SLIGHT TOLL OF LARGE VESSELS BUT 20 SMALLER SHIPS ARE SUNK

Record for Week Is Eight of Over 1,600 Tons—Smallest Since February.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—British merchant ships of 1,600 tons and over sunk by mine or submarine during the last week numbered eight, according to the admiralty report tonight.

Twenty ships under 1,600 tons were sunk and one fishing vessel.

The summary: Arrivals, 2,695; sailings, 2,737.

British merchant ships over 1,600 tons sunk, 8; under 1,600 tons, including 9 previously, 20; fishing vessel, 1.

British merchant vessels unsuccessfully attacked, 6.

The number of vessels of more than 1,600 tons in the smallest sunk by mines or submarines in one week since Germany began her intensive submarine campaign last February, but the number under 1,600 tons is exceeded for any week, but one, since mid-February.

The total number of ships sunk is the largest since the week ending June 24.

The admiralty statement for the week ending September 9, showed twelve British vessels of over 1,600 tons sunk by mines or submarines. That was the lowest mark since the week ending March 10, when thirteen vessels of that category were lost. The greatest number of vessels under 1,500 tons was in the week ending May 5, when 22 went down.

ROME, Sept. 19.—The Italian ship losses for the week ended September 16, an official announcement says, were one steamer under 1,600 tons and one small sailing vessel.

LABOR ORATORS

deleted and the following substituted:

"This congress cannot stultify itself to the degree of either withdrawing or contradicting this year its firm and carefully thought out views on the question of conscription as embodied in the resolutions of 1915 and 1916, neither has the government, by its actions, justified us in recommending a willing submission to the Military Service Act, particularly in view of the fact that up to the present they have not regarded the conscription of wealth as being equally as important as the conscription of manpower in the successful prosecution of the war. We would also point out that no guarantees have been given that the enforcement of conscription of manpower will not be used for the conscription of men for industrial purposes. With such fatal omissions this congress regrets that it cannot unreservedly recommend to the wage workers of the Dominion of Canada that the law be observed; but, on the other hand, would recommend that every effort be made to force the complete conscription of wealth as an essential part of conscription for war purposes and that pending the conscription of wealth no support be given the principle of conscripting men for war purposes."

Bancroft Quizzes.

Delegate Bancroft, Toronto—"What I would like to ascertain is just what does Delegate Farmille infer when he says no support be given, etc.?"

Delegate Farmille—"It means just what it says. That we remain inert on this question."

Delegate Bancroft—"Then you don't propose to actually oppose the law?"

Delegate Farmille—"Your committee practically recommended obedience to the law. We say that we cannot recommend obedience to the law under the present circumstances."

Another Amendment.

At this point Delegate Narcisse Arcand, Montreal, proposed another amendment, seconded by Delegate Arthur Martel, Montreal, as follows: "We recognize that laws passed by a duly elected Government must be observed or democracy would become anarchy, and yet we see no cause to either contradict or withdraw the carefully-thought-out views on conscription as embodied in the resolutions of the 1915 and 1916 conventions of the congress. We therefore recommend that the present Government be petitioned to withhold application of the military service act until after the election of a new Parliament, and that we recommend to all affiliated bodies that they use all their efforts to obtain a pledge from their candidates for Parliament that, if elected, they will immediately vote for the repeal of this measure."

Calls It Rot.

Delegate Cooper said the whole thing was rot. He was strongly opposed to anything that was not opposed in every way to conscription. "We are all hedging, and I would recommend that a special committee be appointed to deal with these amendments. I move that we now take a vote on the report of the committee immediately."

Delegate Cassidy (Montreal)—"What are we voting upon?"

President Watts—"Delegate Farmille's motion is at present on the floor of the house. I would ask you to confine your attentions to this motion in the first instance."

Delegate Sangster (Montreal) urged the adoption of Delegate Farmille's amendment. It seemed to him that the majority of delegates were opposed to the report of the executive committee.

Must Be Careful.

Delegate Cassidy—"Delegate Farmille had to be guarded in his remarks following his resolution, because there is such a thing as a Defence of the Realm Act, and we must all be careful. Regarding the legality of the Government measure, let us say that this Government is depending on force. The bill will do no good unless it is enforced. It would not be the first time in history that mobs have revolted. If the Government wants to treat us like a mob (and that is precisely what it is doing) then the mob must prevail. A certain King of England had his head chopped off by a mob and his head has not yet been stuck on."

Attacks Gompers.

Delegate Cassidy then indulged in some remarks about Gompers and the American Federation of Labor and concluded: "In the event of a general strike being declared, if that happens to be illegal, why then simply declare a general holiday in honor of the battle of the Somme."

Fraternal Delegate Covaleski (American Federation of Labor)—"President Gompers does not get $12,000 a year. He only used to get $3,200, and it is only recently that he was raised to $6,000 per annum."

