THURSDAY EVENING, NOV. 20, 1873.

Nomination of Archibald Rowan.

The nomination of Archibald Rowan by the Liberal mass meeting last night was a pleasant surprise. Elections have been so expensive of late, and the wealth of the Government candidate is so great, that it was feared that a poor man need not apply for Parliamentary honors. The Committee of the meeting, however, took a different view of the situation, looking upon success as so certain that the party could afford to nominate a man who could not afford to spend a small fortune to ensure success.

Archibald Rowan was nominated because he has been a consistent Liberal—a faithful supporter of S. L. Tilley—and an able and useful public servant in many honorable and responsible positions.

He was nominated because it is known that he will not be silent when an overbearing Ministry attempt to trample on New Brunswick's rights, or refuse to do her ample justice.

He was nominated because he stood like a man at Mr. Tilley's back when the slandering conspirators were moving heaven and earth to cover him and his colleagues with infamy.

He was nominated because he scorns the traitors who stabbed Mr. Tilley in the back while pretending to support him—the traitors who are now leagued with the men who denounce Mr. Tilley as "a great political criminal," "a braying ass," etc.

He was nominated as a protest against the publicly-proclaimed assertion that the Liberal party of St. John that supported the Liberal-Conservative Government is a party of office-holders and place-hunters that died when the Government of their choice fell from place and power.

He was nominated as a Unionist who glories in the progress of Canada, is proud of the position she occupies, and ready to advocate measures for making her greater still.

He was nominated because he repudiates annexation doctrines, believes in our institutions as the best in the the world, and will cling to the dear old Flag and the Mother Land until the time comes for complete independence or a closer union with Great Britain.

He was nominated as a protest against Ottawa dictation, Tory first familyism, and vulgar abuse of Mr. Tilley and his political associations.

He was not nominated to support the present Government; he was not nominated with the view of getting the vote of a single man who votes according to the dictates of this Government; he was not nominated to get the vote of a man who believes that the Huntington charges were true—that Mr. Tilley remained in office with corrupt sellers of the charter of a public work—that the only pure and patriotic Liberals in Parliament were those who signed a paper pledging themselves to vote to overthrow the Government that wielded power so wisely and dealt with New Brunswick so generously.

Mr. Rowan is to be elected by the people and for the people, and not by the Ministry and for the Ministry.

He is to be elected because the people of St. John want an independent man in Parliament who looks to their interests, instead of the interests of any party, first.

He is to be elected despite the corruption fund of the Government party, despite the lying slanders that are circulated about the late Ministry, despite the opposition of the oft-beaten faction, despite the malign influence of the treacherous support of a renegade paper ready to stab in the back the cause it ostensibly supports—is stabbing it even now, as though it had conspired to do so, by persistent misrepresentations of the simplest facts.

If Mr. Rowan will consent to accept the nomination—an unasked, unsought nomination by a great meeting—a nomination of which any man might be proud—he will be elected. He will have to sacrifice much, by accepting a seat in the House of Commons, but we hope he can be persuaded to make the sacrifice.

If the Spanish Government makes any proper acknowledgement of the outrage on the United States flag, and takes any efficient measures for punishing the outrage or preventing similar outrages, there will be no difficulty in peacefully settling the Virginius affair. There is a disposition to deal very gently with the Republican Government at the head of Spanish affairs. But if explanations are refused, if the act is justified, if no guarantees are given that captured ships and citizens of the United States will be dealt with in a different manner from that adopted at Santiago de Cuba, some hostile course must be decided on by Congress in a very few weeks.

Asthma.

COMMERCIAL SCHOOL,
HARBOR GRACE, NEWFOUNDLAND.

MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS.

DEAR SIR: I am very happy to acknowledge the benefit I have received from the use of your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites. For upwards of twelve months I suffered most acutely from a severe cough, and a most violent Asthma, for the relief of which I tried everything I could hear of. I at last commenced the use of your Syrup, and after taking one bottle was able to attend to my avocation. I continued according to directions till I had used nine bottles, which effected a perfect cure. With much gratitude, yours truly, M. SCULLEY, Teacher.

Lee's Opera House.

The performance this evening is for the benefit of the sufferers by the Carleton fire. A bumper house is requested by Mr. Lee. Last evening the dramatic portion of the company closed their engagement. Since their arrival they have done much to amuse and entertain the patrons of the Opera House, and their faces will be missed. Mr. Warner has been always well received, and having also been stage manager, the success of the pieces has depended very much on him. Mr. Boyle, in his low comedy parts, has always kept the house in a mirthful mood. Mr. Fredericks has played a variety of roles, and has been liked for his correct and careful impersonations. Miss Lucetta Cambridge has not been here so long as the others, but has received much deserved applause. Miss Dinsmore came when Mr. Lee first organized his dramatic season, at once became and has continued a decided favorite. In the parts she professes to play her acting has always been good. The new company being organized for the Academy would do well to secure her services as they will get a careful actress and one always to be depended on. It is with regret that the patrons of the Opera House will bid adieu to these members of the company.

