Detroit, Aug. 20.—The layers of odds had matters pretty much their own way at Grosse Point to-day, but two favorites winning. A CLOSE RACE EVERY DAY

IN LIGHT WEATHER CANADA SHOULD BEAT VENCEDOR.

The Two Big Racing Machines in Dry Dock at Toledo—No Exact Line on the Yachts by Any Chain of Reckoning—The Two Boats Compared.

Toledo, Aug. 20.—(Special.)—The Canada arrived here from Put-in-Bay late on Wednesday, and was hauled out on the Shanes Marine Railway early yesterday morning. The Vencedor is docked at Craig's dry dock on the opposite side of the river.

The Canada has much the fairer lines of the two, but the Vencedor shows great power in heavy weather and should prove a flyer. It is the general opinion, however, that in moderate or light winds the Dominion's representative will prove the speedier boat; even in heavy weather the Canada should have a good chance.

It has been agreed out that Vencedor ought to win easily because she defeated Vreda by 27 minutes in Cleveland, and Canada has never beaten Zelma by more than 5 minutes, while the latter usually sails on pretty even terms with Vreda. The weak point of this chain of reasoning is that the course in Cleveland was 21 miles, while the 5-minute defeat which Canada administered to Zelma was over a 6-mile course. Added to this Zelma can defeat Vreda, and the latter met with a series of mishaps in the Cleveland race which practically cut off ten or fifteen minutes from Vencedor's winning margin of time.

The prospects are a close race every day, with odds on Canada in light weather.

The Chicago Vencedor went on the dock here. The Vencedor went on the dry dock Tuesday and for the first time since she was built the mystery of her underbody was made known. During her building the utmost secrecy was preserved, and even Commodore Berriman was not allowed to take a snap shot of the bottom for his own collection.

The formal announcement of the Canada as the defender for the Royal Yacht Club removes the reason for the mystery, and anyone who wishes may examine the boat. Stated briefly, the Vencedor is a true fin keel, while her opponent is a compromise. The Vencedor's bottom proper, view from the front, seems almost like a shallow bowl, while the fin is merely a steel plate with a lead bulb cast upon it. This plate is only three-fourths of an inch thick, so there is practically no resistance at any point between the bottom of the planking and the bulb.

The difference between the two boats can be better understood when it is stated that the Canada carries her framing half way down the fin and is 12 inches thick at the narrowest point. The Vencedor's fin is fastened to a four-by-four keelson bolt. Other four-by-fours extend along the bilge strake and these are connected with the deck by cross sectional stays of half-inch rods. The latter incline in toward the top, making an angle of 45 degrees. The steel construction is still further strengthened by cross straps.

The under body, viewed from amidships, exhibits still greater differences. The Vencedor is cut away on almost a horizontal line from stem to stern, until the fin is reached. The latter is then carried down in almost vertical lines.

The Canada, on the other hand, carries down the front line of the fin in a sweeping curve. The Vencedor's construction gives less opportunity for wave resistance under the stem, and she glides over the water instead of cutting through it. The length of the bulb at the bottom is ten feet on the Vencedor, and fourteen on the Canada. In fact, the Vencedor is built very closely on the lines of the Niagara, so that she combines stiffness in a heavy sea with the minimum of wetted surface.

In a few hours yesterday the Vencedor was changed from a luxurious cruiser to a racing boat. Every ounce of weight that could be dispensed with was taken out of the boat and the bulkheads and cabin trunks were taken out entire. A false cockpit is being put in place, which will afford room enough for the crew to handle the sheets without going on the deck. On Friday she will be ready to emerge in true racing trim.

Commodore Berriman is busy with carpenters and metal workers, and expects to have the new mainsail in shape by Friday. This latter cloth is now being made at Racine, where a force is working night and day to prevent delay. The sail tried upon the Vencedor encountered at Cleveland one week ago stretched every cloth, as she was caught with all her canvas up. The down haul of the topsail jammed at that critical moment and the rigging was tested to its utmost capacity, but nothing carried away.

As an evidence of the good feeling exhibited toward the Vencedor by Canadian yachtsmen, it may be stated that the Zelma's skipper, Captain Mooney, loaned the Vencedor a jib to replace the badly stretched one, and it fitted so very well that a copy will be made of it for the owner here. The Zelma's jib was made by Ratsey of London, and it would doubtless give that patriotic sailmaker a fit if he knew of the courtesy tendered this sail. Commodore Berriman denies the story that has been sent out that Captain "Kid" Wilds will be the Vencedor's sailing master in the regatta. Captain I. G. Barber, who was the Defender's sailing master, will hold the stick. Even money in lots from $1000 down is now offered here on the Vencedor, with no takers.

NO MORE RACING FOR BIG RATERS.

London, Aug. 20.—The Prince of Wales has given orders that his yacht, the Britannia, shall cease racing for the remainder of the yachting season, and it is reported that the Meteor, Satanita and Allea will also retire. This action is understood to have been taken in consequence of the accident off Southsea on Tuesday which resulted in the death of the German yachtsman, Baron Von Zedtwitz.

GAUDAUR TRAINING.

Telegram Special.

London, Aug. 20.—After his usual daily pedestrian practice Gaudaur this morning pulled over the course to be rowed by him in his race with Stanbury. He was accompanied by his trainer, Harding, and both finished with smart rowing, Harding being left somewhat astern.

CENTRE ISLAND REGATTA.

To-morrow afternoon will be a big time at Centre Island. In the Long Pond the event of the season, the annual regatta of the Island Amateur Aquatic Association, will commence at 2.30 p.m. The committee have been working hard all week and have just completed arrangements for the accommodation of the large crowd that is sure to be over to see the sports. A grand stand is being erected on the shore of Long Pond, and from it the spectators will be able to see all the course. A keen competition has arisen among the members for the championship medal. This will make the paddling first-class and increase the interest in the races. Great interest has been taken this season in the tilting tournament, and the onlookers will thoroughly enjoy seeing the bronzed paddlers tossed into the water. Gunwale canoe races and crab races are always good, and both these are on the program. The association has this year excelled all previous years in providing an interesting and amusing afternoon's sport. The proceeds of the regatta will be given to the Lakeside Home for Little Children. In the evening after the sports a dance will be given in the club rooms to close the day.

E. C. Breithaupt, Berlin, is at the Queen's.
