THREE WEEKS' OUTING WAS GREATLY ENJOYED

Natural History Society Junior Girls Return Home from Up River — Valuable Discoveries.

Thursday, Aug. 22.

After a most successful outing, marred only by the unstable weather, the annual three weeks' trip of the junior girls of the Natural History Society came to an end yesterday when W. McIntosh, the curator of the society, returned with his party to the city.

These outings are made with the purpose of inculcating a love of nature into the young people and of giving to them some little understanding of her mysterious ways.

The party this year was composed of some twenty people. It had been the intention to cover a certain portion of the river district in their search for pleasure and information but their peregrinations were limited by the weather and it was found necessary to make Macdonald's Point their camping base from which they could make short journeys and river trips into the surrounding district.

As it was, several trips were made up the St. John river and to Evandale and up the Belleisle, together with several smaller canoe and boat trips to examine the different structures of rock and to search for various plants, etc.

An incidental point of these journeyings is the search for relics of former ages in New Brunswick and while the search for those was less fruitful of result than those of former years, still some were found that will make valuable additions to the collection in the Natural History Society's rooms.

Amongst the relics brought back to the museum is an anchor supposed to belong to some French vessel which sailed the St. John river in a bygone age. Another object of interest is a stone implement, which the curator thinks is an Indian hoe, while with those are several specimens and plants more interesting from a technical point of view.

Of Interest to Women

When canning peaches, pour boiling water over them and their skins will slip off easily, leaving the fruit smooth and perfect. This method can also be used with tomatoes.

Flies can be driven out of the house by making the rooms very dark, excepting one crack of light leading into the out-of-doors. The flies will be attracted to the light and crawl out.

The ivory handles of table knives can be made like new in this way: Remove the stains with lemon juice and salt, wipe with a damp cloth and polish with a soft cloth and putty powder.

To make delicious iced coffee, use one quart of strong coffee, boil a quart of milk and add this to the coffee, and then pour in a pint of cream. Place in the refrigerator and serve with whipped cream.

A good chicken is known by soft feet, smooth skin and soft cartilage at the end of the breastbone. An abundance of pinfeathers always indicates a young bird, while the presence of long hairs denotes age.

Something new in the shops—jelly cups of parafine paper with a lid which fits perfectly tight. They can be washed with soap and water and used a second time.

In cleaning woodwork painted white always moisten the lower part first, otherwise there is danger of soiled water running down on the dry paint and making a stain.

Take out grease or paint spots with pure alcohol. The alcohol evaporates and the stain with it. If this does not remove it, use a paste of alcohol and white soap, then rinse in alcohol.

Clean straw hats by going over them with damp cornmeal, working it well into the straw, and leaving it on for some hours. Then brush out the meal and wash with peroxide of hydrogen.

To clean oil paintings, wipe off the dust with a soft cloth, then dip a silk sponge in lukewarm water, rub on a little fine white soap which has no free alkali in it, and go over the painting quickly and gently. Rinse thoroughly and dry with the cloth.

Wash pale, tan-colored linens, pongees, cottons and India silks in hay water if you would preserve the color. Put a handful of hay in the water and boil till the water is a pale clear brown. Strain and cool till lukewarm and add a teacup of good white soapsuds. Soak the garment in it five minutes and souse up and down in the water. Rinse in a second hay water.

PARTRIDGES IN CAPTIVITY

Success of an Experiment Made at Massachusetts Hatchery.

(Berkshire Courier).

The state game hatchery at Wilbraham is making an experiment in partridge propagation that will be watched with interest by sportsmen all over the state, and if it proves successful it will demonstrate something that has long been hoped for but never realized.

The state hatchery has proved that pheasants can be raised and bred in captivity, but the partridge, with its shy and timid ways, has been an uncertain problem all these years. At last the state hatchery has succeeded in hatching fourteen partridges, all of which are living and are doing finely and bid fair to reach maturity in captivity.

The method under which the state became possessed of these birds has a local flavor, for they were hatched from Great Barrington eggs. Game Warden Sargood on one of his hikes over Beartown Mountain into Great Barrington territory came unexpectedly upon a partridge's nest in which were fourteen eggs upon which the mother bird had sat for ten days or so. Sargood gathered up the eggs, wrapped each one in cotton batting and some other protection and carried them to the state hatchery.

