DECISION FOR TIM CALLAHAN

Ole Olson Defeated After Clean and Clever Battle That Went the Scheduled 20 Rounds.

PHILADELPHIAN FORCED THRUOUT.

Wildey Won From King and Lawless Stopped Smith in the Preliminaries.

Tim Callahan of Philadelphia won the decision from Ole Olson of Chicago in a 20-round bout at 124 pounds.

Jim Lawless stopped Billy Smith in the third round of an eight-round bout at 135 pounds, both of Toronto.

Ed Wildey of Toronto got the decision over Tom King of England in the third round of a five-round bout at catchweights.

Referee—J. R. Bennett of Toronto.

Timekeepers—Alf. Russell and John Roach.

The inaugural show of Crescent Athletic Club's fall boxing season attracted a good crowd to the Bijou Theatre Saturday night. The night was hot, but the building was not uncomfortably warm, tho the suit, waist was much in evidence. For a starter the show was a good one, and the numerous spectators were perfectly well satisfied with the three bouts. The preliminaries furnished the amusement of the evening, while the main contest was easily one of the cleverest and cleanest batties ever seen in Toronto.

Tim Callahan of Philadelphia was given the decision over Ole Olson of Harry Gilmore's Chicago string, at the end of 20 rounds. Callahan earned the verdict by crowding Olson from beginning to end. He kept on top of the Swede all the time, but the beautiful defensive work of Olson nullined the greater portion of Callahan's efforts, and made what at first appeared to be a one-sided mill the evenest thing imaginable. Callahan had the advantage in reach, height and weight over Olson. He towered over his sturdy opponent, and consequently the sympathy of the majority of the spectators was with Olson. There was a difference in weight of six pounds. The men weighed in before the club officials in the afternoon. Olson was under the required weight—124 pounds—tipping the scales at 122½. Callahan went 128½, and turned over his $30 forfeit to Olson, who accepted it, and consented to go on and box.

Gilmore's protege is a sturdily-built young fellow, and boxes like all Chicago scrappers, with several different styles. When the men first got together he assumed a crouching position, with his arms covering his head, which was well down. He changed this for another posture in a short time, leaning his body from the waist far back, with his hands stretched in front of him. Then again he would straighten up and box, while seemingly standing on his toes, a la Terry McGovern. His blocking was his strong feature, tho. He blocked away from him and knocked Callahan's strongest punches aside as if they were mere taps. It appeared as tho he anticipated Callahan's blows, and was in position to stop them even before Tim had cut them loose.

Callahan went after Olson from the gong, and kept crowding him all thru the bout. The Chicago man did very little leading, except in the last few rounds, and Callahan, who is always a busy fighter while in the ring, did all the forcing and leading. Callahan used a left for the face and a right for the body, varying this by sending the right across to the head occasionally. He was very shifty, but had little need for defensive tactics, owing to Olson's non-aggressiveness.

Callahan had as seconds Jimmy and Tommy Bannon of the Toronto Baseball Club, and his business manager, Mahon. Olson was looked after by Harry Gilmore, Mike Moriarity and John Foley.

Betting was brisk all day Saturday, and took a wonderfully lively turn at the ringside. Even money ranged during the contest, while thruout the day bets were made at 2 to 1 on Callahan down to even money.

Callahan's Straight Lefts.

Olson opened the proceedings with a rush, which did no damage. Then he settled down, and Callahan commenced to throw in straight lefts. Olson blocked finely, but Callahan reached him with left to the nose and then another on jaw. Olson got to Callahan's face with a right and covered his body with his elbow, stopping a number of hard rights. In the second round Callahan used his right on Olson's body to good effect, tho Ole blocked a lot of the punches. In a hot mix-up Olson landed a heavy left on the body. In the third Callahan continued to crowd, Olson showing brilliant defence. Towards the close of the round Olson sent a right to the body and then whipped in a right and left on Callahan's head. In the fourth Olson side-stepped a rush by Callahan and the latter slipped to his knees. The Quaker City man fell down again in the fifth. When he got up they exchanged rights and lefts. Olson ripped in a hard right upper-cut on Callahan's body, his attempt for the jaw being blocked. The sixth and seventh were Callahan's. In the eighth, near the end of the round, Olson let fly a left for the stomach and Callahan knocked it down. The blow landed low and Callahan yelled, "oh." He claimed a foul, but as it was purely unintentional Referee Jack Bennett refused to allow it. Olson ducked when Callahan rushed in the ninth, and the latter sat on his back. Callahan persisted in jabbing with his left, following with the right to the body in the tenth and eleventh. Olson's best punch was a cocking upper-cut to the face. Callahan hit low in the twelfth and was cautioned by the referee. Olson brightened up in the thirteenth and in the fourteenth rushed Callahan with a right to the jaw, a left to the chest, a left on the neck and a good right on the jaw. Both used their rights in the fifteenth. Olson straightened Callahan with a straight left jolt in the sixteenth. The Quaker knocked Olson's guard down with his left and crossed the right on the jaw repeatedly. "I'll bet $25 even on Olson," shouted Harry Gilmore and a spectator took him up. The seventeenth was Callahan's. He got home with his right hand on Olson's body. Gilmore sent Olson after Callahan in the eighteenth, but the latter retained the lead. Olson used his hands at close quarters.

