The Conservatives Strike a Winning Gait.

GREAT MEETING LAST NIGHT

Bertram's Temporary Advantage Has Now Disappeared.

The Enthusiasm of the Gathering Last Night Knew No Bounds—Clarke Wallace Was There and Delivered a Splendid Address—The Pretender Is Gradually Being Shown Up In His True Colors—An Omen of Victory.

Centre Toronto is to be redeemed on Tuesday next. At least, so would aver any man who attended the Howland meeting in Temperance Hall last night. The gathering proved large and enthusiastic, and a splendid series of campaign speeches were delivered. The meeting was under the management of Mr. Edmund Bristot, and Mr. Barlow Cumberland occupied the chair. On the platform were: Hon. E. Clarke Wallace, M.P., Hon. Peter White, T. D. Craig, M.P., E. B. Osler, M.P., W. F. Maclean, M.P., E. F. Clarke, M.P., John Crawford, M.L.A., Edmund Bristot, Robert Defries, C. C. Robinson, E. A. Dumas, Andrew McCormack, ex-Mayor Kennedy, R. S. Neville, Ald. Hubbard, Dr. R. J. Wilson, W. B. Newsome, E. J. Hearn, ex-Ald. James Kerr, Dr. Buck, Edward Henlan, Nicholas Murphy, Q.C., A. D. Benjamin, ex-Mayor Beatty, Q.C., John Laxton, A. E. K. Greer and others.

Mr. E. B. Osler, M.P., the first speaker, regretted his inability to be present for a great while, as he had another engagement. Mr. Bertram's speech at the nomination was like that of a little boy who put his finger in his mouth and said, "What a good little boy I am." He thought the Conservatives should support him, but he was so recent a convert that he was not to be trusted. He had all his life long advocated free trade and opposed the National Policy, which had made Canada what it was today. His leader had accepted the Cobden medal, and Mr. Bertram had worshipped the idol of free trade. He was, therefore, unacceptable. Mr. Osler then turned to the extravagance of the present Government. The policy of the Laurier Administration included the grossest extravagance. The deepening of the canals would not be objected to, nor would a fast Atlantic service, but the present Government had thrown over the Conservative policy on this question, and adopted a new one, which had already failed.

A voice: What about Washington?

Mr. Osler: I do not care to look to Washington for any ideas, and I think that Canada has been humiliated by the visit of the two Ministers to the American capital. It was all right to go to Washington to deal with the seal question, but the Ministers had been made a laughing-stock of by trying to get other favors over the line. Canada should not get down on her knees to the Americans, but should compel them to come to our market if they wanted our goods. He closed by calling on the young men of the riding to take off their coats and run up a majority of from 500 to 1000 for Mr. Howland.

Howland Not a Pretender.

W. F. Maclean, M.P., observed that Mr. Howland was an honest Conservative, and was willing to fight for his principles. He was not a pretender like Mr. Bertram. The Bertrams had fought him in East York and had always been against protection. The day of monopolies and members of Parliament exploiting this country to build up fortunes for themselves was over. Mr. Bertram belonged to the old class of men. The Globe favored the building of the James Bay Railway, the bonusing of it by both Governments and the final pocketing by the promoters of $5000 per mile on the line. Mr. Bertram favored these monopolies, but Mr. Howland opposed them.

Mr. Maclean then read a few extracts from the speeches of Liberal members at Ottawa, contrasting them with Mr. Bertram's pretended stand to-day. He read from the utterances at the Ottawa Liberal Convention of Sir Oliver Mowat, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Sir Richard Cartwright, pledging the party to entirely do away with protection and introduce free trade. Mr. Bertram was at that free trade convention, but because this was a protection city, he advocated the maintenance of the present tariff for 10 years. The great issue in this fight was the trade issue, and the people should vote for an honest protectionist like Mr. Howland, and not for a free-trader like Bertram. He (the speaker) had been all over the riding to-day, and Mr. Howland was going to sweep Centre Toronto.

The chairman, before calling on another speaker, likened Mr. Bertram to the ass who donned a lion's skin. As soon as the ass opened his mouth and brayed he was recognized.

Hon. Peter White's Address.

