TENDERS.

SAULT STE. MARIE CANAL.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned, and endorsed "Tender for Booms," will be received at this Office until noon on Saturday, 12th January, 1895, for the construction complete in place in the canal of 4000 lineal feet of a "Four Log-Boom."

Plans and specifications of the work can be seen at the office of the Chief Engineer of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, where forms of tenders can be obtained on and after January 10, 1895.

In the case of firms there must be attached the actual signatures of the full name, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the same, and, further, an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $150 must accompany the tender; this accepted cheque must be endorsed over to the Minister of Railways and Canals, and will be forfeited if the party tendering declines entering into contract for the work at the rates and on the terms stated in the offer submitted. The accepted cheque thus sent in will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted. By order,

J. H. BALDERSON, Secretary.

Department of Railways and Canals, Ottawa, January, 1895.

PARIS RIPE FOR REVOLUTION.

THE POLITICAL CRISIS MAY END IN THE REPUBLIC'S OVERTHROW.

The Orleanist Pretender Carefully Watching the Course of Events—Casimir-Perier's Message of Resignation Received With Socialist Cheers—His Action Commented Upon.

Paris, Jan. 16.—Although the regulations forbid vendors going out with their wares before 8 o'clock in the morning, an ordinance which includes prohibition of the sale of newspapers by criers, the newsboys were allowed this morning to begin their sales before daybreak. The streets were early filled with yelling boys, whose cries informed many persons for the first time of the resignation of the President. The announcement came like a thunderbolt to thousands of persons, and everyone was asking the reason for the President's sudden and seemingly unnecessary action. Various reasons were given by the newspapers, but none of them seemed to satisfy any great number of the people. Some newspapers declared that Casimir-Perier had become physically unable to resist the impulse to resign. He has, it is alleged, been subjected to most extreme nervous tension ever since he became prominent as a candidate for President, and it is asserted by several papers that after his election he flung himself upon a couch, completely giving way to the intense nervous strain put upon him. When M. Burdeau, the President of the Chamber of Deputies, died, Casimir-Perier was deeply affected, and it is said he has not since recovered from the shock, which the announcement of his friend's death gave him.

The Message to the Chamber.

The Chamber of Deputies was called to order by the President, M. Brisson, at 3 o'clock. M. Brisson announced the receipt of a message from President Casimir-Perier, which he read as follows:

I have never dissimulated from myself the difficulties of the task which the National Assembly imposed upon me. I had foreseen them, but, although one does not refuse the post in a moment of danger, one only retains the position with dignity under the conviction that he is serving the country. The President of the Republic, deprived of the means of acting, can only find confidence in reliance upon the nation. Without this his situation is powerless. I do not doubt the good sense and justice of France, but public opinion has been misled. Neither my 20 years' devotion to Democracy nor my deep attachment to the Republic has sufficed to convince all Republicans of the sincerity and ardor of my political faith, nor to disabuse my adversaries, who believe or affect to believe, that I will make myself an instrument of their passions and their hopes. During the past six months a campaign has been conducted of defamation and insults against the army, the magistrature—(here a Socialist shouted, "And rightly")—Parliament and an irresponsible chief of State. This liberty of fomenting Socialist hatred continues to be called liberty of thought. The respect and ambition I have for the country will not permit me to allow that certain men may every day insult the best servants of the Fatherland (At this point the reading was interrupted by loud noises among the Socialist Deputies) and he who represents France in the eyes of foreign nations. I cannot resign myself to compare the weight of moral responsibility resting upon me with the importance to which I am condemned. Perhaps I shall be understood if I affirm that constitutional fictions cannot silence the demands of political conscience. Perhaps, by abandoning my functions, I shall have traced their duty to those who are still preoccupied with the dignity of office, and who have a care for the good name of France before the world. Unhangingly faithful to myself, I remain convinced that reforms can be carried out with the active concurrence of a Government which is resolved to assure respect for the laws, an determined to ensure the obedience of their subordinates, and group them all in common action for the common aim. I have faith, despite the sadness of the present moment, in France's future progress, and in the future of Social justice.

