behalf of the yacht Genesta, and the second on behalf of the new yacht building for Lieutenant W. Henn, R.N., which he has named the Galatea, after the well-known frigate in which he served for several years on the coast of Canada, etc. These two yachts propose starting for America about the 24th of May, and intend to compete in all races open to them in America. Sir Richard Surton, bart., and a few friends will come out in the Genesta, while Mrs. Henn will, as usual, accompany her husband on board their new craft, and will be the first lady to cross the Atlantic in a racing yacht. After the racing is over in America the Galatea will most probably cruise to the West Indies, Mediterranean, etc. The Cytheria is expected in New York about the 1st of July. Thus there will be three English yachts in America this year.

The owner of Harry Wilkes proposes that a sweepstakes race at $1000 each be arranged between his horse, Maxy Cobb and Phallas, the event to take place during the grand circuit meetings.

It is believed that Phallas will beat 2.12 next season, and it is probable that there will be an early race between him and Maxey Cobb. Phallas' record is 2.13¾, Maxey Cobb's half a second better.

The ice skating records established at Van Cortland lake, Westchester county, Jan. 17, are: 200 yds., 19⅘ sec.; 220 yds., 24¼ sec.; 300 yds., 29⅘ sec., by George Phillips, N.Y.A.C.; 440 yds., 41 sec., by C. Pfaff, jr.

The Stockbridge cup won by Iroquois is held in the New York custom house the same as the Ascot cup won by Foxhall was. Mr. Lorillard has made a protest against paying duty on the identical grounds put forward by Mr. Keene, namely that the cup is a trophy and should be passed duty free.

Harry B. Genet of New York city writes from Indian River, under date of Jan. 25, "Allow me to contribute a little news to your sporting column. Ernest F. Thomas of Hoboken and Barry Gladston of London, Eng., made the largest game bag on record in three days' shooting, consisting of 5 deer, 1 bear, 3 alligators, 1 wild cat, 287 ducks, 63 snipe, 42 coots and 56 pounds of fish.

The man's studious piety idea was evidently only a New Year's resolution.

Charles Rowell writes that as Littlewood has challenged him for another twelve-hour a day race he cannot leave England just now without creating the impression that he is afraid to meet his late antagonist. He will stop in London and try conclusions with Littlewood and all comers at the Aquarium in March or April. Then he will give his thoughts to the pedestrians on this side of the water. He and Littlewood will probably come over for a go-as-you-please of 142 hours in the fall.

The Briggs pigeon tournament was continued on Friday last. A snowbird sweepstakes, 10 birds each, at 18 yards, resulted in Geo. Moffatt getting first prize with a straight ten and a straight three, G. Rogers, who took second prize, tying him in first instance. Bethel was third with 9, and Geo. Briggs fourth. The team shoot for five members from any organized club brought out four teams from the Toronto Gun club (one called the Owls), one each from Dunnville and London. Nest, one and three teams of the Toronto club tied at 40, the Owls coming third with 39 and the Dunnville fourth with 38. The terms were 10 birds each, 21 yards rise.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 1.—It is stated Earl Granville has rejected Fehmi Pasha's proposals relative to Egyptian affairs and that the porte has sent fresh instructions to the latter.

The Hamilton Tollgate.

HAMILTON, Feb. 1.—Saturday night a body of fifteen farmers went out to the obnoxious York street tollgate and ripped it down and also a sort of wood arch which covered the approach to it. The mob were greatly worked up, and it seems as though the plains farmers are bound to have the gate removed by fair means or foul.

MIKE McDONALD'S POWER.

The Methods Chicago's Chief Gambler is Said to Employ in Running Local Politics.

The Chicago Inter Ocean devotes several columns to an investigation into the methods employed by M. C. McDonald, saloon-keeper, gambler and politician, whose influence is said to have largely contributed to the political corruption brought to light there. The Inter-Ocean says:

"McDonald was found at his saloon on Clark street. His manner was that of a manager of large business interests. Half a score of men were waiting to speak to him privately, and they were received in his private office in turn and dismissed in "one-two-three" order, each apparently satisfied with the result of the brief interview. Presently a motley crowd of half a dozen or more entered. They had been arrested in a gambling house the night before and McDonald had become surety for their appearance before a justice of the peace. They had come to report and await orders. McDonald called the roll, and found that one was missing. 'Where is Dave Fuller?' he asked.

"'Skipped out,' answered one of the gang.

"'Hear you,' said McDonald to a professional loafer. 'Your name is Dave Fuller till you've gone into court and pleaded "not guilty" to this charge. I'll see you through all right,' and the improvised Dave Fuller fell into line.

"When the cases were called in the police court McDonald's lawyer demanded a jury. McDonald winked at the constable, and in five minutes six loafers, who had come from the saloon, were sworn in as jurors. The verdict was, of course, 'not guilty.' The reporter interviewed the justice, and was informed that whenever a gambler or professional thief got into trouble he sent for McDonald before he sent for a lawyer. It would be impossible to tell how many times a year McDonald went security for criminals in the justice courts, as in most instances no record was kept of them. As he was understood to be worth at least $250,000, his bond was accepted not only in the justice courts, but in the State and Federal courts as well.

