WAS ACTING LIKE A WILD MAN WHEN POLICE ARRIVED

John Doyarn, a Wealthy Tourist, Releaved Of Firearms And Allowed To Go — Had Been Celebrating.

The names of two citizens of the United States appeared on the police book on Saturday, one as a protectionist and the other as an offender against the laws. John Doyarn, aged 8 was the latter and is said to have been a wealthy tourist celebrating his return to his native land. He had taken several drinks too many and early Saturday morning his wife appealed to the police for assistance. Doyarn was acting like a wild man, the police say, and threatened to clean up the town. Policemen Gosse and Nelson arrested him in King Square and when searched a loaded revolver was found on him, besides a ticket for Boston and $2 in cash. He had intended to leave for Boston on the Calvin on Saturday night but he was allowed to go, after confiscation of his firearms.

Arthur Leighton, aged 27, applied for lodging at the police station Saturday night, saying he was passing through the city on the way to St. Stephen and had wandered away from the railway station. When he returned the train was gone and he had no money to pay his board till Monday.

WEDDINGS.

Lamb—Keith.

In New York on Wednesday last Miss Keith, only daughter of the Rev. Elias Keith, of Havelock, Kings county, was married to Dr. Frank S. Lamb, a young practitioner of Havelock. The wedding took place at 569 West 184th street, the residence of Dr. Ross Hamilton Keith, the bride's youngest brother. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Henry, a former resident of Havelock and now the well known pastor of the Seventh Street Methodist church, New York, in the presence of a considerable number of relatives, several of them relatives of the bride, and former residents of New Brunswick. The young couple stood under a bower of smilax and silken flags during the ceremony, which was unattended, and after the marriage by her brother, wore a gown of princess lace, the work of a Parisian dressmaker. She was the recipient of many handsome and costly gifts. Dr. and Mrs. Lamb left on the 5 o'clock train for Boston. They drove to the Grand Central Station in a taxicab decorated with flowers. After spending ten days visiting cities of New England and at the home of the bride's uncle, Frank Keith, in New Hampshire, the happy couple will proceed to Havelock where they will make their home.

On With the Play

THE DUKE AND THE DETECTIVE IN THRILLING SCENE IN THE PLAY "ARSENE LUPIN."

New York Is Stirred Over French Play

Metropolis Aquiver Over Arsene Lupin, the New French Detective Play That Has Stirred New York and Paris---The Story of the Play and its Phenomenal Success.

(By W. G. Sheperd.)

New York, Sept. 17.—New York is aquiver as London and Paris have been, over the French detective play, "Arsene Lupin." Chas. Frohman made a lucky strike when he brought it to this country. Already he is forming road companies. So the whole country is likely to see it.

Francis de Croisset and Maurice Leblanc, who wrote "Arsene Lupin," did something brand new in the detective line.

See for yourself: A brilliant thief, who calls himself "Arsene Lupin," is working in Paris, and is the talk of the town, because he always leaves his calling card and always gives warning, in advance, of his coming.

Gournay-Martin, rich, with a home in Paris, and a chateau in the suburbs, is particularly the mark of Lupin. Every courteous threat that Lupin has sent him has been fulfilled. Pictures have been cut from the walls; safes have been broken into from the rear, leaving their fronts undamaged Guerchard, a great detective of Paris, is put on the case after the Gournay-Martins have been robbed three times.

Guerchard, in a scene at the Gournay-Martin chateau, discovers that servants seem to be in the plot. He orders them held and calls for a patrol wagon. A wagon rolls up, takes the prisoners—and Guerchard discovers that it was a fake patrol wagon sent by Lupin. This is only one of the many tricks shown in the play.

A Message.

While the detective is in the house a message comes from Lupin that at 12 that night he will steal the Gournay-Martin pearl necklace from the chateau. The Duke of Charemace, who is to be married to Germaine Gournay, and who has hunted lions in Africa, travelled in balloons, fought in many wars, and hunted the north pole, is a guest at the chateau. Old Gournay-Martin hurries his family in automobiles from the chateau to Paris at once.

"If he says he'll come," says the old man, "he'll come, and I don't want to be here with my family."

The Duke of Charemace, whose chivalry and courtesy have made him the social lion of the day in Paris, agrees to remain in the chateau with Guerchard to guard the pearl necklace.

The Big Room.

