B., July 6.—At the last meeting of the city council the chairman of the police committee charged the present police magistrate with being the stumbling block in the way of enforcing the Scott act. He also charged that the magistrate would not accept informations which Scott Act Prosecutor McLean wanted to lay.

This afternoon during a Scott Act trial Police Magistrate Kay questioned McLean respecting the accuracy of the statement, making strong comment on the administration of justice and Scott Act enforcement in Moncton.

Officer McLean denied that he had carried such complaints to the police committee or that Kay had refused to accept informations.

In the course of his comment on the statement made by Ald. Fryers, chairman of the police committee, the police magistrate said: "I know by experience some men cannot distinguish between an honest and upright endeavor to suppress evil and enforce the law and a hellish traffic in crime. There's not a crime on the statutes of Canada I don't believe that has not been compromised by that same sort.

"There have been thousands and tens of thousands of dollars stolen out of the city treasury and prosecutions and justice blocked and the chief of police standing up saying he took $20 as reward in a case of theft. Call that suppression of crime. 'Tis not, 'tis traffic in crime, that's what it is. Then I have to be scandalized through the press. I will show them who is the stumbling block."

A fall of earth at the old Memramcook gold mine yesterday afternoon killed a span of horses, demolished a truck wagon and two men, Dominic and Jude Bourque, had narrow escape from being buried beneath the avalanche. They had barely got away when about twenty tons of earth tumbled down on their team, crushing the life out of the horses. The escape of the men was thrilling and miraculous.