"I lay upon the table of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, my resignation of the functions of President of the French republic. (Signed) J. P. P. Casimir-Perier.

A Babel of Comments.

At the conclusion of the reading there arose a babel of comments, among which M. Fabre was heard to exclaim: "So much the worse for him."

M. Garran de Balsean shouted: "It is desertion of the republic," and the members of the Left cried in chorus, "Vive la Republique." The message was variously criticized in the lobbies after the adjournment of the Senate and Chamber, and the opinion was generally expressed that M. Casimir-Perier had given a coup de grace to the present system, whereby the President of the republic is made irresponsible. It is believed that the irresponsibility of Presidents is a thing of the past, and the resignation of M. Casimir-Perier will probably cause other radical changes in the constitution.

The Chamber adjourned after a sitting which lasted only ten minutes. As the members dispersed the Socialists raised an uproar, shouting "Vive Revolution Sociale," whereupon the other parties replied, each with its own war-cry.

Gone, Never to Return.

A manifesto issued by the Socialist deputies says: Casimir-Perier goes, never to return. He is vanquished by Socialism. He departs in order to avoid the battle with the reactionists. His weakness of character has overthrown him. He is killed by the corruption of the regime of which he was the head, and defeated by the intrigues of the post of his own council. It is in dishonor such as his flight that capitalistic society will perish.

His Action Condemned.

The newspapers strongly condemn the action of the President in abandoning his post at this moment.

The Journal Des Debats says: History will explain Casimir-Perier's retirement. It remains to be seen whether the act will be justified.

The Gaulois describes the President's action as desertion.

The Figaro says: If the President persists in his deplorable resolution, Europe will judge him as severely as France does.

The Matin says the President ought to have dissolved the Chambers instead of resigning his office.

France Would Prefer Royalty.

London, Jan. 16.—The Pall Mall Gazette says: France is now in the throes of her most menacing crisis since the downfall of the Second Empire. We do not blame Casimir-Perier. The republic has proved sterile and futile. It has produced administrative flabbiness. France would prefer an effective autocracy, but where is the pretender? The Napoleons are invisible, the Count de Paris is dead and the Duc d'Orleans is very young and plorably indiscreet.

The Globe says: Possibly M. Perier

He Also Added the Words Perjurer and Villain, So the Average Was $1 Per Epithet.

In the Civil Assizes yesterday George W. Johnson was plaintiff in a suit for $10,000 damages against John Ewart. The case was tried before, a verdict being given for the defendant. This verdict was set aside and a new trial granted. The alleged offence consisted in making statements defamatory of Johnson's character. The words which constituted the offence were spoken in Spruce-street on Sept. 21, 1892, in the presence of Johnson and several others, and were: "You are a perjured villain and I can put you behind the bars. You are a forger and I can prove it." The jury gave the plaintiff a verdict for $3.

HON. ED. BLAKE CONTRADICTED.

Accused of Practising Statesmanship at the Expense of Truth.

London, Jan. 16.—(Telegram cable)—In The Times to-day Mr. William O'Brien, M.P., gives his version of the transaction concerning Lord Tweedmouth's cheque for £2000, which, according to common report, that nobleman, then lt. Hon. Edward Marjoribanks, donated to the Home Rulers. Mr. O'Brien gives the story in straight contradiction to the story told by Hon. Edward Blake.

The Irish Daily Independent, the organ of the Redmondites, says that it prefers to believe O'Brien's story to that of Blake, and goes on to say that Mr. Blake is endeavoring to practice statesmanship at the expense of truth.

WANTED LING TO SKIP OUT

A LAWYER CHARGED WITH TAMPERING WITH A WITNESS.

Thomas Brown, a Brantford Barrister, Charged With Seeking to Spirit Away Louis Ling, the Principal Witness in the Hartley Murder Trial—Ling Three Hours Under Examination.

Woodstock, Jan. 16.—The preliminary trial of Thomas Brown, barrister-at-law, Brantford and Norwich, was commenced in the police court this morning before P. M. G. C. Field. The crown was represented by Mr. F. R. Ball, Q.C., and Mr. Brown by Mr. S. G. McKay, assisted by Mr. Charles E. Ojes. Government Detective Rogers, who had worked up the case, was also in attendance.

