annoy Englishmen by destroying the only possible exception, save Lord Wolseley and Gen. Roberts, to the rule of deadly mediocrity of the generals of England. Warren will be sent to Suakin to get rid of him as a Liberal candidate in the next election, and it is possible that he may make a hit there by contrast with Graham and McNeill. British belief in an eastern war gains ground daily, despite the professed optimism of the Vienna Press. The situation is in a precise state of confusion and complication, which any overt act may clarify.

STOCK RAISING.

[Written for the GLEANER.]

Mr. Edward Atkinson, of Boston, speaking at a recent farmers' meeting in Boston, said that every farmer ought to know the actual cost of producing a pound of beef. He illustrated the importance of this knowledge by referring to the manufacture of cotton cloth, with which he is thoroughly familiar. The proprietors of the great mills estimate, he said, upon the cost of a yard of cotton cloth down to the one-hundredth part of a cent, and it is only because they do this that they are able to make cloth at a profit in these days of low prices. It is of course manifest that if it costs a farmer seven cents a pound to raise his beef and he only gets six cents for it, he is losing money unless the manure from the animals makes up the difference. Clearly it is important that a farmer who is raising beef, and every farmer raises more or less of it, should know first what stock can be got ready for market in the soonest possible time, or if one kind takes longer than another, whether it pays to devote the extra time and of course the extra feed. Then suppose one breed will be fit for marketing at two years and six months and another not for a year later, he should know whether it paid better to keep the latter than the former. Then he should know in feeding young cattle for the butcher whether the course he proposed to adopt was likely to produce flesh or growth. He should know which kinds of foods would produce a given amount of beef in a given time and whether it would pay him better to use those which took the longer or the shorter time. Suppose for example that by the use of imported food he could make beef 20 per cent. faster than he could by using food of his own raising, he ought to know whether it pays to use the imported food and get his beef in the shorter time. He ought to know how he could best utilize the manure of his animals so as to get the most fertilizing properties out of it. In fact he should be able to say "I have so many pounds of live beef, or so many pounds of slaughtered beef and so many pounds of hide, as the case may be, with so much a pound and it cost me just so much a pound to raise it, and I have besides so many cords of manure, worth so much a cord." It is evident that if a farmer kept his accounts in such a manner that he could give an accurate synopsis of the result of the feeding of any particular animal, he would have to keep a close watch over every stage of the process, and would be able to detect where he had made any mistakes, if he had made any, and in what particulars he had been successful. In this way, that is by a close watch such as would be necessary in the keeping of such an account as we have indicated can a farmer hope in a country like the New England States or Eastern Canada to make stock raising profitable.

MR. BLAKE'S SPEECH.

The Government organs are disturbed over Mr. Blake's speech. Judging the Liberal leader by themselves, and, no doubt, having fresh in their minds the Mail's appeal to arms and threats of smashing, reconquering, and exterminating, they expected an appeal to the passions of the people. Instead of this they read a calm and honorable appeal to the judgment and patriotism of the country. There was no attempt to catch votes, no attempt to excite local or race jealousies, but simply a dignified, statesmanlike utterance of principles which must obtain in Canada, or else the Union will fall to pieces. Hence the organs have begun to misrepresent what he said.

SIR GEORGE STEPHEN, BART.

The title mill on the other side of the water continues to turn out grist, the latest addition to the roll of belettered dignitaries being Mr. George Stephen, Receiver General of Canadian loans. This is not his recognized title, we know, but, as his principal business for the last few years has been to absorb all the money the country could raise, he ought to have the honor of a distinct official position. And he has been made a baronet. This is also very well. If we have to tax ourselves to make one or two people rich we are glad to know that our self-sacrifice meets its just reward. The people of Canada have given Mr. Stephen the fortune with which to found a family, and the Imperial Government has given him a title to hand down to his sons. Thus every thing is lovely.

Servia and Greece are conspiring against Bulgaria.