Guerchard places the necklace on the table and the two men sit down in the big lonely room. Then comes the scene that makes the play a success. For the first time the audience discovers that Guerchard, baffled by Lupin for many years, believes that the duke is Lupin. They smoke and talk together. The clock nears 12. The duke banters Guerchard that he has not caught Lupin.

"But he won't get this necklace. I'll make him break his promise," says Guerchard. It is three minutes to 12.

"At 12 o'clock," says the duke, "Lupin will have this necklace," pointing at the case on the table.

The clock strikes midnight.

"Ha!" exclaims Guerchard seizing the case.

"Ha! ha!" echoes the duke. "These are paste. The necklace was stolen many days ago."

In the last act Guerchard traces the duke to his rooms for proof that he has the stolen necklace. The duke, cornered, his house surrounded by Guerchard's men, goes upstairs in an elevator and sends the elevator down. Guerchard not finding any stairway takes the elevator. As he ascends the audience discovers that the elevator has two decks and on the lower deck sits Lupin before a mirror, "making himself up" to look like Guerchard. He steps out and calls in Guerchard's men.

"Lupin is upstairs in that elevator," he says. "He is disguised like Guerchard. When he comes down, seize him. I'll go to the front of the house."

Escapes.

Thus he escapes while Guerchard's own men are trying to arrest Guerchard. With Lupin goes Sonia Kritchnofe, former servant in the Gournay-Martin home, with whom the duke fell in love when he discovered that she was stealing from Germaine, the duke's finance, and whom he saved from the police.

There's no triumph or virtue in the whole play, stealing is fairly glorified and the victim is the comedian of the play. The thief wins and you want him to, because he's clever. The play is melodrama from start to finish and it is the first melodrama New York has embraced in many years.

Wm. Courtenay is Lupin and Sidney Herbert is Guerchard. When they get together and gaze at each other, Lupin lighting Guerchard's cigarette, the matinee girls just gasp.

The pretty girl of the show is Doris Keane, who plays Sonia, but the part is too small for her.

WORK COMMENCED ON SCHOOL AT KINGSTON

Consolidated School Destroyed by Fire is Being Rebuilt---Building To Be Completed in December.

Kingston, Kings county, Sept. 17.—Contractor Fairweather and his men began work on our new school building yesterday. Mr. Piers and Son who have the contract for the concrete work are already busy placing the foundation to expect to have it ready for the superstructure by October 1st. The finished building which, judging from the plans, is to be equally beautiful as the original McDonald building, is to be completed by the end of the present year when it is to be hoped that the school can be removed to it from the old town hall which is now occupied by it.

Contractor Fairweather has rented the house of Mr. John Hill and intends moving his family for the winter.

Quite a number of our residents are in Fredericton attending the exhibition among whom are Chief W. C. Carter, Chas. Dickson, Miss Thompson, Wm. Starrett, Esq., F. A. Vanwart.

Miss H. Northrope who has been spending her summer vacation at her home here, Maple Ridge Lodge, leaves tomorrow to resume her duties of nursing in the U. S. A.

Word received from F. A. Jewett, B. A., who was the principal of our consolidated school from 1907-09, and who has accepted a fine position as principal of the first school in Vancouver, B. C., states that he is well pleased with his position and delighted with the country and climate.

Chief W. S. Carter and family are preparing to leave their summer home here, "Willow Cottage" and remove to their new home in Fredericton.

Mr. John Hill who is now living in Lakeside, is in the village for a few days.

MARRIED SATURDAY AT FREDERICTON

Fredericton, N. B., Sept. 19.—At the home of the bride's mother yesterday afternoon, Rev. J. W. McConnell performed the ceremony of uniting in marriage Gertrude, only daughter of the late Dr. George E. Coulthard, and Dr. Bruce E. Miles, of Cranbrook, B. C., son of A. B. Miles of Maugerville.

The invited guests were limited to relatives and immediate friends. The bride wore a costume of white silk with tulle veil and orange blossoms. She was given in marriage by her uncle, W. B. Coulthard, manager of the Royal Bank, and was unattended. After luncheon the happy couple left by the C. P. R. for Cranbrook to live there. The bride who is one of the city's most popular and accomplished young ladies, received a large number of valuable presents, including a check from the bridegroom.

Quebec, Sept. 18.—The man who gave his name as Wilson, when captured in Champlain street on Wednesday night, was identified by a Pinkerton detective as one of the most dangerous crooks in the United States.

COOK ANXIOUS TO DISPROVE ALLEGATIONS

Explorer On Board Oscar II. Wires of His Coming Triumph Over Rival--Has Complete Answer for Criticisms.