Hon. Peter White, ex-Speaker of the House of Commons, delivered an inspiriting address. He was proud of what the Conservative party had done, and it was not as the Liberal papers would have it, dead. During the short term of Hon. Alex. Mackenzie's Government, his Administration had violated every promise it had made to the people, and at the election of 1878 the people revenged themselves. The conduct of the Mackenzie Government was being now repeated by the Laurier Administration. The Liberals were going back on their promises on the tariff question. Sir Richard Cartwright had always denounced the N.P., but the manufacturers soon got the ear of the new Minister of Finance, and as a result the tariff was now really heavier than ever. The ex-Speaker attacked the new Government for their extravagance.

Have Had Too Much Time.

A voice: Give the Government time.

Mr. White: They have had time to get authority from Parliament to borrow $15,000,000 abroad. They have had time in a few months to increase the expenditure, and to break all their promises. They have had time to increase the tariff which they before cried was bleeding the country. [Cheers.]

Mr. White then recalled the circumstances of Sir Wilfrid's refusal to accept Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's offer. This was the first important election in the Province since the Liberal party attained power.

A Voice: "We don't want a lawyer."

Mr. White: "Why did you, then, vote for Lawyer Lount in the last general elections?"

In conclusion Mr. White pooh-poohed the chances of Mr. Bertram, even if he could change his spots, making any impression at Ottawa, for Sir Wilfrid Laurier had a solid phalanx behind him demanding free trade.

As the ex-Speaker sat down Candidate Howland entered the room, and stepping on the platform was cheered to the echo by the big audience, which rose to its feet, excited.

T. Dixon Craig, M. P.

Mr. T. Dixon Craig, M.P. for East Durham, got a good reception. Outside of Toronto the people all over the country were MRS. CAWTHRA-MURRAY'S WILL.

(Copy).

This is the last will and testament of me, Sarah Ellen Cawthra-Murray, of the City of Toronto, in the County of York, as follows:

I give, devise and bequeath to my executor and trustee hereinafter named, all my estate of whatsoever nature and wheresoever situate, of which I shall die possessed, or to which I shall die in any way entitled, upon the following trusts, that is to say:

1. To pay all my just debts, funeral and testamentary expenses.

2. To pay to my nephew, William Crowther, to my niece, Sarah Ellen Cawthra-Mulock, wife of the Honorable William Mulock, to my niece, Mary Ryerson, wife of Dr. G. Sterling Ryerson, and to the Honorable William Mulock, Postmaster-General of the Dominion of Canada, the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), each to his and her own use absolutely.

3. To retain and invest for the benefit of the daughter and two sons which my nephew, James Crowther, now has, the sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) to be divided equally between the said three children, the share of each child, together with the accumulations, to be retained and paid over to each child as he or she shall attain the age of twenty-one years, or shall marry with the consent of its parents or the survivor of them. In case of the death of one or more of the said children before becoming entitled to the payment of his or her share as aforesaid, the share or shares with the accumulations of such deceased child or children shall go to the survivors or survivor of them in equal shares, or in totality as the case may be, and be paid to them, him or her at the same time as hereinbefore fixed for the payment of their, his or her own shares or share; and in case of the death of all three of the said children before becoming entitled to payment as aforesaid, I give the whole of the said sum of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), together with the accumulations, to my nephew, the said James Crowther, or his personal representatives.

4. To pay to Marion Murray, wife of William T. Murray of the City of Toronto, merchant, the sum of two thousand dollars ($2000).

5. To pay to my two manservants, Gregory and Harris, the sum of four hundred dollars ($400) each; and to any maidservant in my service at the time of my death, who shall have served me for one year or more, the sum of fifty dollars ($50).

6. To give to the Honorable William Mulock, aforesaid, my brougham.

7. To give to my two nieces, aforesaid, Sarah Ellen Cawthra-Mulock and Mary Ryerson, my wearing apparel, to be divided equally between them.

