OSGOODE HALL'S DAILY GRIST.

Action to Restrain the Metropolitan Railway—Liability of the Girls' Home to Apprentices.

Osgoode Hall, Nov. 4, 1895.

Mr. Justice Street heard an interesting and important application in Judges' Chambers. It appears that in October, 1890, May Robinson, whose husband was of dissolute habits, and had deserted her, was sent to the General Hospital, where she was unconscious for a week. In the meantime her friends had placed her four children, aged respectively 1, 3, 5 and 8 years, in the Girls' Home. She now makes application for the return to her of her daughter Alice, who, after remaining eleven years in the Home, was apprenticed by that institution to Mr. R. F. Pieper of Owen Sound as a domestic. The mother swears that she has contributed up to 1891 upwards of $200 out of her slender means towards support of her children; that in 1892 she made application for delivery of Alice to her, but the Home refused either to deliver or tell of the child's whereabouts.

The Home receive from Mr. Pieper the following amounts: $5 a year until child is 15 years of age, $10 when she is 16, $15 when 17, and $20 when $18. They say that it impairs their usefulness if girls who are apprenticed are prenvented from keeping their articles of apprenticeship. They allege that Alice is being properly cared for, and dispute the amount paid them by the mother, admitting only the receipt of $17, and that it is their rule that where it is desired to keep children at the Home subject to the parents' control a charge of $5 a month for their support is made—which has not been paid in this case. The other children left the Home at different times, and are now living with their mother.

The question is whether the Home has a right under the Act of incorporation, 26 Vic., ch. 63, to apprentice a child not delivered to it under an instrument in writing as provided by 58 Vic. (O), ch. 52, sec. 13.

J. E. Jones for the mother. R. S. Neville for the Home. Judgment was reserved.

That Ten-Cent Slander Case.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge has given judgment as to the disposition of costs in the action of Johnson v. Bedson, tried by him with a jury at the Toronto Assizes on 22nd Oct. last. The plaintiff said that the defendant had accused him of stealing his (defendant's) wife's purse. The jury found a verdict for plaintiff for ten cents. The learned judge thinks that plaintiff suffered no damage and directs each party to pay his own costs. D. O. Cameron for plaintiff; A. G. F. Lawrence for defendant.

The trial of McCausland v. Hill was continued and concluded before MacMahon, J. Judgment was reserved. C. Ritchie, Q.C., and Ludwig for plaintiff; S. G. Biggs, Q.C., and A. R. Lewis, Q.C., for defendants.

Re Extension Metropolitan Railway.

Anderson v. Warren was the first case heard by Armour, C.J., at the non-jury sittings. The plaintiff says that in Nov., 1889, the plaintiff, C. D. Warren was the owner of a number of lots in Glen Grove Park and Greenwood Park, in the Township of York, subject to encumbrances and also controlled by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and also with his co-defendants, Robert Jenkins and Nicholas Garland, had an interest in the North Toronto Suburban Water Works and Light Company; that in the said month the defendants formed a syndicate or partnership to develop and sell the lots, develop and work the railway, develop and work the water works; that in April, 1891, the defendant Warren sold him a one-twentieth part of his interest in the syndicate properties for $15,000, but plaintiff was not to be liable for any syndicate expenses. The plaintiff now seeks to restrain the defendants from extending the railway up Yonge-street beyond Glen Grove, the original terminus, or from selling it to the Toronto Railway Company, and from encumbering any further the land in question. He asks for a full account of the defendant's dealing with the syndicate property, alleging that they have sold lots and not accounted for the money, and also increased the amount of the several mortgages, and plaintiff wants his interest ascertained in lots and shares and transferred to him without delay. The defendants are willing to abide by agreement of April, 1891, but they say plaintiff doesn't set out its terms correctly, that plaintiff was liable for certain expenses, and now is chargeable with $1393, from 1889 to 1891, and with $2362.93 since 1891; that plaintiff is not entitled to a transfer of shares or lots; that he certainly was never to be entitled to vote; and that the railway can do what it chooses as to extension of track, or sale of franchise, so long as it keeps within its corporate powers. The defendant, Nicholas Garland, came into the syndicate after Robert Simpson sold out and he puts plaintiff to strict proof of his allegations and claims that he is not liable to account, and that plaintiff has no cause of action against him. The railway company say that it would be contrary to public policy to restrict their powers as plaintiff desires, and that in extending their line to Richmond Hill, they are intra vires. They say the plaintiff is not a shareholder, and so has no right to maintain this action against them. Watson, Q.C., and Smoke for plaintiff. Moss, Q.C., for defendants Warren and Jenkins. Walter Barwick for Railway Co. Judgment was reserved.

