PRIVATE AND MUNICIPAL MANAGEMENT.

The old stock assertion that the municipality cannot supply light, water and other services ha cheaply as a private corporation is falling into disrepute. It cannot be proved by argument. People don't believe the statement any longer. It will not stand analysis. One of the several journals that are on the side of the companies refers to our waterworks system as an example of municipal management, or rather mismanagement. Our contemporary ought to compare the management of our Gas Company, which is a private corporation, with that of our waterworks. The comparison will afford a good idea of the relative merits of the two systems.

A cardinal point of difference between the two concerns is this, that the people have it in their power to remedy any defects in the management of the waterworks system, whereas they are powerless to interfere in the affairs of the Gas Company. If the city owned the gas plant, as it does its waterworks, rates would long ago have been reduced 25 per cent. But as the people have no say in the matter extortionate rates continue to prevail. The company to which we have handed over the monopoly of our gas supply charges us $110,000 a year more than we would have to pay if we had retained the management.

Having deputed to a private corporation the management of our gas works, we have to pay ten per cent. interest on capital invested for plant, and we pay that exorbitant rate on a large amount of inflated capital, too. The city could duplicate the Consumers' Gas Company's entire plant for one million dollars. We could borrow this capital at 4 per cent. The annual charge would be $40,000, as against $160,000, which the citizens of Toronto yearly pay to the shareholders of the Consumers' Gas Company. Municipal management of the gas works would save us $120,000 a year in interest charges alone.

The citizens of Toronto pay the directors of the Gas Company $9000 a year, at least that is what they are allowed by their act of incorporation, and we would be much surprised to learn that they do not draw this amount. This sum would be clear gain were the plant operated by the city.

As for management and office expenses we can safely say that the Gas Company's officials are paid better than similar officials would be paid by the corporation.

It may possibly be true that a private company can get more work out of a day laborer than the municipality can, but it should be remembered that the saving effected by driving the laborer goes into the pockets of the monopolist. The public at large are not benefited by it.

As to the purchase of supplies. The Gas Company buys its coal by tender. The city in the management of the waterworks does the same. No concern in Toronto can buy cheaper than the city. If the city operated its own gas and electric works as well as the waterworks it could almost afford to operate a mine of its own, thereby getting its coal at rock bottom prices.

What private company could buy an electric plant cheaper than is offered to us by the firms that recently tendered on the street lighting plant? It is pretty certain that the tenderers put in their very lowest figures, because they knew they were dealing with a city with unlimited capital behind it.

It is alleged our aldermen and officials are susceptible to jobbery, and are indifferent to the interests of the people. What about the private companies in this respect? Get rid of the private companies and we free our aldermen and officials from one-half the temptations that lie in their path. Who was it put up the job on McDowan and made him report to the Fire and Light Committee that the actual cost of an arc light per annum is $103.85? This job originated with the company that was seeking a renewal of their contract at a price that would have allowed them a profit of $35,000 a year more than they will make if they get the contract at the figures they were subsequently compelled to offer. Here is a job that amounts to $175,000 for the five years the contract would run, and we are very much mistaken if the Consumers' Gas Co. does not influence the aldermen from time to time as occasions require. What we stated above is true that the origin of more than half the municipal jobbery we hear of is traceable to the companies that enjoy special privileges from the city. The moment we start in business for ourselves, that moment will the city be rid of a swarm of jobbers and plunderers.

The arguments are all in favor of the municipal control of public services. As Ex-Mayor Clarke stated the other night, the time had arrived when these monopolies should be held for the benefit of the people, and not for the benefit of the few wealthy men who owned the stock of the private corporations that controlled them. The difference between private and municipal control is just this: In the former case the monopolies are run entirely in the interests of the shareholders. The new doctrine is to run them entirely in the interest of the consumers, and that is just what the public is beginning to understand.

GRAND OPERA AND THE CENSUS.

