TALES OF LONDON TOWN

—Catherine Gattenly, of Goderich, died in this city yesterday after a long illness. The remains were taken to that town for interment last night.

—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Barnes was held from her residence at Crumlin today. The interment took place at Brown's Hill Cemetery. The funeral was attended by many friends of the family.

—Samuel Marsden, of 1015 North Leffingwell avenue, St. Louis, Mo., is anxious to know the whereabouts of George Rhodes, who is a carpenter by trade, and left St. Louis for the Canadian West about 1860. He would now be about 68 years of age.

—Miss Maud Bland, of London, who has been visiting for several weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bland, 596 Huron street, has returned home. Mr. and Mrs. T. Palmer McCormick, of London, are now the guests of Mrs. McCormick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bland.—Toronto Globe.

—Among the floral tributes placed on the casket of the late William A. Beattie was a beautiful emblem, "Gates Ajar," from the members of No. 7 Company, Seventh Regiment. The funeral took place yesterday from W. J. Smith & Son's undertaking rooms to his mother's residence at Highgate.

Mr. William Bradford, a popular young resident of this city, and a member of the Orient Club, left this morning to take a position in the Merchants' Bank at Windsor. His many friends will wish him much success.

EAST MIDDLESEX TRIAL.

The reporters' copies of the evidence in the East Middlesex election trial are about ready for counsel, and an early date will be fixed by the judges for the hearing of argument in Toronto.

LARGE AUDIENCE EXPECTED.

A very large audience will attend the Barron piano competition in the Auditorium on Wednesday evening. All the tickets have been disposed of and no more will be issued. Those having tickets will be seated first, after which people with invitations, but no tickets, will be seated.

SITE IS BEING CLEARED.

The site of the armory is gradually becoming cleared and several buildings have been torn down in the course of the last few days, while several others are either being torn down or moved away. There now remains but two or three buildings on the site, having tenants.

SILVER WEDDING.

A very pleasant gathering took place last Friday evening, the 7th inst., at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. DeWolfe, 720 King street, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of their wedding day. After amusements had been freely indulged in, all sat down to a very daintily prepared supper, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. At an early hour the gathering dispersed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. DeWolfe continued prosperity, and trusting that they might live to see and enjoy their golden wedding anniversary. Numerous presents were received from friends and relatives at home and abroad, expressing in a practical way the esteem and friendship with which Mr. and Mrs. DeWolfe are held.

GERALD SIFTON SAVED BY EXPERT MEDICAL EVIDENCE

Hamilton Herald Comments Upon the Recent Murder Trial—Herbert's Position.

Gerald Sifton has been saved from death on the gallows by "expert" medical evidence. The evidence that he murdered his father on the morning of the day that the old man was to be married—murdered him in order to prevent the old man's estate from passing into other hands—was very strong, both directly and circumstantially. The young man Herbert, in Gerald Sifton's employ, swore that Gerald had bribed him with a promise of $1,000 to assist in putting the elder Sifton out of the way, that he (Herbert) had begun the horrible work by hitting the victim on the head with an axe, that Gerald had also struck him several blows on the head with the same weapon, and had then thrown him out of a hole in the barn wall. The doctor who had been called to attend the dying man swore that the son had urged him to give Joseph Sifton poison "to end his sufferings," and had afterwards told the witness that he had done what he had requested the witness to do.

There was an abundance of corroborative evidence all tending to strengthen the case against the prisoner. But several doctors were put in the witness box who testified that if Herbert's story were true and the old man had been hit on the head with an axe as many times as Herbert said he had been, the skull would have been mashed to pulp. As the skull was not reduced to this condition, the doctors said they didn't believe Herbert's story. Other doctors testified that the condition of the skull was quite consistent with Herbert's story. But there was sufficient conflict in the "expert" testimony to raise a doubt in the minds of the jurymen; and as it was their duty to give the prisoner the benefit of any doubt, they acquitted him.