The next case was Gurofski v. Harris. The action is brought by Julia Gurofski, an unmarried woman, on behalf of herself and all other creditors of defendant Harris, to set aside as fraudulent a conveyance made by him to his co-defendant Amelia King of lot 10 in Tecumseh-street, Toronto. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant King holds the same only in trust. The plaintiff sued Harris for slander on Feb. 9, 1895, and recovered judgment against him on March 1, 1895, for $700. The sheriff of Toronto cannot find any goods of Harris to seize under the plaintiff's execution. The defendant Harris denies that he has now any interest in the property in question. The defendant King says that she purchased the property for valuable consideration; that it was conveyed to her on Dec. 11, 1894; that she registered the conveyance on Dec. 26, 1894, and has been in possession of property ever since. F. E. Titus for plaintiff; Watson, Q.C., and S. C. Smoke for defendants. The case was not concluded when the court rose.

Ruttan v. City of Toronto.

Ruttan v. City of Toronto is an action brought by the wife of the Rev. C. Ruttan, Norway, against the city for $5000 damages for an accident caused to her by their allowing ice to form upon the sidewalk in Yonge-street at the corner of Isabella, upon which she slipped, and falling broke her hip, and was laid up for over 12 weeks. J. E. Jones, for plaintiff, obtained, on consent, an order transferring the case to the Toronto Assizes for trial with a jury.

IS NOXON A PRISON CZAR?

He Reduces a Central Guard Without Consulting the Warden.

Guard Howe, formerly in charge of the wood-turning shop at the Central Prison, the aggrieved party in the most recent demonstration in connection with the internal dissension now prevailing in the management of that institution, appeared before Minister of Education Ross yesterday and complained that he had been summarily ousted from his position by Inspector Noxon and transferred to an inferior position and that his salary had suffered a corresponding reduction. Minister Ross, who, it appears, had recommended Mr. Howe for service in the prison, was surprised and could not believe that such action would be taken without the full knowledge and consent of Warden Massie.

Mr. Howe, it seems, was a prominent witness against Foreman Scott when that functionary was hauled up before the prison officials, charged with making more than his salary out of certain sleigh contracts and it is believed that this is in a great measure accountable for his present dethronement. The Scott matter has not as yet been officially investigated, but it will have that attention in the near future, and it is believed that out of that investigation will grow a decision relative to the justice of Inspector Noxon's treatment of Guard Howe.

A World representative called upon Warden Massie at the prison yesterday, but that gentleman declined to discuss matters. He, however, unhesitatingly pronounced Guard Howe one of the most faithful members of his staff and said that he had risen to his present position solely through merit. Mr. Massie firmly declined to discuss the position assumed by Inspector Noxon.

Apropos of the case in hand, the printed prison regulations proclaim that in the event of any guard or other employe proving neglectful of his duties, deficient in morality or for other good cause, it is the duty of the warden to suspend each officer and report the case to the Inspector of Prisons for a full investigation, but nowhere is the authority given the inspector to remove or reduce any official without complaint first having been made by the warden, and in the case of Guard Howe, there is a total absence of any such complaint ever having been made by Warden Massie, and it is on this ground that Minister Ross bases his surprise at the reduction of the guard. But, nevertheless, Guard Howe has been reduced and entirely through an order issued by Inspector Noxon, and nothing but Government action can reinstate him.

Warden Massie is about to relinquish his duties for a three weeks' outing at Clifton Springs, not, as he says, because he is broken down with worrying over the difficulties now surrounding his position, but simply because he is entitled to such a furlough every year and he believes he profits physically thereby.

A Gorgeous Collection of Rugs.