Ling was looking remarkably well. He wore a dark suit and white shirt front and a light necktie. He was clean shaved and had his mustache trimmed and pointed.

The charge was that Thomas Brown of the village of Norwich, in the said County of Oxford, within the space of six months past, to wit in the months of September and October, 1894, in the said Township of Norwich, did unlawfully attempt to abstract and prevent and defeat the ends of justice by attempting to prevent one Henry Louis Ling from attending as a witness at a certain trial at Brantford, County of Brant, against one Maria Hartley on a charge of murder.

Mr. Brown entered a plea of not guilty.

Ling in the Box.

Ling must have been in the box for at least three hours. He said he lived in Hawtrey. He saw Thomas Brown for the first time on Oct. 11. He called about 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Mr. Brown said: "I want to give you advice and I want you to take it. I think the best thing you can do is to leave the country and go to Detroit or anywhere out of this country. You are just as free as any man. Nobody can touch you." He then said he thought it best for him to leave and not appear at the Hartley trial in Brantford. Brown had asked him if he was going to Brantford as a witness. He told him that this was his intention. Brown then said the best thing he could do was to say that he had got excited and did not know what he was doing or saying and that he had better go and state that what he had sworn to was false. Ling replied that he would not do anything of the kind. He told the truth and he was going to tell it if he died in his tracks. Brown then said: "I think you had better go Henry and if you will go first to my office there will be money in it if you leave." He replied, "No." Brown then said if he could not persuade him to go he might just as well go himself. Brown had told him that his was the only evidence that would convict her. He said if he were willing for Mrs. Hartley he would try and make him break his oath. He was at that time bound over to appear as a witness in the case and afterwards give his evidence. That was the first time and only time he had seen Brown.

Ling Cross-Examined.

Cross-examined by Mr. McKay. He had never been in Michigan, but he would not say that he did not want to go the year that Hartley was poisoned. A young man wanted him to go to Michigan. If the young fellow had gone to Michigan he would have gone, but that was seven or eight months before the trial.

His Talk With Rogers.

Continuing the cross-examination, Ling said he was arrested and put in jail in connection with the Hartley poisoning case. He saw Detective Rogers in the jail. He did not know how many times Rogers had spoken to him on the matter, as having seen Rogers once since the Hartley trial. It was at his place. He told Rogers about the conversation with Brown only once, but he did not know whether it was at home or at Brantford. It was before the Hartley trial. The conversation with Brown that year took place on Oct. 11. He saw Rogers again after the trial, but he was not positive of the date. He could remember every word that took place at the conversation, but not the date. It was at his father's home that he told him of the conversation with Brown. He had said before that he did not do so, but on that occasion he had "misspoken" himself. He remembered he was husking corn when Rogers came to him. He did not know whether he had ever told any other person about this conversation with Brown. He thought Rogers took the conversation at his mother's down in writing. Brown was only at his house once. He did not remember that he had ever spoken to his brother about it more than once. His brother wrote down the date of conversation Oct. 11, but did not tell him why he had done so. Any conversation Mr. Brown had with him had no effect, for he did not go away, but appeared at the trial. He did not remember seeing Detective Rogers on this subject, except at his mother's house.

Never Said "I Had to Lay It on Maria."

Ling was recalled after luncheon and said he knew Lew Graham, but had no conversation with him about the Hartley case. He didn't say to Lew Graham, "I had to lay it on to Maria, or they would have put me in for the whole doing of it." He had no conversation with him. A great deal of his evidence in conjunction with the Hartley case came up again. He was asked if he did not say that Caleb Hartley had been "dosed" in Brantford, and he did not say he was afraid of the Otes family.

George Ling, brother of Henry Louis, was called and gave corroborative evidence, after which the defence asked for an adjournment for a week, which was granted.

BROOKLYN NEEDS NO BAYONETS.

The Strikers Orderly—Few Cars Moving Under Police Protection—To-Day May See the End of the Strike.