It is gratifying to learn that the population of the city has increased during the past year, not as much as we would like, but still as much as we could expect under the so-called depression that sits heavy on mankind the wide world over. We agree with a contemporary which states that July and August are very unfavorable months in which to take a census of the population. Most of the anti-Sunday car people are out summering in the country or by the seaside during these months, the students are at home and it is during this period that the advertising agents take their annual outing to Cooney Island. Owing to the absence of these numerous citizens the assessment commissioner can never do us full justice as long as he selects midsummer for taking the census. He should delay the work a little later. The present week, for instance, would enable the enumerators to make a good showing. The town is full of aspiring horse-doctors, football students and the more serious young men whose ambition is to educate the youth of the land. The present week would be an exceedingly favorable time indeed. It is a week of grand opera in Toronto. Judging from the numerous lithographs distributed throughout the town we would say that not less than a thousand young ladies will be present with us during the season of Black Crook grand opera that opens so auspiciously this evening. This is not all. The shop windows of the town are ablaze with the gaudily-raimented ladies of a genuine English Folly Company. These appear to be not less numerous than the other bevy that will circle round the Prince of the Powers when he raises his crook aloft and orders the revel to proceed. But a season of grand opera attracts not a few others in addition to the myriads of beautiful forms that flit across the stage like so many beings angelic. From beyond the purlieus of Hamilton and from Hamilton itself there come to us young men of musical tastes and poetic temperaments. And when a season of real grand opera runs concurrently with the engagement of a genuine Folly Company then they come to Toronto from all points this side of London. A little beyond London is the height of land. The poetical young men on the other side of that line are drawn by the force of gravity and inspiration towards the Detroit River, when grand opera prevails in the City of the Straits. For these reasons we are sorry the census was taken during the dull season. We trust Mr. Maughan will take the hint and seize on a favorable opportunity like the present week for his census-taking.

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL SCRIP GALORE.

Mr. James L. Hughes in a defence of the Georgian Bay Ship Canal and Light Power Aqueduct Company, published in The World on Saturday, says that Mr. E. A. Macdonald is a trusted agent of that corporation. We are glad Mr. Hughes has vouchsafed this much information. We will now ask him to inform the public if he is aware that the said trusted agent of the company has either issued or promised to deliver certificates of paid up stock to different individuals, approaching two millions of dollars. A number of the individuals who seem to be most anxious in promoting the project are possessed of these certificates, and are saying they have got them for their influence, and that they can put others in possession of similar certificates if they turn in and help the project. We would also ask Mr. Hughes whether he considers this a proper method of procedure and whether he authorized in any way or knows anything about the issue of these paid-up certificates, and whether they are valid or not. We have heard the opinion expressed that they are not worth the paper on which they are printed, even if the company ever did become possessed of any property, and that those who hold them are simply being misled. We would again remind Mr. Hughes that the amount issued or promised, as far as The World can see, is almost two millions of dollars.

PROPOSED STREET CAR ROUTES.

When the Board of Works considers Engineer Keating's recommendation to put street car rails on Avenue-road the members should bear in mind that the interests of other citizens besides those who live upon the street in question are concerned. This route is projected, not for the convenience of the people who live on Avenue-road, but to accommodate a large and growing section of the city. There is no pleasing some people. On McCaul-street they won't do without the trolley. On Avenue-road the people say they will have none of it. The opinion of the engineer should be accepted in preference to the likes and dislikes of a few residents. If he finds a section of the city desirous of and needing better street car facilities he should recommend accordingly. The route up Avenue-road is badly needed, while there is little occasion for the McCaul-street route. Yet it looks as if the latter may be forced on us, while the former may be shelved.

J. L. Hughes and the Georgian Bay Canal.

Editor World: Mr. J. L. Hughes' reply to your little scold is exceedingly clever and was evidently calculated to hide from your readers the real point of difference between his company and the city. When he states that the Canal Company "merely ask the right to sell their goods to the people living in the city at one-quarter the prices they are now paying," he simply misstates the facts of the case. What this company asks for is the privilege of making use of our streets in an extraordinary manner, i.e., by placing wires either underground or overhead. The constant annoyance caused to the citizens by the tearing up of our streets by the Railway Co., Gas Co., Incandescent Co., etc., all acting independently, instead of in concert, with the construction of public works, under the control of the City Engineer, is a matter of grave importance. The large American cities are suffering from this trouble to an extent that we in Toronto can scarcely realize, and it should certainly be the future policy of our council to monopolize for the citizens as a whole all industries which requires as a modus vivendi the tampering with our streets in any form. In another generation, I venture to say that it will be an accepted axiom of civic government that all drains, waterworks, electric lighting, gas lighting, telephone and telegraph systems, and even street railways shall be controlled by the people themselves, so far as the city limits are concerned.

If the Canal Co. can sell electric energy cheaper than their competitors or than the city can generate it, there is no question but that the city would buy that energy from them, wholesale, and use it to work their different civic plants. The same remark would apply to the water. If this company can lay down at the city limits pure water for less money than the city engines can pump it from Lake Ontario, no council would dare to refuse their offer. If the Canal Co. are in earnest (and let us rejoice that we have at last the name of one shareholder) let them make a definite offer to the city to supply water and electricity at the city limits at prices that will induce the citizens as a whole to buy from them. H. K. HEMMING.