Mr. E. O'Brien, the well-known dealer in Oriental rugs and carpets, is now in town and has secured the large store at 14 and 16 King-street east (Foster & Fender's old stand), for a grand sale on Thursday and Friday of this week. Mr. O'Brien had a large staff of men at work yesterday hanging the rugs and carpets and getting everything ready for the inspection of our citizens to-day. The World had a look at the display last night. It is a magnificent one and consists of Turkish, Indian and Persian rugs, carpets, palace strips, stair carpet and portieres. These lovely examples of the weaver's art come from the noted collectors Messrs. Osman Freres of Constantinople, and comprise the finest class made, including a silk carpet, which are only made to order for the high potentates of Turkey; also an antique Indian Agra carpet of great beauty, in which there are over 600 stitches to the square inch; many mohair rugs of lovely coloring and noted for the sheen and silky appearance, and a very large carpet, No. 199, in the catalogue, is the companion of one sent to Sandringham Palace. The entire selection surpasses all previous displays in this line. The sale takes place Thursday and Friday, Nov. 7 and 8 next, at 2 o'clock each day and will be conducted by Dickson & Townsend, who have handled the previous sales of Mr. O'Brien. The best recommendation Mr. O'Brien has is the satisfaction he has given in all his previous sales.

Unequalled—Mr. Thomas Brunt, Tyendinaga, Ont., writes: "I have to thank you for recommending Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for bleeding piles. I was troubled with them for nearly 15 years, and tried almost everything I could hear or think of. Some of them would give me temporary relief, but none would effect a cure. I have now been free from the distressing complaint for nearly 18 months. I hope you will continue to recommend it."

Henry A. King & Co. received the following despatch to-day from Chicago:

Wheat opened a fraction lower this morning and ruled very inactive, the market fluctuating within a range of only ⅛ of a cent. There was about 100,000 bush taken for export to-day. The visible increased 2,504,000 bush, much larger than was generally anticipated. New York reported foreign houses very good buyers of May wheat. Our speculative market was dull all session, there being but very little disposition to trade. There is no abatement visible in the receipts of spring wheat, and, excluding any temporary decrease owing to unfavorable weather, the movement will probably be maintained during the greater part of the present month. The demand for flour in the Northwest is well maintained, and there is an active demand for cash wheat for milling and shipment at both Minneapolis and Duluth. With the close of internal navigation, however, the demand for eastern shipment is likely to fall off, unless there is an active export demand at better prices, and the depressing influence of large receipts in the west may be more pronounced. The wheat markets in general are characterized by the same absence of buying power that is evident in all the other speculative markets at present.

Corn and oats opened steady and ruled a shade firmer all around. Speculation is limited. Bad weather, while navigation is still open, might check the receipts, and lead to a temporary advance in corn.

Provisions opened a little lower to-day on heavy receipts, rallied, and closed about Saturday's closing price. There was a fairly good trade reported. The market, however, was somewhat unsettled, and prices ruled within a narrow range. The buying was principally by the short interest, and some enquiry for investment account.

McIntyre & Wardwell (John J. Dixon) received the following despatch from Schwartz, Dupee & Co., Chicago:

The wheat market to-day was the dullest we have had since February. The news was pretty much all bullish. Continued dry weather had again a sustaining influence. The Northwest was a moderate seller of wheat, but the bulk of the business to-day was of a scalping nature. The stock in store here increased 172,000 bush. The shipments from the Black Sea were estimated at 4,500,000 bush, which would make the world's shipments for the week over 7,000,000 bush. Clearances at the seaboard were about 300,000 bush in wheat and flour. The stock in public and private warehouses in Chicago is now about 23,000,000 bush. It looks to us like the visible would continue to pile up and reach a much larger aggregate than has generally been anticipated. We can see nothing in sight but injury that may result from continued drouth to help the market at present.

Chicago GRAIN and PROVISIONS
AND NEW YORK STOCKS
BOUGHT AND SOLD.
Henry A. King & Co., 213-215 Board of Trade, Toronto, Ont.

Provisions extremely dull and ruled a shade lower. The public did very little. Local shorts covered, and two or three packers sold moderately. Receipts of hogs quite large and of steadily improving quality. Many traders refrained from making new contracts because of to-morrow's holiday. The packers will be free sellers when they have product in their cellars against contract sales already made. Neither the cash nor speculative trade is of sufficient volume to take their offerings without lower prices.