THE LIBERAL RALLY.

Enthusiastic Meeting in the Institute—Ald. Rowan Nominated.

In answer to the call of the committee that met in the Victoria Tuesday afternoon a large and representative meeting of the Liberal party was held last evening in the Mechanics' Institute. The old standard bearers of the Liberal party were there, and many prominent supporters of Mr. J. S. B. DeVeber. About 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the Secretary, J. Gordon Forbes, Esq., and Hon. Geo. E. King, Attorney General, was, on motion, appointed Chairman. Mr. Forbes read the call and stated the object of the meeting, viz: to select a candidate for the Liberal party to oppose the present announced candidate for the City. The chairman stated that at the meeting of the committee held at the Victoria Hotel no candidate had been named at all, but it was determined to give the meeting full latitude in the selection of their candidate. C. H. Fairweather, Esq., then moved, and W. H. Olive seconded the motion, that three representatives be chosen from each ward in the City, to form a nominating committee, which was passed unanimously. The following gentlemen were then selected from the meeting and sent out to select a candidate:

King's—Luke Stewart, Joseph Fairweather, John D. Robertson.

Queen's—Geo. DeForest, E. Willis, C. H. Fairweather.

Duke's—Robt. Marshall, James McNichol, Jr., Carson Flood.

Wellington—Wm. Peters, A. G. Bowes, M. McLeod.

Prince—A. G. Blakslee, John McGourty, W. W. Turnbull.

Sydney—John Turnbull, J. B. Moore, Wm. Lewis.

Guys—W. A. Quinton, D. W. Clarke, J. C. Littlehale.

Albert—Harry Leonard, Alderman McCordock, W. A. Adams.

Brooks—H. A. Glasgow, W. Ring, Joseph Coram.

All the members of the committee, except two, were present. The audience had nothing to do while the committee was out and, for some time, they indulged in considerable hilarity. The Chairman asked any gentleman present to speak, but no one seemed inclined. Capt. Coughlan was called for by the boys in the gallery. The captain walked up to the platform, requested a glass of water, which was given him, looked round on the sea of faces, and then retired to his seat amidst uproarious cheers. "Elder," "Elder Knapp," "Wedderburn," "The Wild Irishman," "Dr. Keator," and other cries were heard, but nobody responded.

The Chairman, being called on, addressed the meeting. He spoke of the reasons why the great Liberal party that had been a united band for so many years should still remain so. For the past eight or ten years they had been particularly united, and, only in 1872, combined to send a man who would represent their views. He maintained that the party today was as strong as ever. It had been said they were a party of office holders—of place men—who could not exist in adversity. They had been thus challenged, and now as the party cannot control the offices in St. John, it was for them unitedly to show that they are as strong as ever, and will send a man to represent their views. He reviewed the idea thrown out by some that there was, at present, a purely Liberal Government at Ottawa. Two, at least—Cartwright and Scott—were Conservatives. The latter had been taken in to get over the difficulty of not giving Anglin a seat, and they, a Liberal Government, so called, were carrying this man around as a cat carries a kitten, though known to be a rank Tory. For the first time in the history of St. John the electors were introduced to Official Candidates, and the Court Journal had said that Mr. DeVeber was brought out by the gracious consent of the Premier. The Grit party movements were severely criticised by the hon. gentleman—their abhorrence of coalition, and their forming one—their views of economy and ideas of cutting down the Cabinet, and straightway, when they get in power, adding two more offices. He concluded by speaking of the kind of man the people of St. John wanted—a Liberal-Progressionist, not a dyed-in-the-wool Tory; one who has been known as a Liberal, not one whose very name is but a bulwark of Toryism. St. John wants one who can speak for himself on the hustings. Though the present Government may turn out a good one, yet we cannot trust them when their first act is to propose as our representative such a man as they had selected. He sat down amid great cheering.

It having been announced that Hon. Peter Mitchell was in the room, the Chairman called on him. The late Minister of Marine and Fisheries was greeted with loud and prolonged cheers on advancing to the platform. He said he came accidentally, as a spectator, and did not expect to speak, nor was he fit to address them as he had just finished a three days' journey. But he would, for a short time, speak to them, not for himself, but as the representative of the great leader of the Liberal party of New Brunswick—the Hon. S. L. Tilley—your respected Governor.

A voice—"How did he get it?"

Mr. Mitchell—"From a Government that had the right to give it to him. [Applause.] He got it as the reward of twenty years faithful service of his native Province. [Great cheering.] He got it because he deserved it, because he was the fittest man for the position, because the Government that appointed him had the right and power to appoint him. [Tremendous applause.] As the lieutenant and follower of Mr. Tilley for the last seven years I am here to defend him and the acts of the Government of which we were members. [Cheers.] Ask as many questions as you wish. You cannot interrupt one who has a just cause to plead, and is not afraid to speak his mind." [Cheers.]