Five hundred cigarmakers of New York are on strike.

It is reported in Ottawa that Speaker Kirkpatrick will be offered the Lieut. Governorship of Ontario.

The consumption per head of spirits in Scotland is fivefold what it is in England, but then the Scotch keep the Sabbath better.—[Sunbeams.

One of Boston's oldest citizens is Mr. Joseph Hay, who celebrated his ninety-sixth birthday yesterday, at his home on Eliot Street, in the house built by him sixty-five years ago, or before Boston became a city.—Post.

For the encouragement of our own gas company, we would inform them that in London gas is furnished at the rate of 65 cents per 1000 feet yet the companies pay dividends of 12 per cent. In Brussels the price is 85 cents per 1000 feet.

The recent cold spell was the longest and severest ever felt in Florida. The loss in oranges on the trees according to Capt. Ives, manager of the Florida Fruit Exchange, is $1,000,000. The loss to the vegetable crop is immense, some men having sixty and a hundred acres killed.

Lord Tennyson, in his new volume, republishes his poem, "Hands All Round," but he excludes from it his friendly references to the United States, and gives instead praise to Canada. When the intending emigrant looks to the last volume of Tennyson for guidance he will find that Canada is the place to move to.

Nicholas D'Eon, of Pubnico, recently killed a cow with one blow of his fist. A man had a cow which he wanted to kill. Mr. D., who happened to be there, said: "I've a mind to strike her." Mr. D., who is termed a strong man, struck her once with his fist. She fell down and did not get up again. Beat that if you can King George.—Yarmouth Herald.

The London police authorities have made elaborate arrangements for the protection of the person of the Queen on on the occasion of the opening of Parliament by Her Majesty. A large force of detectives has been assigned to the duty of guarding the royal party. Precautionary measures to be taken will be more vigorously than ever before enforced.

A young Englishman named Joseph Ernest Taylor Williams, who came to Canada some months ago, took a position on the Montreal sanitary police. When the small-pox ceased his and others' services were dispensed with. Being out of employment he ran up a bill of $25 for board. On being asked on Saturday last for the money, he said he would borrow it and pay in the evening. Instead of doing so he got the loan of a revolver and went out to the side of Mount Royal and shot himself. A letter was found upon him giving his full name and that of his father, who is a druggist in Manchester, England. Deceased was well educated, having studied at Victoria College, Manchester, for the medical profession, but had not finished his course. In the letter he said: "I have done what I know to be wrong, and have brought disgrace on myself, and death is preferable to disgrace to me."

NEWS SUMMARY.

ATHENS, Jan. 17.—The ministry threatened the king that they would resign unless he assented to an alliance with Servia and the maintenance of the army on a war footing.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The ship Hago, from Liverpool reports: January 5th at one p m, passed a large ship on fire; had burned near to the water's edge; nothing to be seen of the crew.

LONDON, Jan 17.—A despatch from Belgrade says the Servian government refuses to disband its forces on the ground that it desires to be protected against surprises.

Greece has refused to disarm.

BELFAST, Jan. 18.—A great meeting, under the auspices of the loyal and patriotic union, was held here to-day. A resolution was adopted protesting against the passage by Parliament of any measure granting Home Rule to Ireland.

OTTAWA, Jan. 18.—The Department of Indian Affairs here deny that there is any foundation for the sensational stories which have been put in circulation regarding the uprising of Indians in the North West Territories. The Government at present anticipate no further trouble, although every precaution is being taken to prevent any depredations being committed on the ranches, which a few of the disaffected Indians have shown a disposition to raid.

YONKERS, N Y, Jan. 16.—A small wooden building, loosely thrown together, in which were 250 rounds of dynamite stored in a frozen state, at shaft No. 13, at the new Croton aqueduct at Ardsley, Westchester county, exploded at 12:20 yesterday morning. No one was seriously hurt. Flanagan & Co., the contractors, estimate their loss at between $8,000 and $10,000. The shock of the explosion broke the window panes at Dobb's Ferry, two miles distant and all along the river as far north as Peekskill and south to Yonkers window glass suffered.