Brooklyn, Jan. 16.—The third day of the battle between the trolley companies and their employees resulted in a slight advantage for the companies. Three lines out of the 24 tied up were operated under police protection, but the ranks of the strikers are still intact. Late in the day the striking motormen and conductors laid certain propositions before the state board of arbitration, which may result in a settlement of the strike by compromise. Pending such an outcome there was a truce in hostilities, and rioting was not resorted to to-day. Practically the surface lines of the city were paralyzed to-day. A severe storm of rain, snow and sleet prevailed all day, and added to the misery of the pedestrians. Shoppers and people upon pleasure bent remained at home, and the big drygoods stores were empty all day. No serious acts of violence were committed by the strikers, and there was little for the blue coats to do. The fear of violence or a disinclination to patronize the trolley cars operated by green hands kept the public from using the few surface cars that were running. On the Flatbush-avenue line 26 cars out of the usual complement of 42 were running. The Fifth-avenue and Court-street lines ran about 20 cars each, of all 66 cars were running in place of 800. President Lewis of the Brooklyn Heights Company said he had plenty of applicants and would put on many more cars but for the lack of police protection. Each car is run with a policeman on the front and rear platform. Brooklyn police force numbers only 1700 and as large details are necessary at car houses and stables and threatened points, the number which can be spared from regular patrol duty is inadequate to operate many cars. Running cars is, therefore, largely a question of police protection. There has been talk of having the militia ordered out, but there is no disturbance to warrant such action. The armories are guarded by volunteers, as a precaution, but unless the situation undergoes a decided change, there will be no bayonets in this strike. The State Board of Arbitration had two meetings and adjourned until 11 a.m. to-morrow without accomplishing anything. In substance the strikers propose that both sides waive all demands and submit the whole matter to the Board of Arbitration for decision, each side agreeing to abide by the result.

Chairman Feeney of the Board of Arbitration said he believed that some arrangement will be made, by which the strike will be called off to-morrow.

KILLED IN THE LUMBER WOODS.

A Toronto Man's Tragic Death Near French River.

Far away in the lumber district near French River, John Doyle, a Toronto man, 22 years of age, met with a tragic death on New Year's Day. He, with some companions, were cutting down a tree, when it fell upon him, killing him almost instantly. His remains were brought to Toronto, and the funeral took place yesterday morning from his uncle's residence, 107 Seaton-street, to St. Michael's Cemetery. Doyle left Toronto for the lumber camps about three months ago, at which time he was living with his brother in George-street.

Fell Into a Culvert.

George Wiley, an Islington farm laborer, fell 12 feet down a culvert on Tuesday night. By striking the stone abutments he sustained a fracture of the thigh, fracture of the right leg below the knee and some severe face wounds. Last night he was brought to the Toronto General Hospital.

Knocked Down by a Horse.

Shortly after 6 o'clock last night a horse attached to a wagon took fright and ran away in Queen-street west. When near Dundas-street the animal knocked down and ran over Mrs. Flett, who lives at 18 Givens-street, and afterwards collided with Kay's coffin carriage, causing considerable damage. Mrs. Flett was taken into Dr. Armstrong's drug store, where her injuries were attended to. She sustained some bad bruises on the body and many severe cuts on the head and face, but was able to walk to her home.

Broke His Leg in a Cattle Guard.

FORTY-FIVE BLOWN TO ATOMS

TWO TONS OF GIANT POWDER EXPLODE IN A FIRE.

Only Three of the Firemen Left Alive—Heads, Arms, Legs, Brains and Flesh Distributed Over Five Blocks and Shovelled Up Into Baskets—Frightful Horror at Butte City, Montana.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 16.—By the explosion of giant powder in a hardware warehouse many lives were lost. The grounds for a block around the scene of the explosion was strewn with the quivering flesh of dismembered men and horses, pinned down by fragments of the fire engines an dburning sands from the demolished warehouse. The building was literally blown to pieces, and a hole 70 feet deep was excavated in the ground by the force of the explosion.

The mangled remains of 45 human beings are at the Morgue, and more are missing. Over 100 are injured, many of them fatally. Every hospital in the city is crowded.

Remains Shoveled Into Baskets.