8. The whole of the rest of the residue of my said estate I direct my said executor and trustee to retain and manage, subject to the directions hereinafter contained, for the benefit of Cawthra Mulock, the youngest son of the Honorable William Mulock, aforesaid, to whom I give the same absolutely, together with the accumulations thereof so soon as he shall have attained the age of twenty-one years or having married before that age with the consent of his parents, or the survivor of them shall have a lawful child born unto him or being lawfully begotten shall thereafter be born alive. I direct, however, my said executor and trustee to retain in his hands the corpus of my said residuary estate until the said Cawthra Mulock shall have attained the full age of twenty-five years, or for such further period not exceeding an additional five years as my said executor and trustee shall deem advisable, and I leave it entirely in the discretion of my said executor and trustee to fix the age of the said Cawthra Mulock not being earlier than twenty-five nor later than thirty years, at which he shall hand over to him the said Cawthra Mulock the whole corpus of my said residuary estate, together with the accumulations thereof. I desire the said Cawthra Mulock to assume and bear the surname of Mulock Cawthra.

9. I direct my executor and trustee to retain my dwellinghouse "Northwold," at the corner of Jarvis and Isabella-streets in the City of Toronto, and the household furniture and effects therein, including silver, plate, china, glass, etc., for the benefit of the said Cawthra Mulock, and to suitably keep up and maintain out of the income of my estate the said residence and the grounds, outbuildings and appurtenances thereto until my said residuary estate shall be finally disposed of or handed over in accordance with the provisions of this my will. And I should be pleased, but I do not in any sense intend this as a direction, if my said executor and trustee would retain the services of my said manservants, Gregory and Harris.

10. Upon the said Cawthra Mulock attaining the age of twenty-one years, I direct my said executor and trustee to pay to him an annual income equivalent to one-tenth of the net annual income of the estate (including the accumulations) then in his hands, and during each subsequent year to increase the said annual income by an additional one-tenth until he shall come into the enjoyment of the full income.

11. In case the said Cawthra Mulock shall die before attaining the age of twenty-one years or having married before attaining that age with the consent of his parents or the survivor of them before the birth of a lawful child or the begetting of a lawful child which shall afterwards be born living, then I give, devise and bequeath the whole of my said residuary estate as follows: that is to say, one-half thereof to my before-mentioned niece, Sarah Ellen Cawthra Mulock, and her husband, the Honorable William Mulock, in equal shares, or the whole one-half to the survivor of them should one be dead at such time, or in case of the death of both of them before such time, to their next of kin. One-quarter thereof to my nephew, William Crowther, or his next of kin, and the remaining one-quarter to my niece, Mary Ryerson, or her next of kin absolutely.

12. In case of the death before me or any of the within named legatees in respect of whose legacy no disposition in remainder has been herein made, it is not my intention that there shall be any lapse of such legacy, but, on the contrary, the same shall go and be paid to the next of kin of such legatee.

13. I give to my trustee and executor the fullest discretionary power in the management of my estate, including the right to retain the same in the form of investment in which the same shall be at the time of my death, or to sell and dispose of the same or any part thereof as he shall deem most advisable, and to reinvest the proceeds thereof and from time to time to vary any investment whether made during my lifetime or after my decease as he shall deem in the best interests of the estate, with full power to mortgage, lease, sell or exchange such of my estate as shall at any time be invested in real estate as my said executor and trustee in his discretion shall deem advisable.

14. I direct that any and every person obtaining any benefit under this my will shall therewith accept all the terms thereof, and should any such person take any step to set aside or alter my said will or any of the terms thereof, such person shall thereby forfeit all benefit thereunder, any such step shall of itself make void any and every beneficial provision for such person herein contained.

15. I hereby appoint the Honorable William Mulock, Postmaster-General of the Dominion of Canada, the sole trustee and executor of this my will.

Dated at Toronto this twenty-sixth day of August, A.D. 1897.

Signed and published by the within named testatrix as and for her last will and testament in our presence, who, in her presence, at her request and the presence of each other, have hereunto set our names as subscribing witnesses,

(Sgd.) SARAH CAWTHRA-MURRAY.

Sgd.) CHARLES MOSS,
of the City of Toronto,

CENTRE TORONTO.

The two Bertram organs, The Globe and The Star, did their best yesterday to prevent Clarke Wallace from getting on the Howland platform last night. They failed ignobly. Mr. Wallace appeared, made a good speech, and will make another good one on Saturday night.

Hon. Peter White goes East this morning, but will be one of the leading speakers at Massey Hall on Saturday night. So will Hon. N. C. Wallace.