After this there were no more questions—no more interruptions. The admirers of Mr. Mitchell's splendid powers of repartee rather regretted that the Grit element had been flattened out at one blow, and wished they'd ask more questions.

The Hon. gentleman then went into a history of the Liberal party from 1854, when it first broke the bands of old fogyism and Toryism. The Province was then without railroads; it was only an isolated fragment of British North America; its people were leaving its shores and seeking homes in the nighboring Republic. To stop this it was necessary to build railways, to encourage manufactures, and the Liberal party had done that. The history of Confederation was also outlined in a clear manner, and the different parties in power throughout Canada at the date of Union described. The work of the Cabinet under the leadership of Sir John A. Macdonald, since Confederation, was ably defended. He defined his own position in the Cabinets and his present position. He was a Liberal, and always had been one, though having been a member of a Government whose leader was a Conservative. He had taken the portfolio of Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and had created the department. He paid a high compliment to his successor, the Hon. A. J. Smith, and had no doubt but, under his management, the Department would still progress. Mr. Mitchell explained the position he had taken up after the fall of the Coalition Government in which he and Mr. Tilley represented the great Liberal party of New Brunswick. At the first caucus—the caucus at which Sir John was chosen leader of the Opposition—he had defined his position. He was not a Conservative and could not be merged in the Conservative party of Canada—would not become a joint in its tail. He had gone in the Cabinet as a Liberal, and only remained in it because the Cabinet persued a Liberal policy that entirely met his approbation. Mr. Tilley's retirement had left him at the head head of the New Brunswick Liberals, and they would take up a distinctive attitude in Parliament—not as part of ither the Conservative or Grit party—not in perfect accord with either—not willing to sacrifice New Brunswick's honor or welfare for the benefit of either—and bent only on advancing Liberalism and benefitting this Province. This attitude might keep him a long time out of office—it might be many years before his party could cordially unite with any leader, as they had united with Sir John Macdonald; but he did not court office, he was in no hurry to get office—he wanted only to serve the his interests of native Province. The honorable gentleman said he was ready to answer any question that might be asked—ready to justify any act of the Government—ready to reply to any charge to be brought against it; and he intended to go from County to County, from hustings to hustings, and meet the men who may dare to assail the acts of the late Government—the men men who may dare to repeat the foul charges of corruption—the men who dare to question the patriotism, the honesty and ability with which the Government of Sir John A. Macdonald had consummated Confederation and ruled the country.

The applause that followed was loud and long. The bold and manly attitude of the fallen Minister, his outspoken approval of his late colleagues, his challenge to their slanderers, his outline of the policy which he wanted the Liberal party to adopt, gave the lie to the slander that he was on the fence, that he believed Sir John to be corrupt, that he was prepared to join a party that abused Mr Tilley and condemned the great progressive policy that has prevailed since Confederation.

The committee entered and announced that they had unanimously nominated Ald. Archibald Rowan as the candidate of the Liberal party. The announcement was received with cheers, and, on being put to the meeting, was carried. Cheers were given for "The Queen," "The Liberal Candidate," "Governor Tilley," and "Hon. Peter Mitchell."

NEW DESIGNS of Ivory Frames at NOTMAN'S.

City Police Court.

There were six prisoners in the dock this morning, all to answer the same charge.

Robert McGrath was the first victim. He was arrested at Reed's Point, drunk and disorderly, and fined $4.

John Baker, arrested in St. James st., Henry Hancock on the North Wharf, Jeremiah Donovan in Prince Wm. street, Patrick Rodden in Harding st., were each fined $4 for drunkenness. Some had money to pay their fines; others had spent all their money for rum and had to go for a few days to the stone building in King street.

John Mack was charged with committing an aggravated assault on Ellen Rober, in a house in Pitt street, by cutting her with a knife in the breast. The prisoner was defended by John Kerr, Esq., who first had the complainant and her sister sent from the court room. When examined their stories were entirely different, and left the inference that instead of the man committing an assault he had been the assaulted party. It was quite clear that both girls were telling anything but the truth, and it was more probable that they, with a man, had attempted to rob Mack while he was under the influence of liquor. The case was dismissed.

Academy of Music Foreign Lecture Course.

As was announced by us in our issue a few evenings since, the Hon. J. P. Putnam, Judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts, will deliver the next lecture of the Academy course on Friday evening next. His subject, "The Miracle Plays of the Middle Ages." Judge Putnam was an eye witness of the "Passion Play" performed at Ober Ammergan, in the Bavarian Tyrol. This play is almost the sole survivor of the religious plays of the middle ages, and has been performed in that village every ten years since 1634. The subject is a novel one, and the Judge is said to handle it with great power. In securing the services of this eminent lecturer the Directors have been at a much greater expense than was anticipated, but we are certain that the patrons of the course will appreciate the Directors' desire to place before them each week the best talent in the lecture field. A few single tickets will be sold for the balcony and gallery.
