PROF. SMITH ON ANNEXATION.

The sage of the Grange is a man of wide reputation, but surely he is not the whole tip. It appears that a certain Dr. Henry Davies, of Yale University, visited Toronto recently. In an article in The Philadelphia Times, wherein this Dr. Davies gives his impressions, he informs us that "In a recent interview with Prof. Goldwin Smith he was interested to learn from his own lips that, in his opinion, the bulk of the people of Canada desire union with us" (the U.S.). We accept it as a fact that the professor made this statement. We have seen the same or similar remarks attributed to him on other occasions. Assuming, then, that he expressed himself in this way, we demand the right to cross-examine him. The professor writes a great deal. We don't propose to dispute the correctness of his facts or the soundness of his opinions on the thousand and one far-away subjects that engage his attention, but we would like to pin him down to this one statement, the truth or falsity of which is capable of more or less satisfactory proof. If it is true that the bulk of the people of Canada are in favor of amalgamation with the United States, then two out of every three men we meet on the street must be annexationists. We are not wrong in assuming that the word "bulk" will include at least two-thirds of the population. It means much more than a mere majority. The idea intended to be conveyed is that but an insignificant residuum of the population favor the connection with Great Britain. Now, we are prepared to submit the truth or falsity of the professor to any court of competent jurisdiction. We will leave it to Col. Denison, if the professor is agreeable. He ought to know. Or we will accompany the professor to any street corner in the city that he may designate and interrogate the passers-by. If he finds one annexationist among ten successive pedestrians, or ten out of one hundred, we will increase his donation to the University library by another ten thousand dollars. If Professor Smith will make the statement on any public platform in Canada that a majority of the people favor annexation, we will award him a grand stand seat to see the Duke of York, if he is not roundly hissed and ridiculed. Has the professor forgotten that even E. A. Macdonald has publicly recanted his annexation theories? And, if the redoubtable Ernest Albert will not swallow annexation, who can be found that will? Professor Smith is said to be an historian. At least he has published some historical works. But, if he cannot read the present, how can he decipher the past? The historian, whether he deals with past or current events, ought to be able to substantiate his statements. We call upon the professor to prove that the bulk of the people of Canada favor annexation. We imagine he will find this somewhat more difficult than speculating on the mysteries of existence. The professor has the choice of weapons. He can name his own court and jury. We will put up our deposit and abide by the result.

EDUCATION AND IMPERIAL UNITY.

The Western Daily Mercury of Plymouth, England, pays a good deal of attention to colonial matters just now, and has made the discovery that English people are sadly ignorant in regard to the colonies, especially Canada. The Mercury finds fault with the schools of the Old Land in this connection. Its remarks are worthy of reproduction:

Perhaps there is no greater need for the young Englishman of to-day—nor is there any need more persistently neglected—than a knowledge of the Empire of which he is a citizen. In these times it is the reproach of English public schools that they teach more about ancient Greece than modern Britain; and, tho the failing is being rectified, there is still room for much more activity in the circulation of knowledge regarding the geography, history and resources of those portions of the Empire which are furthest removed from us.

The Plymouth paper commends the steps taken by the Canadian government in offering, thru Lord Strathcona, medals for competition in the schools of the Old Country, and urges educationists to take advantage of the offer. It says:

The opportunity is one which should not be missed. Knowledge is the great ally of unity, and with its increase, therefore, the safety of the Empire becomes more secure. The example of the Canadian government is one which might be followed with advantage by other governments. The generous terms offered by the Dominion government really allow of no ground for the neglect by teachers to accept them, and thereby to assist in the good work which the government seeks to do.

MANITOBA AS A MARKET FOR ONTARIO FRUIT.