That there has been a miscarriage of justice in this case will no doubt be believed by many, who will consider it very strange that the opinions of a few medical men as to certain probabilities could nullify the testimony of the man who confessed to having been an accomplice in the alleged murder. Assuming that Joseph Sifton was killed with blows from an axe, would it not be reasonable to suppose that the person who struck the blows, having already planned to throw the body of the victim out of a barn to the ground in order to establish the theory that death had been caused by the fall, would be careful not to put such force into the blows as to destroy the theory?

The situation resulting from the verdict of acquittal is rather curious. No matter what one's opinion may be regarding Gerald Sifton's guilt or innocence, nobody has a legal right to assume his guilt. The law says he is an innocent man, and that settles it. But what about Herbert? If his story is true, he is a murderer. But the jury has decided that his story is not true; and it would therefore be absurd to punish him for a crime which, according to these good men and true, never happened. But if his story is not true, then he must be a perjurer. Should a perjurer be permitted to escape punishment? And yet would it not seem strange to send this young man to penitentiary because having made confession of his complicity in a crime, a jury decided not to believe his confession?—Hamilton Herald.

FROM OCEAN TO OCEAN

Cycle of Musical Festivals To Be Given in Canada.

Sir A. C. Mackenzie Will Conduct Chorus Here.

Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie, England's greatest living composer, who is principal of the London Royal Academy of Music, whence Arthur Sullivan sprang, will conduct the singers of this city next April. Mr. Charles A. E. Harriss is here making all preliminary arrangements that London may be included in the cycle of musical festivals, which commence at Halifax, and terminate at Victoria. Festival choruses have been formed in all of the principal towns, and aggregate upwards of four thousand voices. The soloists come from England; the orchestra numbers 50 performers, Sir Alexander Mackenzie taking the conductorship in each town, these choruses being trained during the winter months by a local associate conductor. It is a stupendous work on behalf of musical progress all over the country, of such far-reaching a purport, that induced Sir A. C. Mackenzie to leave London and his busy life for a month and associate himself with Mr. Harriss in this effort.

These festivals will include newly-organized choruses in nearly all the provinces. The works of British composers will be a feature of the festivals, choral and orchestral compositions given in their entirety by such eminent composers as Villiers, Stanford, Hubert Parry, Arthur Sullivan, Frederick Cowen, Edward Elgar, Alexander Mackenzie and many others. The choral works to be given in Canada will include Mackenzie "Story of Sayid," Mackenzie's "Dream of Jubal," Mackenzie's "The Cotter's Saturday Night," Parry's "Ode to Music," Parry's "Blest Pair of Sirens," Parry's "Ode on St. Cecilia's Day," Cowan's "Coronation Day," Cowan's "Ode to the Passions," Stanford's "Revenge," Stanford's "Battle of the Baltic," Coleridge Taylor's "Hiawatha," Elgar's "Banner of St. George," Elgar's "Coronation Ode," "Scandinavian Symphony," Stanford's "Irish Rhapsody," German's "Gipsy Suite," MacCann's overture, "The Land of the Mountain and the Flood," Sullivan's overture, "Di Ballo," Mackenzie's overture, to the opera, "The Cricket on the Hearth," Mackenzie's suite, "London Day by Day," Mackenzie's "Scotch Rhapsody" (No. 1), and Burns' "Scotch Rhapsody" (No. 2), Mackenzie's "La Belle Dames Sans Merci," Mackenzie's "Britannia" overture, and Mackenzie's "Coronation March." It will be seen that the music covers a wide and varied range.

—The proprietors of the Britannia and Sadlier Houses will answer to a charge of selling liquor after hours and of having more than one bar in their hotels, at police court tomorrow morning. Sergt. Crawford and P. C. Thompson called upon the places on Saturday night and claimed to have found them both doing a rushing business.

AN EFFECTIVE PRODUCTION

Sherlock Holmes Pleased Every Member of Audience.

Kelcey and Shannon Are, as Usual, Surrounded by Admirable Support.