Most of the dead are so frightfully mangled that identification is impossible. Head, legs, arms and other parts of bodies were picked up all about the scene of the explosion within a radius of five blocks; fingers, brains and fragments of flesh were gathered up with shovels and deposited in baskets.

In a space of about 300 feet the ground was literally covered with parts of human bodies and with the dead and injured.

Houses in the vicinity were as thoroughly wrecked as if a cyclone had passed through them.

Many of those killed contained no marks or bruises, having been killed by the concussion. Many were seriously injured by flying bricks and other debris at a distance of several blocks from the explosion. The concussion was felt for miles and many of the largest buildings rocked like cradles. It was reported by some of the rescuing party that several human ghouls, while pretending to assist in the work, went through the dead and injured and robbed them

The dead body of a small boy, John O'Leary, was picked up in East Gold-st. several blocks from the scene after the second explosion had occurred. There were no marks on his body.

Only His Belt to Identify Him

Only three woreking firemen escaped being killed. Chief Cameron was blown to atoms and the only thing found of him was his belt attached to a charred portion of his body.

The fire started in a warehouse of the Kenyon-Connel Company, in which were stored tons of giant powder contrary to the law, and the firemen were assured there was no danger when they expressed fears. There were three explosions.

STOLE FROM HIS BROTHER.

Serious Charge Against John Hutchinson of Berkeley-street.

John Hutchinson, 163 Berkeley-street, was arrested by Detectives Slemin and Duncan yesterday on the double charge of assault and theft. Since September last Hutchinson has been boarding with his married brother, Walter, at the above address. Matters have not been very smooth lately between the brothers, and one day last week, while Walter was absent, it is alleged John assaulted his sister-in-law and then proceeded to ransack the house. It is claimed he stole two gold watches, several rings and two revolvers.

He then made good his departure before the brother's return to the house. He was afterwards accosted on the street by Walter, who remonstrated with him in a very emphatic manner. It is said John then pulled one of the stolen revolvers on his brother, but did not wound. The stolen property was all recovered by the detectives at pawnshops, where Hutchinson had disposed of it.

KENNEDY'S MAJORITY 48.

End of the Recount—Doings at Municipal Headquarters.

Judge McDougall yesterday completed the recount of the votes cast in the mayoralty election applied for by R. J. Fleming. The result is that Mayor Kennedy's majority has been increased from 45 to 48. The totals of the official declaration were: Fleming 10,239, Kennedy 10,284. According to the recount they are: Fleming 10,212, Kennedy 10,260. The judge rejected over 40 uninitialed ballots.

The Fire and Light Committee held a special meeting yesterday morning to arrange details for the purchase of the two new steam fire engines and a water tower. It was decided to advertise for two engine of a capacity of from 1000 to 1300 gallons of water per minute. On the suggestion of Ald. Lamb, who was present, the purchase of the water tower was deferred until the utility of operating it by an electric motor has been considered by the committee. Tenders will be opened at noon on Saturday next.

The proposed settlement of the Esplanade difficulty has been drafted, and will be forwarded to the City Council before any further action is taken. The terms of the proposed settlement are being carefully guarded by the solicitors, both of the city and the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is understood that the agreement embraces a settlement of the entire water front question so far as the corporation and the C.P.R. are concerned from York to Berkeley-streets.

The final meeting of the council will be held on Friday and the Executive Committee has been called for this afternoon to wind up the business of the year.

To Unseat Mayor Kennedy.

Quo warranto proceedings were instituted at Osgoode Hall yesterday to unseat Mayoe Kennedy. The petitioner, W. F. Sexton, jr., builder, 47 Leonard-avenue, has through Messrs. Shilton, Wallbridge & Co. filed these charges:

1. That polling booths were kept open by deputy returning officers after 5 p.m., the legal hour for closing.

2. That rigs were hired and paid for by Mayor Kennedy and his agents.

3. That Mayor Kennedy and his agents were guilty of corruption.

4. That Mayor Kennedy and his agents were guilty of bribery and undue influence.

Section five charges Mayor Kennedy and his agents with having influenced certain of the deputy returning officers not to place their initials on the back of certain ballots known to be in favor of R. J. Fleming, and that certain promises of gifts and promises of lucrative employment were made in case they should refrain from marking said ballots.

