PRACTICAL VIEWS ON CHOLERA.

[By Dr. Nelson; Mayor of Montreal.]

We have given many suggestions in regard to personal treatment on the approach of cholera, and in case of its attack; and we have mentioned that Dr. Woolfred Nelson, at present Mayor of Montreal, has published a treatise on the subject. We think we can do no better in relation to the circumstances generally, than to republish his remarks as we find them in the Montreal papers.

Ripe juicy fruits need not be dispensed with, the skins and seeds however should be rejected, but green and unripe fruit must not be partaken of.

None should be taken on going to bed.

If any liquid as ordinary beverage, between meals, is to be indulged in—which, however, is not advisable, unless it be Tea or Coffee, which experience has proved to be very useful—the best are port wine and water, brandy, or spirits, in water. Poor, sour wines, cider, stale beer, and all drinks readily acidified should be eschewed. Let the miserable inebriate be cautious not to invoke these recommendations as a justification for his constant potations.

REMEDIAL MEASURES.—Cholera is a most insidious disease, requiring untiring vigilance. If met at once it is readily subdued, but give it any quarter and it becomes almost invincible.

It can be cured with certain and positive success, if the well proved means are at once resorted to, and for this end the remedies required should be in every family, or at least most easy of access. They are few, cheap and easily procured; consisting mainly of cordial stimulants. Perhaps the safest are Compound Tincture of Lavender, or Camphorated Tincture of Opium, (Paregoric) or the Compound Tincture of Rhubarb, or any of the Aromatic Tinctures; but warming spiced drinks will be very useful. When there is a sensation chilliness, coldness of the hands and feet, or "sinking of the stomach," rumbling of wind, or a disposition of looseness of the bowels, half a teaspoonful of the Tincture of Lavender, or Paregoric Tincture, or a cup of spiced tea, (cinnamon, nutmeg or ginger, &c. &c. (hot and sweetened will quell these premonitory symptoms. This process might be repeated every ten, fifteen or twenty minutes, if the unpleasant feeling do not subside. At the same time the person should go to bed, and get into a gentle perspiration as soon as possible, for to sit up or go about is sure to increase the disposition to diarrhœa, which, of all the distress must be first and at once arrested. Should the tendency to it be sudden, in addition to the articles mentioned above, 10, 15, 20 or 30 drops of Laudanum should be taken, whilst the Physician is sent for, as there is not a moment to be lost, should the sufferer not feel better.

Every family should be provided with a two ounce phial, at least, of the Tincture of Lavender, or of Paregoric, or of the Compound Tinctures of Rhubarb, or of any Aromatic Tincture, as also with one of Laudanum, each being properly labelled, and the word Poison in large letters affixed to the Laudanum phial to distinguish it. At the very outset of the disease, these measures alone frequently arrest it, but should much uneasiness continue, application should be made to the nearest Physician. Every intelligent person being possessed of these articles, the poor should be supplied with them at the expense of the City. Travellers should have some of these phials by them, in order to be prepared against emergencies.

It has been properly stated that "if taken in time and properly treated, the expense for medicines will not exceed a shilling a head for those subjected to treatment."

Let it be well understood, that there are no specifics for this disease, and that like all others, it should be managed according to those rational principles which long and discriminating experience has sanctioned.

Should not the sanitary measures just inculcated prevent the epidemic, they will at least greatly diminish its virulence, and the remedies suggested will, in the great majority of instances, at once arrest its course. The pernicious habit which certain persons have, of taking Seidlitz and other laxative powders, Epsom Salts, Morrison's Pills, and similar Patent Medicines, is to be denounced in the strongest terms. Such practices have sent thousands to a premature grave. Even moderate costiveness should be borne with or relieved by injections rather than run the risk of setting the whole body in commotion, which may prove of a most dangerous nature, and exceedingly difficult to compose. Large draughts of cold, iced, soda or mineral water, should not be indulged in when thirst prevails, and cold drinks should rather be sipped and taken gradually, for, swallowed with avidity, colic, and derangement of the digestive organs, often ensue. Ginger Beer, or Nectar is preferable during times of sickness, to any of the ordinary cooling drinks. Melons and cucumbers are also much used in hot weather as refrigerents, than which nothing is more pernicious. Many lives are lost annually by the use of unripe Melons. Even the most mellow should be taken with great caution, but cucumbers should be tolerated by none. In one word, everything that is taken, whether for food or luxury should be used with much circumspection and moderation.

Although we may be so fortunate as to escape from Cholera this year, yet the above remarks will be found useful in preserving health generally, and will always be found to apply to the invasion of all epidemics. The two following brief extracts from the Registrar General of England, should serve as beacons to Communities, to Governments, and to individuals.

"In all epidemic diseases the mortality is invariably commensurate with the filth and destitution of the inhabitants and the impurities of their abodes."

"Internal sanitary arrangements, and not quarantine and sanitary lines, are the safeguards of nations against epidemic diseases."