It is doubtful if there was a single member of the audience at the Grand Opera House last night who failed to thoroughly enjoy the fine production of William Gillette's melodrama, "Sherlock Holmes," as presented by Mr. Herbert Kelcey and Miss Effie Shannon, assisted by a clever and evenly balanced company. It is altogether regrettable that these two favorite players should have come to London and been confronted by a house which was not nearly commensurate with the merits of the attraction. The large sale for the Scotch concert of tonight is alleged as a reason for the inadequate patronage extended to last night's attraction, but this can hardly be taken as a sufficient excuse for the action of Londoners in slighting two artists whose productions are always clean, pleasing and presented with a careful attention to details which make them doubly delightful to the critical playgoer.

In "Sherlock Holmes," Mr. Gillette has given to the stage an absorbing play and an extraordinary character. The plot is partly taken from Conan Doyle's "A Scandal in Bohemia," partly from an unpublished story by the same author, and is partly supplied by the dramatist. Other of Doyle's stories have been called upon to furnish portions of the dialogue. The central figure of the play retains the superhuman powers and unique personality with which he was invested by his creator, Dr. Doyle, but Mr. Gillette has, for stage purposes, endowed him with a heart, thus adding the popular element of a love story. While the drama has its weak spots, it forms on the whole a logical sequence of events, and its impossibilities are only those arising out of the fact that its hero is an impossible man.

From the roles of the two principals to the most minor part, the cast was a meritorious one. Mr. Kelcey's work as Sherlock Holmes was a surprise to those who had hitherto seen him in more conventional impersonations. He was the careless, cool, calculating and saturnine detective to the life, and it is a tribute to his clever handling of the role that Holmes' exhibitions of his supernatural powers were made to seem perfectly credible and natural. Mr. Kelcey's playing of this role is another proof of his possession of a versatility and resource which place him among the most capable actors of the day.

One of the few faults to be found with the play is that it gives Miss Effie Shannon too little opportunity for the display of her ability. Miss Shannon's personality is too winning and her art too exquisite to be submerged in such a role as that of Alice Faulkner.

Mention of the best members of the support would simply be a recapitulation of the cast, for all were satisfactory. George T. Meech as Dr. Watson, assumed the professional manner to perfection. David Davies had both the face and the ability to enact Professor Moriarty, the arch-criminal. Miss Lorina Atwood was striking as the adventuress, Madge Larrabee, and James Canfield made a good villain, or rather, a bad villain. Allen Davenport, who played the part of Bassick, Moriarty's lieutenant, was last seen in London as a member of Alberta Gallatin's "Nell Gwynne" Company. W. R. Walters, Harry Walters and Percy Campbell were as fearsome a trio of thugs as one would wish to meet on a dark night in a blind alley. Walter McArdle proved himself a talented boy actor in the role of Billy. Miss Winona Shannon made a fetching French maid.

The scenery and properties were elaborate and complete in every detail. The electrical effects were marvelous and to them the production owes a large part of its effectiveness.

MISSING FOR A WEEK

Alexander Smith, military tailor at Wolseley Barracks, went away last Wednesday, and has not been heard of since.

He was in good spirits when he left, and not a reason can be given for his disappearance. He is about 5 feet 7 inches in height, wears a black mustache, slightly tinged with gray, and had on a brown suit and black overcoat when he left. He speaks with a strong Scotch accent. The police have been working on the case, with [illegible] avail.

THAT HEADACHE

Is Only a Symptom of Dyspepsia, and Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Drive It Away Once and for All.

So many ailments come from the improper digestion of food that it is almost impossible to overestimate the value of having the stomach in good working order. That headache that makes brain work an impossibility, that heartburn, those pains in the stomach are only some of the symptoms of Dyspepsia, that nerve destroying terror of these days of hurry and bustle. Nearly everyone has it in some shape or other and many do not know that it can be easily and permanently cured. It is to these that Marie Ann Bujold, of Bonaventure County, Quebec, wants to talk. She has suffered from Dyspepsia and tells how Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets cured her.

"For two years my life had been a burden," she says. "I could not take the simplest food without having a pain across my stomach.

"I finally consulted some doctors, but they did me no good. Then I saw an advertisement of Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets and resolved to try them. They relieved me almost immediately and cured me so completely that I have not been troubled since.

"I am always glad to tell others what Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets did for me."

Thousands of other people will tell you that Dyspepsia cannot live in the same stomach with Dodd's Dyspepsia Tablets.