WILLING TO GO BEFORE TRIBUNAL

On board the Oscar II, by United Wireless and Marconi wireless telegraph, via Halifax, N. S., Sept. 18.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook evinces the strongest desire to arrive in New York as quickly as possible. He is anxious to prove to America the veracity of his claims, although the charges brought against him by Commander Peary and others do not cause him the slightest concern. He has a complete answer, he says, for everything.

In reply to a question as to what answer he would make to these charges Dr. Cook said this afternoon:

Will Wait.

"I will not enter into any controversy until I know definitely what has been brought against me and whence it emanated. Commander Peary's general and articulate charges do not call for any response from me until he gives to the public as much as I have. He has given few details of his journey claiming that he reached the pole on a certain date without much else.

"His accusations are founded purely on statements given him by an ignorant man, whom I purposely kept from learning the facts. When I land I will examine the charges and reply when the proper time comes. Peary's declaration that he is the only man who has been to the pole and will prove it, still awaits proof. As to the affirmation that Peary has evidence to refute my story, that evidence is based on the word of Murphy, the boatswain, who is unable to read or write.

"I have already expressed my readiness to place my observations before a committee from scientific bodies and the verdict of that committee will justify my story."

MYSTERY SURROUNDS DEATH OF DENTIST

Massachusetts Doctor is Found Dead and Foul Play is Feared---Two Suspects Now Held in Jail.

Ayer, Mass., Sept. 18.—That Dr. N. Stone, the Newburyport dentist, whose body was found yesterday near the main highway between this town and Harvard, was the victim of murder, was proved conclusively by the autopsy today. In addition to wounds made apparently by a blunt instrument, such as a heavy stone, the physicians found that two bullets had entered the left side of the neck. Dr. Stone was last seen alive on Monday night between eight and nine o'clock when he left the home of his sister, Mrs. Chas. G. Davis, in Harvard, to drive to the Ayer station, where he was to take a train. Whether he ever reached the station or whether he was killed during the drive is a matter which the authorities are still investigating. The farm hand who accompanied Dr. Stone on the drive denies any knowledge of his death and insists that he left Dr. Stone at the Ayer railroad station just before the arrival of the 9.20 train.

Tonight Raymond Plouffe, the farm hand, and Felix Lapoint, who has been at work driving a milk route, were taken into custody and sent to the jail in Clinton where they will be held for an examination next Monday. Both the men were under surveillance all day and were closely questioned by the officers, but they are said to have stuck to the assertion that they knew nothing of the death of Dr. Stone.

DEATH ENDS LONG AUTOMOBILE RACE

One of the Contestants in Philadelphia Press Transcontinental Race is Killed in Accident.

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 18.—Harry L. Giant Wanderer is Nearing the Earth

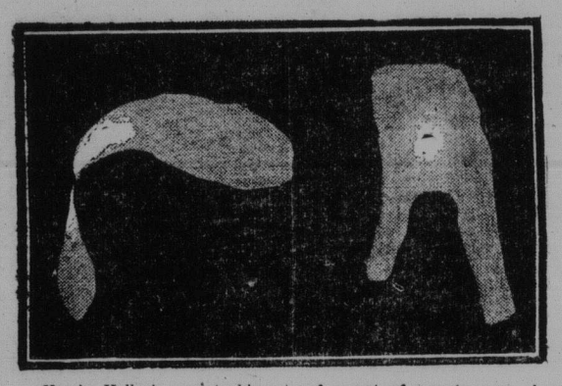
Great Astronomical Phenomenon Known as Halley's Comet is Hustling Through Space at Thousands of Miles per Second--The Absorbing Story of its History.



Here's Halley's comet, biggest and rarest of comets, now headed this way. It can be seen now for the first time in 76 years. These pictures were taken in 1835-6, at its last appearance. At the left the comet has been visible one month, at the right three months.

Paris, Sept. 19.—M. Camille Flammarion, the famous French astronomer, is at present in Heidelberg. He sends the European edition of the New York Herald today a highly interesting communication on the discovery of Halley's comet by Herr Max Wolf, of Heidelberg observatory. M. Flammarion says:

"In the Herald of July 31 I published the orbit of Halley's comet, and announced that it would arrive within sight of the earth after a voyage of seventy-five years and that one might begin to look for it in September in the position calculated in the ephemeris around the little stars in the northeastern extremity of the constellation Orion, but that, its pale nebulosity being extremely feeble at the distance where it still is, it would be by photography that it would be discovered before being observed with the most powerful instruments.

