Little Sandy Won at London.

London, June 17.—The feature on the fourth and last day of the London Trotting and Pacing Association meet proved something disappointing, owing to numerous scratches. Only four horses faced the starter in the free-for-all, which was the feature race of the day; but none of the horses were able to make Darky extend himself, and he won in straight heats. The time for the heat of this event is the record for this track. Little Sandy likewise won the 2.25 pace handily. Considerable money was wagered on the 3-5 of a mile run. The public choices were Jack McGinnis and Glenmore; but it was Tholan all the way. Tholan's jockey fouled Glenmore in the second heat and was put back, but finally won easily.

The meeting has been a decided success, the attendance to-day being close to 3000. Summary:

After the English Derby.

In blunt, simple, but vivid words, Kempton Cannon, who rode St. Amant to victory in the race for the English Derby, gives his impressions of the contest. The word picture is as follows:

"I wanted the horse on his toes. He went down in the canter like a bird, but at the post got sleepy again, so I got the man behind to give him a cut with his whip. I hit him myself, too, and that woke him up, and made him attend to his business. When the gate went up he jumped into his bridle and was going well right away up to the top of the hill, where I found I was well in front, so I crossed over and took the rail.

"I then steadied him a little to give him a breather till I got within six furlongs from home, when I set him going again, and kept him going right away down the hill to the Tattenham turn. He came down the hill and round the turn well, but slipped on the wet grass just as he got into the straight, which put him on the wrong leg.

"When I got him balanced again, I took hold of him and drove him home in earnest. I peeped over my shoulder and found the others were nowhere near, and I knew then I had won. I pulled the horse up halfway across the paddock. I could hear the cheering on the course.

"The boy who 'does' him came running down the course to meet him, and when he got to him he kissed him. The boy was as white as a sheet.

"When we went thru the crowd, back to the weighing-room. There were roars from the crowd that went right thru you. I couldn't possibly describe my feelings.

"A little boy came rushing along waving his cap in the air, cheering his lungs out, and got under the inspector's horse and was knocked down, but was up like a rabbit, cheering louder than ever. They slapped St. Amant and patted him all over on the quarters and on the tail, but he took it all in good part, the only thing he objected to being when an open umbrella got shoved into his face."

Arthur Irwin Writes.

Arthur Irwin writes to Charles A. Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the Toronto club, that he has just returned to Newark, after scouring the country for players and that all the big league clubs are looking for men. or instance, Brooklyn is playing a catcher at second and Hanlon says they were never so hard up for good men. Irwin thinks Henry, 2b, and Parker, ss, just signed, will make good. He is also trying out Curley, formerly of Springfield, an infielder. Toronto might have thus been worse off than at present had the advice of one of the directors been taken earlier in the season, to dispose of Dick Harley, whom Chicago, Philadelphia or Brooklyn could now use advantageously.