The eggs had been six hours away from the nest when he reached the hatchery, but fortunately a bantam hen had been setting on a clutch of pheasant's eggs just about ten days, so they transferred this bentam to the partridge eggs and she hatched every one of them. Now the hatchery people will do their best to so domesticate these young partridges that when they reach maturity and arrive at the laying stage their eggs may be hatched in captivity and the flock at the hatchery thus materially increased until in course of time partridges may be put out from there into the woodland covers the same as pheasants are now handled.

This means the solving of a problem that has long been considered, but which hitherto from lack of the right opportunity has not before been tried at the hatchery. There has always been such an element of doubt entering into the problem in securing eggs at the right time to insure a hatch that many obstacles have hitherto surrounded the attempt. Now the way to success appears more encouraging.

GREATEST SHOOTING IN P. R. A.'S HISTORY

Sussex, N. B., Aug 16—The forty-sixth annual meet of the Provincial Rifle Association is ended. With the presentation of prizes to the successful winners this afternoon at the bungalow, there came to a close one of the most satisfactory gatherings of the association, and one which will long be remembered because of the general high scoring registered throughout.

The presentation was honored with the presence of Lieut.-Governor Wood, who was heartily welcomed by Lieut.-Colonel H. H. McLean, the president, on behalf of the association. The president officiated as chairman and was assisted by Major J. S. Frost, of the 62nd, as secretary, while the presentation of prizes was made for the most part by members of the executive and the officers of the association.

The names of the prize winners have all appeared in The Telegraph.

Prizes Presented.

The first prize presented was the silver cup given by the late King Edward in 1861 and the presentation to the winner, Capt. H. E. D. Golding, of Sussex, was made by Lieut.-Governor Wood.

Lieut.-Colonel McLean presented the Association cup to Sergt. I. F. Archibald, of St. John, while the Ladies' cup was presented to Private H. Crandlemire by Mrs. H. Perley. The winner of the McAvity cup, Major J. M. Kinnear, of Sussex, received it from Lieut. J. B. Powers, while Corp. E. F. Gladwin, of St. John, was presented with the Mercantile cup by the winner of the former, Major Kinnear. The McLean cup was presented to G. F. Fletcher, of St. John, by N. J. Morrison. Lieut. S. W. Ashton, Hamilton and Carter.

Major Magee made the presentation of the Cadets cup to St. Andrew's corps of St. John, while Major O. W. Wetmore presented the Strathcona cups in the senior and junior competition won by R. Murray and Murray Baird, of Fredericton. The winner of the Domville cup, Capt. Forbes, received it from Lieut. D. R. Chandler, while the governor-general's medals of silver and bronze were presented to A. H. English and Major G. S. Kinnear, who made 48 and 47 points respectively, by the lieutenant-governor. Lieut.-Colonel J. L. McAvity, of the 62nd, vice-president of the association, made the presentation to the fifteen winners of grand aggregate prizes. Their names are given later with the splendid scores they rolled up.

The awards in the Robertson championship match, the blue ribbon event of the meet, were presented by Major Perley to the two winners, Lieut. A. S. MacFarlane, of Fredericton, and Corp. E. F. Gladwin, of St. John. These two marksmen shared in almost every one of the higher honor distributions and in the shooting for the Robertson prizes tied and had to shoot again with the result that the former won, having 24 points to 19 of his opponent. Their scores throughout were large.

The presentations were marked by bright pleasing speeches and happy reference was made to the remarkably high scoring done in the various events. The winner of each match was heartily congratulated and in the several cases where particularly high totals had been registered, the applause which greeted the successful marksman was long and hearty. None received a greater share of applause than did Major J. M. Kinnear, one of the "old guard" and a veteran member of the P. R. A., who was one of those whose names figured in the first meet of the Provincial Rifle Association forty-six years ago and who still maintains an active interest in the welfare and advancement of that body.

The winner of the McAvity match was Major J. M. Kinnear, one of the veterans at the meet, who has been shooting consistingly and well in every match. His scores have been high in each contest and this morning he won easily against a large field with a score of 46 in a 50 possible. His son Major G. M. Kinnear was second with 45 points. The returns in the shooting in the special extra series aggregate show the leader to be Dr. R. L. Ellis of Jacquet River, who rolled up the total of 49 with C. C. White of Grand Falls slightly lower with the same number of points. The figures in this series tell of clever shooting, 50 points being possible.