The climate of Manitoba and the Territories is not adapted to the cultivation of fruit. As Mr. Wilkie points out, the people recognize this as one of the drawbacks of life in the western prairies. Manitoba has to look elsewhere for the fruit consumed by her farmers and by the residents of her towns and cities. Strange as it may seem, it is yet a fact that she obtains the greater part of the supply from California and other States of the Union. Ontario imports very little fruit, except the tropical varieties, and if Ontario is satisfied with the product of her own orchards, Manitoba ought to be satisfied with it too. And so she would be if the trade between the two provinces were conducted on the right lines. In order to increase the shipment of fruit from Ontario, the conditions underlying the trade must be ameliorated. In the first place, freight rates must be reduced and better facilities for the shipment of fruit must be provided by the railways. The same encouragement in the way of cheap transportation must be accorded to the fruit growers of Ontario as is extended to the fruit growers of California, who, altho they are farther away from Manitoba than the farmers of Ontario, yet can reach that market at less expense than the latter. The next requisite for the extension of our fruit trade in Manitoba, and, in fact, anywhere else, is systematic and honest packing. In the matter of packing, Ontario fruit growers have considerable yet to learn. They will find that it will pay them to incorporate honesty as the trade mark of their business. Instead of resorting to trickery, as some of them unfortunately do, to palm off inferior stuff, they should adopt the practice of the California growers by offering a premium to any one who finds that any shipment of fruit is not up to representations in every particular. Ontario farmers should also avail themselves of the advantages of co-operation in the sending of their produce to market. They will thereby reduce the expense of shipping and realize higher prices. In some other respects, also, our farmers are behind those of California. As a rule, they do not keep books, they have little use for banks and they do not study the markets closely enough. Our farmers ought to give more attention to the business side of their calling. If Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest is going to develop in the way expected, there will be a large and constantly increasing market for fruit. It will be our own fault if this promising market is not controlled by Eastern Canada. There is no better fruit country in the world than the Province of Ontario. It only requires intelligent direction on our part to accomplish this result.

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

Now the discovery is made that oxygen will kill the effects of strychnine and other poisons, those who want to make sure work of their own taking off will be driven to the rope, razor or revolver.

The temperance crusade just launched in Great Britain is to be commended. To secure a million names to a total abstinence pledge will be more effective than any prohibitory law. If men cannot be persuaded to keep sober there is little chance of compelling them.

The trial of Assassin Czolgosz at Buffalo was speedy for such an event in the States. He pleaded guilty and knocked the calculations of his defenders on the head, but the investigation gave the lawyers a chance to ask questions which the doctors did not relish in regard to the treatment of the patient. Dr. Mann admitted having found out things after the President's death which were never suspected before, and which go to prove that no two human beings are exactly alike, also that science has not yet been able to fathom all the mysteries of man's physique.

Spain has caught the trust fever. Three iron companies have joined together on lines similar to those of the U. S. Steel Corporation, but on a small scale, as compared with the billion dollar giant. The combined capital of the Spanish concern is only $15,000,000.

The automobile has its dangers and is as liable to run away as a team of thorobreds. One of the cars was capsized the other day in Holland and several military men were hurt, two fatally, it is feared.

Hereafter Sir Louis Davies will be officially spoken of as His Lordship. His elevation to the Bench frees him from the disrespectful allusions of the press, and many lawyers who have on the hustings denounced him in language none too choice, will have to address him deferentially when they don't feel like it.

Buffalo Times: The London papers have not yet gotten over the habit of referring to the United States as "they." Isn't it pretty near time for Britishers to realize that we are "it"?

Buffalo Times: Don't speculate in stocks with your neighbor's money; borrow from men who hate you.

While men are grumbling because women are taking office positions from them, complaints are being made by women that they are being driven out of the restaurants and kitchens by men. This is a reversal of former conditions, and shows that women are going up the ladder and men down.

London Advertiser: The main consideration should be, how may the largest number of persons, young and old, get a good look at the future King and Queen.

The report the other day of a fatal fire originating from a young woman's little spirit lamp, used to heat her curling tongs, has caused The New York Daily News to warn ocean steamship men about allowing the spirit lamps to be taken on board ships, as is done at present. The awful possibility of a fire on board a ship may well cause apprehension. Great calamities are often due to trifling causes.

The value of potatoes as food has been overlooked to a large extent because the tubers have nearly always been plentiful. The failure of the crop in the United States this year has led to a better appreciation of the standard Irish food product, which is as important in other countries as in Ireland. It is gratifying to learn that there is a good crop in the Green Isle this year.

The Buffalo papers are paying many compliments to the 19th Regiment Band of St. Catharines, and the St. Catharines newspapers may be pardoned for expressions of pride in their fine musical organization.

Last week one farmer of the Niagara district shipped an average of 700 baskets of peaches daily. That means 4200 baskets for the week. At present prices in the city it is fair assumption that the farmer would realize at least 50 cents a basket, or $2100 for the week. Again it may be remarked that farming pays.

Kingston Whig: The Toronto World has again donned the prophetic mantle, and is giving out announcements about the provincial election. It is bound, by many warnings, that the people cannot be taken unaware.

Well, just watch.

Kingston Whig: The distress over the distribution of titles continues. As if the people who have to do with such things care what any one thinks about it. The boiler, and anything bearing the "Peninsular" stamp is looked upon as perfection in its line, or as near perfection as it is possible to be.