Two Alternatives.

Delegate Hardy (Nelson, B.C.) — The military law gives us two alternatives: either volunteer for service or take an enforced holiday for five years or less. In my opinion it is nobler to take that enforced holiday than to shed more blood on the fields of Flanders. I support the amendment of Delegate Farmille.

Delegate Knight (Edmonton) — I am utterly opposed to the executive committee's report. It says that if wealth is conscripted we will take no further action to oppose conscription. I am opposed to conscription in any shape or form.

Hits At Returned Men.

Here Delegate Knight related an incident which had happened at a meeting at which he was present, and where returned soldiers broke up the meting. He referred to the soldiers as "hired ruffians."

Delegate King (Toronto) — Who did you call hired ruffians?

Delegate Knight—When I used that term I did not refer to the returned soldiers as a body, or to the Great War Veterans' Association. The language was justified in the case that I refer to.

President Watts then said that some of the boys who had returned from the front were men. Others, he regretted to say, could only be characterized as hired ruffians. This could not be said of returned men in general.

Dean for Conscription.

Declaring he had always been strongly in favor of it, and was not going back on it now, Delegate Dean of London, Ont., came to the support of Delegate Francq on conscription, and said it was the only equitable way. He said now that it was law everyone should abide by it. He had a son who was earning $2,500 a year in the States, and he had been drafted and was now in France. He said in London there are left only about 300 men who will be taken under the first class, the rest having voluntarily enlisted. He said he was a Britisher and a trade unionist, and would fight to the last for labor, but he was also going to abide by the law. He said it was up to labor to remedy its wrongs by electing their own men, and sat down amid some applause.

DEMAND UNEQUAL TO PRODUCE OFFERINGS

Surplus Reported on Square Today—No Changes In Price Occur.

A good variety of produce was presented at the market this morning, a few new seasonable vegetables appearing for the first time this year, and being grabbed up readily by purchasers. A comparatively poor attendance, considering the fine morning, caused a surplus of produce to be left over, as the offerings of vegetables were heavy and the demand slow.

Tomatoes, corn, carrots and potatoes were the big attractions of the day. The former vegetable is in large demand whenever offered. It is conceded that potatoes will not sell at a lower rate than that now in force, and while the low value remains good demand will be shown.

Corn was extremely plentiful at 12c to 20c, but the demand was slow for the first time since its appearance on the market.

Egg plant has been offered for the last two or three days in sparse quantities. The demand for this vegetable is not of the best at any time, but the small quantities offered are generally disposed of before the close of the market.

Fruit, particularly peaches, was in the best of demand and offered in large quantities. Perhaps more peaches appeared for sale than at any previous period of the season. The demand for them was brisk, but despite this a slight and much looked for drop in price occurred, and the 11-quart baskets sold from 75c to $1.25. Plums were not offered or in so brisk a demand as peaches. However, the offering was sold at a fairly fast rate and at unchanged prices.

Thimbleberries appeared among the fruit offerings, selling at the lowest price of the season. The offering of thimbleberries was unexpected, as the seasonable life of that fruit was supposed to have been concluded some days ago. The fruit sold at 15c a box.

A lower range in apples was shown, when some offerings sold at $1.50 a basket. This lowers the predominating prices to between $1.50 and $2.

Cantaloupes of the home-grown variety appeared and were much sought after. They sold at all prices, up to 25c each, the general value being around the 15c mark. However, some of the poorer quality and size sold at 5c.

Eggs sold at 45c a single dozen, and butter brought unchanged prices.

Oats were offered in small quantities at the same high price as that recorded yesterday. Hay was exceptionally abundant, but notwithstanding this fact fodder sold at an unchanged rate, although the demand was a trifle slow.

Live hogs and butchers' cattle remain unchanged, while honey, hides and wool are in fair demand and stationary price.

WALL STREET.

New York, Sept. 20—Wall Street 10:30 a.m.—The demand for stocks was less vigorous at the opening today, but fractionally higher prices were quoted in most instances. Washington reports that the price of copper would be made known during the day resulted in curtailment of operations pending the announcement. Copper shares developed heaviness after a narrow opening, with a decline of 1¾ for Utah. Under the influence of this movement there was a general shading of prices.

Noon.—Renewed professional selling and realizing of profits forced the market generally below yesterday's close. Heaviness of the principal railroad shares had an adverse effect on sentiment. The bears were active on the assumption that yesterday's sharp rise had failed to excite public interest, as there was no fresh buying of consequence. After the shorts had taken in some of their contracts there was no further support for rising prices. Bonds were steady.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

London, Sept. 20.—The stock market developed a more cheerful tendency, with hardening prices in gilt-edged securities, home rails and Argentina and Russian issues on light buying. Mining, rubber and oil shares continued the firmest, but dealings otherwise did not expand.