"McDonald is a silent partner in many gambling houses besides the one over his saloon, and also in many saloons and other enterprises. His liability on bonds and recognizances is at all times enormous, and it is doubtful if he himself can tell the exact amount.

"The reporter asked a justice how McDonald was reimbursed for these friendly offices. The justice said that there were other ways besides direct payment in cash by which the bondsman could be reimbursed. Suppose, by way of illustration, that McDonald had become security for 1000 men during the last few years. McDonald in this way puts thousands of men under obligations to him, and they can be relied upon to do any work that he may suggest. Each of these men has a few relatives or pals whom he can control, and in this way Mike McDonald becomes a balance of power in elections. There are hundreds of criminals also, who do not know what day they may need McDonald's assistance, and who are at all times ready to do his bidding as a precautionary measure. Many members of the city council owe their positions to him, and it would be the most natural thing in the world that they should acknowledge their obligations in a substantial way when occasion requires. Even reputable citizens desiring municipal legislation for the public good frequently, as I have reason to believe, have found that the only sure road to success ran through "the store," as McDonald's saloon is called, and have accepted the inevitable."

Poison in the Sacramental Cup.

From the London Times, Jan. 15.

The Sicilian journals report the conclusion of a remarkable trial last week in Catania. Two years have elapsed since a great crime was committed at Corleni. A priest named Failla, on clearing out the pyx and consuming every particle, tasted something bitter. On the termination of the mass he was attacked by severe pains in the bowels, and died in a few minutes in the sacristy. A post-mortem examination proved the unfortunate priest had been poisoned with strychnine, and, on examining the pyx minutely, some particles of strychnine were discovered.

Suspicion fell upon a canon of the church, Gaetano Limoli, who cherished a great hatred against the deceased—a feeling which had recently been much increased by some promotion awarded to him by the archbishop of Syracuse. Limoli had a brother who was a druggist, by whom the shop was often left to the care of the canon, who had thus the means of supplying himself with poison.

Limoli was arrested and consigned to the prison of Syracuse, where he remained for two years. Last week the case was brought before the Camera di Cosiglio (equivalent to our grand jury) of the court of appeal of Catania, when it was decided that for want of proof there was no ground for penal proceedings against the canon. "Meantime, it is beyond doubt," says the Roma, "that the priest Failla died of poison mixed with the particles representing the body and blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ."

The Trial of Mme. Clovis-Hugues.

From the London World.

The trial of Mme. Hugues was about as solemn and dignified an affair as the first performance of a sensational melodrama at the Boulevard theatre; nay, it was even less dignified, inasmuch as at the theatre the entr'actes save the theatre floor from certain accidents which were only too frequent during the terribly long session of Thursday. Never before had such a scandalous scene been witnessed in a French court of justice. The room was invaded by a regular mob of Raffians, intermingled with yellow haired cocottes and rastacouères, who had bought from doorkeepers the privilege of occupying the seats reserved for the jury, the bar and the press. Even the witness box was occupied by spectators, and the judge presided in the attitude of one suffering from colic, for the reason that clusters of spectators hanging over the back of his chair prevented him from sitting up. The court was literally converted into a theatre, and the culprit and the witnesses were treated as actors; nor were they unequal to the situation. Mme. Hugues, in the first place, kept up her role of the remorseless Roman matron, talking in a theatrical manner about her honor, and never betraying the slightest womanly feeling. M. Anatole de la Forge, a deputy, declared that he had known Mme. Hughes for twelve years, and that he "honored her all the more since she had killed Morin." The fact is that all the parties concerned, from Mme. Hugues down, were actuated by the desire to produce an effect, to provoke the applause or astonishment of the audience, to raise a laugh or excite a thrill of emotion.

DOMINION DASHES.

Pickpockets reaped a riched harvest in Montreal last week.

Wm. Flynn of Escott, Ont., died on the 27th ult. at the age of 106 years.

Dr. J. O. McGregor has been appointed an associate coroner for Wentworth county.

The election of T. R. Melville to the mayoralty of Prescott has been protested.

The Oddfellows Relief society for Canada during the year paid five death claims amounting to $10,500. The association has 2703 members; the permanent funds amount to about $8000.

A brutal case of assault is reported at Cornwall. Fred. Cheney, Henry Hyland and James Graig went to the house of a Mr. Daigle and while one of the party kept him quiet the two others dragged his wife into a lane and cruelly abused her. Cheney was subsequently captured and has been committed for trial.

Patrick Sullivan of Lansdowne, near Ottawa, on the G. T. R., was walking along the track a few days ago facing a furious storm. He did not hear the approach of a snow plough behind him, nor those on the engine did not see him. He was thrown as high as the top of the telegraph poles and killed.

There are excellent reasons for the belief that Brockville will soon have two more railroads, the Brockville, Westport and Sault Ste. Marie, and a short line to Ottawa in opposition to the Canadian Pacific. The latter will likely be constructed and operated by the Grand Trunk, which has no connection with the capital except by the Canada Atlantic at Coteau.