The firm are always on the lookout for anything that will add to the effectiveness of their manufactures, and are consequently right up to date. In furnaces the "Hecla" has attained a high position in Canada and the United States because of its unexcelled heating capabilities, its economy in fuel, ease of management and its durability. Almost every part is heating surface. It is largely composed of steel plate, and its great heat-giving qualities can thus be understood. It burns coal, wood and almost any old kind of stuff that will burn, yet it is simply constructed and difficult to get out of order. In those parts of the country where wood is plentiful and largely used for fuel, the "Hillburn" wood furnaces are the proper thing. Hot water heating is coming into great use, and is an ideal system. In this branch Messrs. Clare Bros. are to the fore again with the Preston Boiler, a special feature of which is the waterways, which are surrounded by the fire. It is practically self-cleaning, and is hard to get out of repair.

The Preston firm have also a national reputation for their general line of stoves, ranges, base burners and parlor heaters. In ranges, the granite "Peninsular" is the thrifty housewife's best friend when it comes down to most excellent baking qualities. In this city alone during the past four years over 2000 of these ranges have been sold.

Russian Crops.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 25.—A report issued by the Minister of Finance, M. Dewitte, shows that the winter grain crop in the southwestern provinces is excellent, and that it is above the medium in Northern Caucasus and Finland. The winter crop is only mediocre in Southeastern Russia and in the Volga Provinces. The spring grain crop is everywhere worse than winter crop on account of the drought.

A machine for the rapid testing of eggs has been discovered. From the description given, it is a sort of X-ray machine which enables you to see instantly whether there is a chicken within the shell or not, and 20 eggs at a time can be looked at.

The expense which attends the Schley investigation at Washington is enormous. Charts showing the site of the battle of Santiago have been introduced now, and before the inquiry is over it may be deemed advisable to call out the fleet and have a practical demonstration.

HIS FINAL RESTING PLACE

Remains of President Abraham Lincoln Now to Be Buried for All Time.

HAVE BEEN MOVED ELEVEN TIMES.

Casket Will Be Enclosed in a Solid Concrete Block Under Present Vault.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 25.—The remains of Abraham Lincoln will soon be put away for all time, never to be disturbed again, in accordance with the wish of his son, Robert T. Lincoln. An excavation 15 feet deep is being made beneath the vault where they now rest, and in this the casket will be placed. It will be surrounded by an iron cage, which is to be imbedded in and made a part of a solid concrete block 8 by 8 feet and 13 feet long. The transfer will be made after the return of Governor Yates.

This will make the twelfth removal of the body, the record being as follows:

May 4, 1865—Casket containing the body of Abraham Lincoln received in Springfield, Ill., and deposited in the public receiving tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery.

Dec. 21, 1865—Removed to new brick vault built to receive it on the east side of the national Lincoln monument and deposited in centre crypt in catacomb.

Oct. 9, 1874—Removed from the centre crypt and from iron casket to a lead-lined cedar case, and deposited in the marble sarcophagus in centre of catacomb room in the monument.

Nov. 7, 1876—In an attempt by thieves to steal the body, marble sarcophagus top and one end removed, and when the detectives surprised them the casket had been moved 18 inches out thru the open end.

Nov. 9, 1876—By order of the Board of Control, the cedar casket was replaced in the marble sarcophagus, which was restored and sealed.

Nov. 15, 1876—Removed from sarcophagus to rear of Memorial Hall. Then, the same night, to the second corridor from obelisk, and third from the east outside wall under the terrace of the national Lincoln monument and left on wooden trestles.

Nov. 18, 1876—Removed from trestles and placed in excavation in middle corridor between the base of obelisk and the catacomb without replacing the earth removed to receive it.

Nov. 22, 1878—Cedar casket covered six inches deep and ground leveled down like the rest of the passage ways under the terrace of the monument and an hour later the earth was removed and lid of cedar casket only opened and then closed, the earth replaced and left level.

April 14, 1887—Removed from the shallow grave under the terrace and buried in a mass of concrete 8 by 8 by 12 feet directly under catacomb floors. The lead casket at this time opened and the remains identified by six personal acquaintances of Mr. Lincoln.

March 10, 1900—Removed from concrete (at time the national Lincoln monument was taken down) and deposited in a new stone vault built for the purpose in the side of the terraced hill on which the monument is built.

April 24, 1901—Casket removed from temporary stone vault and deposited in the marble sarcophagus in the catacomb of the newly vault built national Lincoln monument.