Secretary Bryan of the Henry George Club has sent an open letter to each of the candidates requesting answers to the following questions:

1. Do you endorse and uphold the action of the Dominion Government in the matter of the Crow's Nest Pass Railway?

2. Do you favor the principle that the land and all the natural wealth of this country belongs to all the people, and that no individual or corporation should be permitted to have the use or enjoyment of any portion of it, without first making full compensation for the privilege so obtained?

3. Do you favor the principle that the grantees of all railway charters, waterpowers and other privileges should be compelled to make compensation therefor, and that the Government should secure to itself powers for the regulation or control of such?

4. Do you favor the principle that all subsidies or bonuses granted by the Government to individuals and corporations for the construction of railways or other undertakings should be considered as a liability by the beneficiaries, and that the Government should share in the benefits arising equally with the private investor?

The World is continually learning of men who declare that, though they voted Lount last year, they will cast their ballots for Howland this time. In one case that has come up three business men, occupying adjacent premises on Yonge-street, have foresworn the Liberal cause.

In June, 1896, just preceding the last general elections, 96 men, composing a club calling themselves the Irish Conservatives, all voted for Mr. Lount. Just after that election a convener was appointed to call the members together in case of another emergency. Under this arrangement a circular was sent out on Friday last and on Tuesday 90 responded. Mr. William McCutcheon was appointed chairman, and, after a few addresses from the chairman and others, a resolution was unanimously passed that all present should vote and work for Mr. Howland, and a number left the meeting early to start their labors for the Conservative candidate. A number of those present now live in West Toronto, some in East Toronto and one in Hogg's Hollow, but all were so interested in the election that they attended the meeting. One of the 96 members is dead, two are sick and three are out of the city, but the 95 survivors will all be on hand to cast Conservative votes.

To-day's Trolley Traffic.

At about noon to-day trailers will be placed on the street cars on all routes, to accommodate the holiday traffic. Special arrangements have been made for carrying passengers to and from the military sham fight and review. Six extra motors and trailers will be placed on the Winchester-street route, four extra motors and trailers on the Broadview route, and five extra motors and trailers on the Carlton and College route.

It Was a Foul Murder.

St. Scholastique, Que., Nov. 24.—The suicide theory in the case of Ovide Poirier of this Canadian village is abandoned. It is now looked upon as a foul murder. There are evidences of a desperate struggle, blood being in evidence on the walls of his room and the furniture smashed. The man was alone in the house, and there is no clue to the murderer.

Raiza Found Guilty of Manslaughter.

Pembroke, Ont., Nov. 24.—The jury found John Ratza guilty of manslaughter, with a recommendation to mercy, and Judge Armour sentenced him to three years at Kingston Penitentiary.

BATTLE OF THE DON.

Particulars of the Manœuvres in the East End Valley To-day—Thanksgiving Sham Fight.

Old Probs predicts a fine day for the military manœuvres, and that is all that is necessary now to make them a grand success. Over 2000 soldiers, divided into two armies, will meet in a war with blank cartridge in the valley of the Don.

The eastern force will be commanded by Lieut.-Col. Davidson, 48th Highlanders, and Major Mutton, Q.O.R., brigade-major. It includes one squadron of Royal Canadian Dragoons, one section of 9th Toronto Field Battery, Queen's Own Rifles and 48th Highlanders. This force will occupy Thorncliffe Farm, off the Don Mills-road.

The western army will be commanded by Lieut.-Col. Mason, R.G., and Major Cartwright, R.H.C.I., brigade-major. It will be composed of one squadron of the Governor-General's Body Guards, one section of 9th Toronto Field Battery, No. 2 Co. R.H.C.I., 10th Royal Grenadiers and 13th Battalion of Hamilton. This army will occupy Upper Canada College.

Little or no information can be gained regarding the proposed movements of either army, the plan of campaign as laid down by the officers being sealed until this morning. Each army will leave its stamping ground at 10.30, and will, in all likelihood, meet the other somewhere in the valley of the Don, and the high banks about a mile or two north of Winchester-street will probably be the best place to witness the engagement somewhere about noon.