THE THEATRES TO-NIGHT.

Robert Mantell.

Bob Mantell, as he is familiarly called by his numerous friends, opens his engagement at the Grand to-night, appearing in "Monbars," the play in which he achieved his first success as a star. The repertoire for the week is an exceedingly strong one, for besides "Monbars" he will be seen in "Othello," "Hamlet," "The Corsican Brothers," "Parchasius" and by particular request in "Romeo and Juliet" for the Saturday matinee. Mr. Mantell has the advantage of a strong supporting company, and every piece will be carefully staged. The regular house prices will prevail.

The "Rob Roy" Scenery.

The first scene to be shown when "Rob Roy" is presented at the Grand Opera House next week represents an open square in the town of Perth, a picturesque old Scotch village on the Lowland border. In the background is a mountainous landscape drop, at the left are several shops of small tradesmen and a tavern, "The Crown and Thistle." At the right is the house of the Mayor of Perth, Dugal MacWheeble, with a porch and small garden plot in front. Across the stage to the right stands the pillory. This act was furnished by Mr. Joseph Physioc, the scenic artist of the Herald Square Theatre.

D. Frank Dodge of Harrigan's Theatre is responsible for the second act, which represents a mountainous Highland scene, with the view of a lake in the distance. To the right is an old mill, with a mill wheel which is turned by a swift-running stream, which dashes down the mountain side. In the rocks to the left is the partially concealed mouth of a cave, Rob Roy's retreat. As the curtain rises Janet, the part played by Juliette Corden, is discovered as a Highland shepherdess tending her flock of sheep and lambs, with the assistance of a Scotch shepherd dog which crouches at her feet.

The third act is from the brush of that veteran scenic artist Henry B. Hoyt. It will show Stirling Castle by moonlight. The castle is overgrown with moss and vines. In the background is a moat and drawbridge. A back drop gives a view of the ocean in the distance, extending in perspective from the castle. The effect of this scene, it is said, will be very striking.

"The Black Crook"

Spectacle on a gorgeous scale will be the attraction at Jacobs & Sparrow's Opera House this week, when the world-famous "Black Crook" will occupy the boards of this popular theatre. This superb legendary romance, as presented by the Springer and Weltz company, is refined, full of innocent hilarity and entirely free from all taint of vulgarity. It is an impressive story and, embellished as it is with all its wealth of gorgeous scenery, beautiful costumes, lithesome dancers and unique specialities, it has ranked among the highest theatrical attractions for over a quarter of a century. There will be no advance in prices.

Music for the Masses.

The Torbett Concert Company, composed of Miss Ollie Torbett, the famous violiniste; Herr Rudolf Von Scarpa, pianist, and the world-renowned Lutteman Sextette from Stockholm, Sweden, has been engaged for two grand concerts in Massey Hall, Thursday and Saturday evenings, 18th and 20th inst.

Miss Jessie Alexander.

Miss Jessie Alexander met with great success on her eastern tour last week, and has already two return engagements in Montreal during next month. The well-marked plan at Nordheimers' shows great interest in her annual recital tomorrow evening at the Massey Hall.

Rose Hill English Folly Co

The Rose Hill English Folly Company is the week's attraction at the Academy. The first performance will be given this afternoon at 2.30. A new musical and operatic burletta, "The Fakir's Daughter," will be presented in its entirety, as given in New York. It is said to be written up to date and perhaps a little beyond. Anyway, there will be lots of pretty and clever women arrayed in dazzling costumes, who will perform graceful gavottes, intricate marches, lovely dances, sing merry songs to catchy music. In the olio will appear Frank Emerson, the minstrel; Crawford and Manning, California's leading comedians; Frank Lawrence, an expert on the cornet; Morton and Eskhoff, musical team; J. Herbert Mack, balladist, and others. There will be a matinee every afternoon.

THE SONS OF THE LOYALISTS.

Formation of a New Society in the City.

A movement is on foot for the formation of a new society to be known as "The Sons of the Loyalists." Its objects will be: 1. The perpetuation of British connection. 2. The dissemination of patriotic literature and observance of Canadian historic events. 3. The collection and preservation of facts relating to the U.E. Loyalist migration. 4. The association of men and women of U.E. Loyalist descent, having historical interests in common. 5. The formation of a museum of objects of historic interest.

It is proposed to invite all the descendants of Loyalists of both sexes, whether of United Empire descent on the maternal or paternal sides, to interest themselves in the society. Persons desiring to associate themselves should address Dr. Ryerson, 60 College-street.
