TURKEY AND VATICAN

Protectorate Over Catholics in Sultan's Empire.

Rome, Nov. 27.—Negotiation are now in progress between the Vatican and the Turkish Government, looking to the establishment of a settled rule about the Catholic protectorate of the churches built in Pera, a European settlement of Constantinople.

For many years the French Government has exercised such a protectorate, but now that the Holy See and the French authorities are at loggerheads, the Turkish Government finds it desirable to have an understanding with the Vatican regarding the matter.

It is believed here that the protectorate of all the Catholic churches of the east will now be assumed by the Italian Government, because of the residence here of the Pope.