The time of the final transfer will be decided by the Monument Committee after conferring with Governor Yates.

FURNACES AND STOVES THAT HEAT.

Some Superior Features About Clare Bros. & Co.'s Manufactures.

The melancholy days are coming fast upon us, and already chilly zephyrs are crowding the air and making it unpleasantly reminiscent to the mind of the householder that the great annual question of keeping the house warm for the winter has to be taken up again and fought to a finish. Some men are unfortunate enough to occupy what is technically known as a cold house, and to them the efficiency of the interior heating apparatus means a great deal more than to many of their fellows. But just the same a man likes to have the best and cheapest—stoves that give heat and are economical in their consumption of fuel, and furnaces that are easy to handle and give the best possible service with a minimum of coal.

For many years now, the Messrs. Clare Bros. & Co. of Preston, Ont., have enjoyed a high reputation for their manufacture of all sorts of heating apparatus, from the ordinary cook stove to the big hot water boiler, and anything bearing the "Peninsular" stamp is looked upon as perfection in its line, or as near perfection as it is possible to be.

The firm are always on the lookout for anything that will add to the effectiveness of their manufactures, and are consequently right up to date. In furnaces the "Hecla" has attained a high position in Canada and the United States because of its unexcelled heating capabilities, its economy in fuel, ease of management and its durability. Almost every part is heating surface. It is largely composed of steel plate, and its great heat-giving qualities can thus be understood. It burns coal, wood and almost any old kind of stuff that will burn, yet it is simply constructed and difficult to get out of order. In those parts of the country where wood is plentiful and largely used for fuel, the "Hillburn" wood furnaces are the proper thing. Hot water heating is coming into great use, and is an ideal system. In this branch Messrs. Clare Bros. are to the fore again with the Preston Boiler, a special feature of which is the waterways, which are surrounded by the fire. ## HOW TO GET FOREIGN TRADE

J. S. Larke, Canadian Agent in Australia, Writes an Important Letter on the Subject.

POINTERS FOR MANUFACTURERS.

Let the World Know What We Make, Then Hold the Trade When We Get It.

The following letter has been received by George H. Hees, chairman of the Trade Committee of the Manufacturers' Association, from J. S. Larke, commercial agent for Canada in Australia, in reply to a communication of Mr. Hees touching on Canadian trade with that colony:

Dear Mr. Hees,—Your views are mine, and long since were mine. Some time ago I turned up a paper written in 1890 for the late Sir John A. Macdonald. I therein took the ground that the future of Canadian manufacturers would largely depend upon seeking markets abroad. My idea was to apply to manufacturers a modification of the policy which I had suggested years before in respect to our dairy industry. There is no question that it has developed our cheese and butter productions. The constant visits of Professor Robertson to Great Britain and his return to meet Canadian producers have cost something, but they have abundantly repaid the outlay. General manufactures are more complex than butter and cheese making, and no man can be expert in all lines, but Canadian industrial development has reached the stage that it is not necessary so much to tell our people how to make. Nor has it reached the stage that the chief need is to show what to make. The principal concern is to ascertain what lines Canadians are making that can be sold abroad, and to point out how best to get the market. Hence the need that the Canadian agent abroad should be in touch with Canadian manufacturing progress; and he can only learn well by personal sight.

Canada has found out that it is profitable to export cattle rather than wheat, and butter and cheese rather than cattle; mainly because there is more labor and less waste of our natural resources in cattle than in wheat and to a greater extent in butter and cheese. It is still more so in the export of manufactures. No one ought to be more interested in that export than the Canadian farmer, for thereby he is able to reach markets which otherwise would be closed to him. No Ontario farmer thinks of sending butter or mutton or wool to Australia, yet every thousand dollars' worth of goods sent here when reduced to their elements, mainly, is made up of butter, mutton and wool and the other productions of the Canadian farmer sold directly and indirectly to the mechanics and the capitalists who made them. It seems to me that it is to the highest interest of Canada that reasonable aid should be given to Canadian manufacturers to secure an export trade.

It is not enough to get it: It must be held afterwards. A glance at our returns will show how fluctuating has been our trade with countries which were good markets for our goods. Take Australia for instance. In 1876 our exports were $185,610. The next year an effort was made to extend the trade, and in a few years it reached the sum of $661,208. It then declined until 1894. When the government renewed its work it had fallen to $268,352. I recollect aright, chiefly of fish and timber. It is many times that now, and the our sales of both fish and timber have increased, they form but a limited percentage of the trade. What is needed is continuity of effort.