A Young Girl Buried Alive.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Jan. 18.—In the early part of last week the people of this place were shocked by the announcement of the sudden death of a girl named Collins while playing on the street with her schoolmates. The body was moved from where it had been buried to the family plot, and the parents wishing to view the remains had the coffin opened, when to their horror they discovered that a dreadful struggle must have taken place after burial. The shroud had been torn into shreds, the knees were drawn up to the chin, one of the arms was twisted under the head and the features bore evidence of dreadful torture—unmistable proofs that life was not extinct when the interment occurred.

Trading a Wife.

PARIS, Jan. 13.—A curious story comes from Alsace. A grasping peasant, who had grown tired of his wife, went to a neighbor the other day and offered her for sale. After some haggling the bargain was struck and the wife was traded away for a fat oxen and 200 marks. The ox was sent round the same night, but, on reflection, the purchaser repented his bargain, nnd despite the indignant protests of the husband drove the beast home again. Finding himself thus again saddled with a helpmate, the peasant made the best of a bad job and begged his wife's pardon. She forgave him.

Seasonable Rhymes.

UNHAPPY MAN.

Who is this man with haggard face,
Who groans and sighs and tears his hair
And up and down his room doth pace
With wild distraction in his air?
Is conscience gnawing him within,
Is he to grim remorse a prey,
Doth some unexpiated sin
Sit heavy on his soul to-day?
No, he's a poet gentle, mild,
A man from evil passion free,
Who never harmed man, woman, child,
Or on a worm trod needlessly.
To-day he'd write—no thoughts will come;
No web of fancy can he weave:
His boy is beating on the drum
He bought for him on Christmas eve.

SEASONABLE ADVICE.

The season's here for storms of snow;
When walking through the town.
Beware the sudden avalanche
That quickly slideth down!

At midday when the whitened roof
The solar warmth receives,
Beware the glittering icicle
Which openeth the pores!

A SENSIBLE GIRL.

Behind a prancing span they go,
Their hearts with happiness aglow
Although their ear-tips tingle;
The air is crisp, and bright the day,
And blithely merrily the sleigh
Bells jingle.

Along the winding road they skim
The maiden sits quite close to him,
In fact could not sit snugger;
A girl of wit and sense is she—
She drives and leaves him both arms free
To hug her. [Boston Courier.

FUNNY SAYINGS.

"Well! If this isn't the most peculiar accident ever I see!" and the old lady's spectacles dropped down her throat and almost choked her. "What, grandma, what?" "Train of cars thrown from the track by a defective frog. And yet it don't say nothing about how bad the animal was hurt. Smashed, may be!"

Fenderson—"It makes me mad to think what a fool I made of myself this evening. Wonder what they will think of me?" Fogg: "My dear boy, don't fret yourself. It's only your imagination. I couldn't see that you acted in any way unusual.

A little Scotch boy, on his being rescued by a bystander from the dock into which he had fallen, expressed great gratitude, saying: "I'm so glad you got me oot. What a lickin' I wad have frae my mither if I had been drooned."

Mr. Blackfriar (just from London)—"Yawr Americanisms are most perplexing, yaw know. What on earth is a 'big bug' and a 'drop' letter? Yawr a'ed of us thare, yaw know; we've no 'drop' letters in England." Miss Kate—"I thought H was a drop letter in England."

If a purely charitable institution were to distribute $54,800 to the victims of misfortune amongst us the circumstance would challenge the admiration of the civilized world. The greatest misfortune that can befall a family is the loss of the bread-winner by death. At this moment the Dominion Safety Fund Life Association of this city has poured $54,000 into such homes,—not through humiliating charity, but through the unselfish devotion and business prudence of the deceased.