The nineteenth was lacking in excitement. Callahan was wary of his opponent and Olson looked in vain for an opening. Callahan put a hard right swing on Olson's neck at the bell. Callahan opened the twentieth and final round with a left to the head. Olson countering on the ear. Olson tried to chop with both hands and Callahan seemed tired. The Chicagoan hooked the left up to the nose and then chopped Callahan over the eye. Olson rushed and Callahan met him with a straight left, and Olson slipped to his knees. Olson put a left on cheek and followed with a right on the side of the head. They were sparring at the bell.

"Gentlemen," shouted Referee Bennett, "you have seen one of the best and cleverest fights ever held here. Callahan is the winner." The decision met with general favor, tho Olson had a few loyal friends who called loudly for their favorite.

It was announced that Dave Sullivan had challenged the winner for next Saturday night.

The first preliminary brought together Tom King, the Englishman, and Ed. Wildey of this city. They were scheduled to box five rounds at 138 pounds. It was more of a wrestling match. Neither boxer was burdened with too close an acquaintance with the fine points of the hit-and-get-away game. They wrestled and pushed each other about the ring with Wildey the chief offender. Finally King tired of Wildey's clinching in the third and banged him when he tried to hold on again. Referee Bennett thereupon stopped the fight and gave Wildey the decision. Wildey's nose bled in the first round and the claret started to flow from King's nose in the second.

Jim Lawless, the heavy-hitting lightweight, whose victories before the Crescent Club have always been knockouts, scored another in the main preliminary of eight rounds, when he beat Billy Smith, another local boxer, into helplessness in three rounds. This was a funny bout to watch, and the spectators laughed till their sides ached. The pair slugged each other vigorously and in the second round a good punch would have put both out. Lawless battered Smith about till finally Smith buried his glove in Lawless' stomach. The blow weakened Lawless immensely, but the two, tho almost gone, fought on till the bell ended the trouble. In the third Lawless went after Smith, and with right and left swings beat him to the ropes at the back of the stage. Smith hadn't strength to crawl out of the way, and he stood for Lawless' punches until Referee Bennett stopped the fight.

EXCITEMENT IN FLATBUSH.

Almost a Spill in Feature Event at Sheepshead, Ballyhoo Bey Winning by a Head.

CLAIM OF FOUL DISALLOWED.

Hungarian, With 120 Pounds Up, Almost Beat the Light-Weighted Looram at Detroit.

New York, Sept. 1.—Ballyhoo Bey and Tod Sloan duplicated their success in the Futurity one week ago by winning the coveted Flatbush Stakes to-day, the feature of the card at Sheepshead Bay. Tommy Atkins, the odds-on favorite, was second, and only beaten a head, and at the weights was unquestionably the best horse in the race. An unfortunate incident marred the event, which had a direct bearing on the outcome. Only four horses started, and the race was conceded to be a duel between the Whitney and Keene candidates, Ballyhoo Bey and Tommy Atkins. They were sent off on the second break to a good start, and Smile and Ballyhoo Bey went out to make the running, but not more than a length separated the four for the first half-mile. At this point Sloan took his mount back, so that Smile showed in front a neck before Tommy Atkins, who was the same distance before Alard Scheck and Ballyhoo Bey. They came into the stretch taus, necks apart, with Smile on the rail and Ballyhoo Bey on the outside. When straightened out and almost at the last furlong pole, a bad mix-up occurred, which, fortunately, did not result in a serious accident. Smile swerved out and Ballyhoo Bey bore in on the other two, and for a second the crowd on the grand stand held its breath, expecting to see one, if not all, go down in a heap. This did not happen, but the favorite was knocked out of his stride. Spencer had to pull up, losing three or four lengths. By this time the tangle was straightened out, Sloan had rushed Ballyhoo Bey to the front, and was settling down and riding him out with hands and heels. When Spencer got Tommy Atkins going again, he set sail for the flying leader, who was some three or four lengths in front, and with whip and spur rode a desperate finish. Foot by foot the game Tommy Atkins crept up, until it was only two lengths, then one length, then a neck, but the finish line was too close, and amidst the wildest excitement the judges were passed, with Ballyhoo Bey a head in front. Alard Scheck was third, one and a half lengths away. Spencer claimed a foul, but it was not allowed, altho the stewards had all four jockeys in the stand before giving their decision. The feeling was divided as to who was responsible between Smile and Ballyhoo Bey, and it looked from the stand as if both were partly to blame.