The various regiments engaged will form up at their private parades at between 8 o'clock and 8.45 a.m. The eastern force, with the exception of the Kilties, who, by the way, will wear trews, will proceed by march to Thorncliffe Farm. The Kilties will go to the top of Broadview-avenue by street car. The western force, with the exception of the 13th Battalion, will march up Yonge-street to the college. The Hamilton regiment will embark from its train at Yonge-street North Station, just to the north of Mount Pleasant Cemetery, and will march from there to the college.

The artillery will consist of two guns for each army, and the Dragoons and Body Guards will be mounted and will perform scout duty.

After the sham battle the victors and vanquished will assemble on the Don Flats, near Winchester-street, for dinner, which will be followed by a review by General Gascoigne and staff and march past. This will commence as near 3 p.m. as possible, and the regiments will then march back to the Armouries.

The roads, being frozen hard, will make the day much more pleasant for the soldiers and visitors.

Smash Up on College-street.

A trolley car, a horse and wagon and a bicycle figured in a smash-up on College-street, opposite the Parliament Buildings, last night at 6 o'clock. Carlton and College motor 338 was proceeding along College-street when Richard Howard, 106 Chestnut-street, drove from University-street in one of G. Booth & Sons' wagons and got directly in front of the car. The gong was sounded, and Howard attempted to get out of the way, but found he would have to run down a bicyclist, and he got back on to the track, where the car hit the wagon. Howard was thrown out on his head, but was not hurt seriously. The vestibule of the car was badly damaged, and the big load of passengers much frightened, while the wagon was somewhat used up. The bicycle went on its way rejoicing.

The Flight of Time.

Old Father Time, as everyone knows, sometimes flies as well as walks. The other day he went sailing over the city, soaring aloft. At last his eye settled on St. John's Ward, and many thought as they watched him grasp his scythe more firmly the Noble Ward was ready for the harvest. He was seen to settle upon the roof of the I X L Steam Laundry, 78 Queen-street west. His full dress shirt wanted laundering, and he had brought it there for attention.

BRITISH PARLIAMENT.

Ireland Will Get Most of the Coming Session,

SO MR. CHAMBERLAIN SAYS.

Army Reform Will Be One of the Live Questions.

Local Government for Ireland Will, However, Be the Great Topic—Narrow Escape of Gen. Sir William Lockhart from Being Shot—Austrian Lawmakers Fight in the Chamber Like Rowdies—Cable News.

London, Nov. 24.—The Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, in the course of an important speech at Birmingham this evening, said he expected that the greater part of the coming session of Parliament would be given over to the Government measure granting local government to Ireland.

Mr. Chamberlain also announced that the Government would introduce a comprehensive measure of army reform, based upon a careful consideration of England's military needs, though without attempting to rival Continental armies or to alter the system of recruiting. He said he considered the army ought to be "strong enough to meet the possible, though improbable, emergency of a break-down in the navy."

Gen. Lockhart Narrowly Escaped.

London, Nov. 25.—A despatch to The Times from Bagh, Province of Dutch Gundava, Baluchistan, says that during the operations near Datoi, which have been conducted during the last few days by General Sir William Lockhart, with the Fourth Brigade of the British punitive expedition, operating against the insurgent tribesmen on the northwest frontier of India, Sir William Lockhart, the commander-in-chief, had a narrow escape from being shot.

The steamer Maylands, from West Hartlepool, Eng., for Quebec, which the Allan Liner Norwegian towed for a time and then lost in the storm, has been towed to St. Michael's.

The Austrian Parliament is still so torn by dissensions that no business can be done. Reports say that the worst rumpus to date took place yesterday and the arrest of some members is threatened.

A lamp fell in V. Maxillon's drygoods establishment, St. Johns, Quebec, last evening, and the place was totally destroyed. Gullet's fur store and residence, Dubois' tailor shop and Stinard's tea store were also burned. Loss $35,000; partial insurance.

Fishing at the Magdalene Islands has been very poor during the past season. The cod fishery was only about half as large as usual, while the mackerel fishery was almost a total failure. Consequently considerable destitution exists among the poor people.

The verdict in the case of Mr. Spenard, who committed suicide at the Parliament Buildings at Quebec on Tuesday, was that the deceased was a martyr to dyspepsia, and that a slight financial reverse, which he met with a short time since, deranged his mind.