☞ NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

In consequence of the calamitous visitation of the Cholera a number of our City Subscribers did not receive their papers last week, and we fear a recurrence of the disappointment will be totally beyond our control. The fact is we find it utterly impossible to induce the carriers to distribute our papers in certain districts. Will those who have not received their papers regularly, be kind enough to call at the Office for a week or two, where they will find their papers preserved for them?

STEAMER TO BOSTON.—It will be seen by advertisement that the steamer Governor, has been placed on the route to Boston, to supply the place of the Admiral. The Governor is a good Boat, in thorough order and repair, and has had new boilers placed in her this spring. Her cabins are spacious and airy, making up 150 berths in the lower, and 38 in the Ladies' apartment, with 21 state rooms in the saloon; and another recommendation is, that the favorite Commander Wood, and the old officers of the Admiral, are in charge.

MAIL OR RATE.—It will likewise be seen by advertisement that the spirited proprietor of this Boat has placed her on the route to Eastport and Portland. The Maid of Erin has undergone extensive repairs and alterations this spring, and her fittings are of the first order, and presents a safe and comfortable means of transit to those visiting Westward. We perceive the fare is reduced, which will be acceptable, and a little wholesome opposition will not be amiss. She is in charge of experienced officers, Captain JOHN LEAVITT being at the head of affairs.

THE BLACK BALL LINE.—The Middleton arrived here on Monday, with about 70 passengers, after a passage of 22 days. There was no sickness during the voyage; but the Board of Health having issued a general order that all Passenger Vessels should be detained 48 hours at the Island, she was not allowed to come up until Wednesday afternoon, and some persons therefore were inclined to suppose that there was sickness on board. The Endeavor which arrived last week, and the Middleton have been remarkably fortunate, few other passenger vessels this season having been free from cholera or ship fever. The following is an extract from Dr. Harding's report:—Freemen.

To the Chairman of the Board of Health.

SIR,—I have to report the ship Middleton inspected at 4 p. m. last evening, from Liverpool, with 70 passengers on board in good health. No sickness nor death occurred on board during the passage. The vessel is detained for 48 hours observation, as per order of the Board relating to Passenger Vessels.

Your most obedient,
G. J. HARDING, M. D.
Health Officer.

Partridge Island,
1st Aug., 1854.

PROCLAMATION BY THE BOARD OF HEALTH!

Handbills were issued this morning by the Board of Health, setting forth the deleterious effects of intoxicating drinks in the present state of the City, with a resolution that a person selling, or giving such should be fined £5 for the first offence, and £10 for the second, and the house closed up.—Then follows the following paragraph:—

"The foregoing Resolution was submitted and favourably considered; but instead of adopting it at present, the Board of Health deem it more advisable to appeal to the humanity of all parties who sell spirits in the City and Country, to refrain from selling or giving any during the prevalence of the present epidemic."

We see as will the resolution "favourably considered" did not pass, simply because it could not have been enforced; neither do we think the recommendation (given by a Board that does not contain a single member of the medical profession) will be regarded with more attention. If liquor is neither sold or given away none can be used by the community generally, and many eminent physicians are of opinion that if a man accustomed to drink brandy should suddenly leave it off, a relaxed state of the system would follow, which would predispose him to take the disease. If the Board would appoint a Committee to test the quality of the liquor offered for sale, and close up the low dens where nothing but smuggled poison (white-eye) is sold, they would do a great deal more good than by issuing silly Proclamations.

PATRIAN'S MAGAZINE.—For the excellent number of this periodical for August, we are indebted to Mr. B. O'Brien. Patrian is frequently styled "The Blackwood of America;" it invariably abounds with the very best specimen of American literature, and ever since the commencement of the work it has been fully recognized among the standard journals of the age.

LIFE AND TIMES OF THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON.—We have received from the Agent in this City, Mr. Hunter, another number of this excellent work, every issue of which increases in interest.

ELECTIONS IN CANADA.

The Quebec Chronicle of the 20th ult. contains a list of 63 members of the Assembly returned, 26 of them being Ministerialists and 37 in opposition.

☞ It is stated in Quebec that Sir Edmund Head will assume the Governor Generalship upon the arrival of the Hon. Mr. Sutton in New-Brunswick

☞ Several articles intended for this day's paper are unavoidably omitted. Reply to Courier on Tariff next week.

☞ Holloway's Pills, a Certain Cure for Stomach Complaints, Indigestion, and Bile.—John Knight, Esq., of Launceston, Van Diemen's Land, informs Professor Holloway, by letter dated March 17, 1853—"That Mrs. Talmen, of Hobart Town, declared to him that Holloway's Pills have been the means of saving her life. She had for a long time an inward disease, which defied the skill of the doctor in Hobart Town, and for two years she gradually got worse. Accidentally meeting with a 'Treatise on the Holloweyian System of Medicine,' she commenced taking Holloway's Pills, and found immediate relief, and by persevering in their use was permanently cured."