POISON IN HIS DINNER PAIL

PROVINCIAL DETECTIVE MURRAY IS WANTED AT MERRITTON.

An Employe of the Riordon Paper Mill Stricken With Arsenical Poison After Partaking of His Tea—No Clue to the Attempted Murderer—The Victim in a Critical Condition.

County Crown Attorney McKeown of Lincoln desires the Ontario Government to send Provincial Detective Murray to investigate a mysterious poisoning case which is presently exciting the people of St. Catharines and the adjoining towns of Merritton and Thorold.

About 5 o'clock on Saturday night Alfred Price, workman in the Riordon Paper Mills at Merritton, sat down to eat his supper, which had been brought to him by his wife. He had taken a drink of tea, when he noticed a peculiar burning sensation in his throat, and soon began to vomit.

Found Senseless on the Floor.

Then he lost consciousness, and as he worked in a room alone, he lay there until nearly 9 o'clock, that night, before being discovered. Finally he regained his senses and managed to stagger out and fall in a heap near the door of the boiler house. Here he was found and the workmen at once took him home and summoned Dr. Campbell of Thorold. The doctor found the man suffering with all the symptoms of arsenical poison.

The Dinner Pail Had Been Washed Out.

After attending to the patient, Campbell asked for the man's dinner pail to examine the contents, but was told by the wife that she had thrown the food out and washed the pail.

To a reporter who called on Dr. Campbell, the latter said he had no doubt the man had received poison in some form. The symptoms point to arsenic or phosphoric poison, and the man had evidently taken a large dose. Price was in a precarious condition on Sunday and Monday, but now shows signs of improvement. Price himself thinks he was poisoned, and told this to his brother George and to other workmen.

No Motive Known.

Mrs. Price, who is rather a pretty woman with large dark eyes and jet black hair, says she knows nothing that will in any way account for the affair. She put up her husband's supper on Saturday night and says she drank for her lunch tea from the same brewing that he had. Dr. Campbell advised Mrs. Price, in view of the rumors floating about, not to wait on her husband, but, declaring she was entirely innocent, she declined to leave him.

Neighbors declare that Price and his wife have always lived happily together.

George Price is convinced that his brother was poisoned, and says he will have a thorough investigation.

MONTREAL'S IDLE ANARCHISTS.

A Threat to Resort to Violence Unless Relieved by the City.

Montreal, Jan. 16.—About 4000 unemployed workingmen were at the City Hall this morning and a deputation introduced by William Darlington, interviewed the mayor. Darlington, who is a prominent labor leader, said things had come to such a pass they had been asked to organize an association of workingmen that would use force instead of moral suasion to get their rights. There would be no difficulty in organizing 300 Anarchists in Montreal. If they resorted to bombs an ddynamite it would not be the fault of the labor organizations. They had come to the council out of sheer desperation. His remarks created a profound sensation. The mayor agreed to call a public meeting for Friday to discuss the situation.

The Mayor told the crowde plainly that he did not believe that they were all in want. He hoped that the capitalists of the city would attend the meeting on Friday, and would either provide work or subscribe to a relief fund. The crowd impede the traffic on the streets and several cars which attemptedr to pass through were mobbed. A fine engine was called out to disperse the crowd, but it had to retire from the scene. The mob remained beside the City Hall until the afternoon, and only dispersed when asked by the leaders to await the result of the public meeting. The leaders threaten to repeat the demonstration if something is not done.

TO CLOSE THE BARS AT 9.

Hamiltonians Petitioning for This and to Lop Off 25 Licenses.

Hamilton, Jan. 16.—A largely signed petition for the reduction of the number of saloon and tavern licenses in the city from 75 to 50 and for fixing the hour of closing at 9 o'clock is being circulated for signatures.

The Newspaper Deal.

The Globe says this morning: We desire to say in justice to The Mail and Empire that neither has proposed to sell its plant to The Globe, and that neither has entertained for a moment the suggestion that it should be absorbed by any other concern. We desire to say with equal frankness that there have been negotiations of an informal character, but not suggestion for the withdrawal of The Empire or Mail was ever entertained.