"I have had the good fortune to see these indications realized, so to speak, under my eyes. This very day, September 12, I went on purpose to the University of Heidelberg, first to express my sincere admiration to the astronomer, Max Wolf, whose discoveries in regard to comets and nebulae have given to science so many wonderful results, then to visit his astro-physical appartus and finally in the hope—I might almost say the certainty—that it would be he who would first capture the comet on its present return on its way.

Discovered on September 12.

And it just happened that it was actually during my sojourn at Heidelberg that this new success has been obtained. Wolf, in fact, has just recognized this comet this morning, September 12, at 2 o'clock, on a photographic plate which had been already prepared several weeks to seize the wandering star in the depths of the heavens.

It was not without emotion that I realized I was the first to receive this information from the able astronomer and to see with my own eyes on the plate the distant visitor coming from the infinite in obedience to the laws of astronomical calculation.

For seventy-four years, since the year 1835, it had disappeared beyond the field of vision of the inhabitants of the earth. It had gone beyond the known boundaries of the solar system to the scarcely conceivable distance of five billion kilometres. For thirty-seven years it has been listening to the voice of the sun, which recalled it, and has been coming toward us with increasing velocity.

But one might ask whether it might not have been turned from its flight by more powerful attractions, whether, like some other of its sisters, it may not have beeen dispersed, broken up into meteors. And it was not without anxiety that we awaited a new confirmation of the orbit, already verified in 1759 and 1835.

Almost Lost Among the Stars.

Well, it has come back safe and sound in appearance. See it on this plate—a little round nebulosity, hardly perceptible, of the seventeenth magnitude, almost lost in the midst of a group of little stars! It has come back. Astronomy, Queen of Sciences, is once more trimphant.

It is now 522,000,000 kilometres awy and its light takes twenty-nine minutes to traverse the space which separates us from it. Its position is 94 degrees 33 minutes in right ascension of 17 degrees 11 minutes in declination. It is found at the point indicated on the chart which we published in the Herald of July 31.

It may be noticed that it is just in September that the comet appeared to stop in its apparent path. This is the result of the combination of its movement with that of the earth. As it can only be distinguished from a nebula by the alteration of its position night by night on the chart of the heavens, if the astronomer had not looked for it on purpose and with an experienced eye, it would have been almost impossible to discover it.

Soon, on the other hand, it will advance rapidly toward the stars of Taurus and reach Aldebaran in the last days of November, but it will not be visible to the naked eye for a long time. For the time being photography alone can catch it and the most powerful telescopes will not be able to show it. They will await it doubtless the beginning of November, and it appears to me that it will scarcely become an object visible to every eye until February or March.

Even then it will not be comparable to the magnificent comets of 1858, 1861 and 1862, or even to those of 1874, 1881 and 1882. But since for twenty-five years the stage of the heavens has shown us nothing of this kind it cannot fail to be noticeable, especially at the end of March and the beginning of April.

At Its Approach in April.

It should pass its perihelion on April 13 at its nearest approach to the sun. Until that time it will be a morning star and consequently a little out of reach of our civilized habits. But from April 14 it will be seen in the west after the setting of the sun.

As it will then have been illuminated, electrified, penetrated by the radiant fires of the sun, maybe it will regain its grand appearance at the time of the conquest of England in 1066 and of the time of the war of Mohamet II. against Pope Calixtus II. in 1456. Before that time we will again speak of it, for spectrum analysis will have more than one question to ask it, without counting the searching revelations of photography.

The instrument which has aided in making known its return is a Foucault telescope of seventy-two centimetres in diameter constructed by Zeiss, of Jena. Its focal length is two metres eighty certimetres. The plate was nine by twelve and the duration of the exposure one hour.

Hail to the return of Halley's comet! Hail also to Max Wolf, and to the observatory of Heidelberg.

STREET CAR SERVICE CRIPPLED BY STRIKE

Omaha and Council Bluffs Wifhout Surface Car Service When Employes Strike---A New Wage Schedule Wanted

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 18.—The street car system of Omaha and Council Bluffs was unexpectedly put out of commission today by a strike of nearly five hundred motormen and conductors on the question of a new wage schedule. The tieup was not complete, but service on every line was so seriously crippled that no attempt was made to run cars on schedule time. Many of the lines did not get cars started until the middle of the afternoon and officials of the company decided to abandon efforts at service tonight.