Close Finishes at Detroit.

Detroit, Sept. 1.—The sport at Highland Park this afternoon was exciting enough to suit the most exacting. The finishes in five of the six events resulted in hard drives, the winner in four of them being out to the last ounce to land the long end of the purses by the smallest of margins. Only one favorite won during the afternoon, Alea being the successful choice. She outclassed her field, and won in a romp.

Last Day at Quebec.

Quebec, Sept. 1.—To-day was the second and last day of the annual races of the Quebec Turf Club. Thousands of spectators were on the grounds. Nearly every seat was taken on the grand stand.

The first event on the program was an open flat, for a purse of $150, out of which $25 to second horse, about 1¼ mile, handicap. Alhambra came home closely followed by Lizzie, and Alcides came third. Time 2.15 1-5.

The second event was a hunters' steeplechase, open, for purse of $150, out of which $25 to second, or a piece of plate, heavy handicap, about 2 miles, overweight allowed. It was Wild Heather II., King Top, Ell Kendig, Ruff and Red Top. Four of the jockeys fell from their mounts, one after the other, but they were not hurt. Ell Kendig, belonging to Col. Sewell, won the race by a half length from Ruff. Wild Heather II. was third. Time 5.18 3-5.

The third race was called St. Foye Steeplechase, open, for purse of $200, out of which $35 to second, $15 to third, handicap, about two miles. It was won by Lt.-Col. Sewell's Bob Salter, Waterproof, belonging to W. Delaney, second, and Wild Trot third. Time 5.05 1-5.

The fourth race, an open flat, for a purse of $150, out of which $25 to second, handicap, about 1⅛ miles, was run by three horses of six mentioned on the program. Red Monk, Glover Vendig and Bonnet Fox. Two protests kept the race undecided for more than half an hour. It was finally decided as it had been finished, Glover Vendig 1, Red Monk 2, Bonnet Box 3.

The fifth race was, as usual, a consolation race, handicap, for a purse of $100, out of which $15 to second, for horses that had not won first money at this meeting: about one mile. Five horses ran in this last, very interesting and closely contested race—Waterproof, My Lizzie, Alcides, Quebec and V. Chateauvert's Bonnet Box. Bonnet Box won first prize, My Lizzie second, Alcides third. Time 1.53. The president, Mr. V. Chateauvert, was warmly congratulated on his success in this last race.

Races Begin on Saturday.

An extraordinary demand for stabling is being made upon the secretary of the autumn meeting. Never has the course been looking in better condition than it is at present and the track has never been in such good shape.

The advance of Canadian stables has been very marked and the colors of Messrs. Carruthers and Shields, William Hendrie, J. E. Seagram and others can hold their own on any track or course in America. It is altogether improbable that the cracks of these stables, such as Martimas, Advance Guard and Far Rockaway, will be present, altho some of them have been entered in the handicaps, but there will be plenty of horses of high calibre and some which will give an argument to any high-bred horse in racing to-day.

A very pleasant feature of this meeting will be the social side, as everybody will be returning from their summer wanderings and the Woodbine course will be a delightful meeting place. The meeting is held two weeks earlier this year, and will give ample opportunities for the ladies to appear in a variety of colors before the chilly autumn winds set in.

The game at the Island Saturday between Syracuse and Toronto was one which made the old-timers think of their early days. Pfannmiller and Smink were opposed to Duggleby and Roach in the battery work, and from the start the play was of
