THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., SEPT. 22, 1899.

Political Gathering at Berwick.

Preparations are being made for a grand liberal conservative demonstration at the camp grounds, Berwick, on Tuesday, Oct. 3rd. Sir Charles Tupper is to be present and give an address, and Hon. G. E. Foster, R. L. Borden, M. P. for Halifax; H. A. Powell, M. P. for Westmoreland, N. B.; J. B. Mills, M. P. for Annapolis, and C. E. Kaulback, M. P. for Lunenburg, are also expected to be present and speak. It is intended to run special trains from Halifax and Yarmouth, and large numbers will no doubt take advantage of this opportunity to hear the leader of the opposition discuss the political questions of the day. In the evening a banquet will be held at the Hotel Aberdeen, Kentville.

Death of an Aged Resident.

There passed to rest at Wolfville, September 18, 1899, Lois Ruggles Nichols, relict of James M. Payzant, in the 96th year of her age. Mrs Payzant was the youngest daughter of the late David Nichols, of Clarence, Annapolis, a captain in the military service of those old days. Her mother was Sarah Dodge. Both families are of the loyalist blood of Connecticut. She, as well as her husband who died a year ago the 23d of last January, in the 97th year of his age, lived beyond any recorded age of either family. Her two children, both residing in Wolfville, survive her, her son Dr. E. N. Payzant, and her daughter Sarah, the wife of J. W. Bigelow, president of the Nova Scotia Fruit Growers' Association and a commissioner of the provincial exhibition. Nine grandchildren and twenty-four great grandchildren are living. The family have resided in Wolfville over sixty years, and became connected with the Baptist church in the Father Theodore Harding pastorate.

The funeral took place at 2 p. m., on Wednesday, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs Bigelow, and was conducted by Rev. Mr Hatch, pastor of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. Dr. Higgins, Rev. Mr Martell and Rev. Dr. Keirstead. Rev. Dr. Trotter and Mayor Thomson, and her nephew, Mr J. S. Nichols, and his son Daniel, of Berwick, were also among those present. The interment was made at Willow Bank Cemetery.

Five Free Public Concerts.

Those who intend visiting Halifax during the Provincial Exhibition should arrange to be present at one of the five free public concerts to be given during the week. The school will be open to visitors at four o'clock daily from Monday, the 25th, to Friday, 29th inst., both days inclusive. This will give visitors an opportunity of inspecting the work of the pupils and hearing some most interesting school exercises.

The free public concerts will commence at five o'clock when visitors will have an opportunity of listening to the band and choir of the school, and of hearing some excellent music.

Intending visitors should make a note of the days and hours as given above.

The School for the Blind is one of the best Institutions of its kind in the world, and Nova Scotia has good reason to be proud of it.

A Great Newspaper's Success.

The phenomenal success of the Montreal Daily Star is due largely to its superb news gathering facilities. The Montreal Daily Star has far and away the best news service, having the command of correspondents at five hundred thousand points throughout the universe. In fact, the Star's news is not only the best in Canada, but it is away ahead of many of the great American daily papers. The Montreal Star is the only Montreal paper that has a cable correspondent in London and Paris, and the Star's special cable service alone is a reliable indication of its great enterprise and ever growing circulation. Recently the Montreal Daily Star has become more and more indispensable by reason of its special cheese and butter quotations, the Star being the only paper in Canada that gets these quotations direct. No wonder the Star is going ahead by leaps and bounds. It is a pleasure to record its widening success.

We note in a legal exchange that "Mr Rudyard Kipling has 30 suits on hand." Mr Kipling is more fortunate than the average author, who generally has to wear one suit the whole year round.

Three things to love—courage, gentleness and affection.

The secret of success is constancy of purpose.

Mrs Addie Northam Fields.

When we started out for the 3 30 meeting to be held in the Baptist church on Monday, Sept. 18th, we knew that we were to hear an address along temperance lines, delivered by Mrs Addie Northam Fields, the National and World's organizer for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. That she had been a success in this work we also knew, but we didn't "know it all" as we found later. A fairly large gathering of women listened for an hour with unflagging interest to the speaker as she clearly and forcefully discussed the various lines of work undertaken by the W. C. T. U.

At times her remarks "struck home," but, following her own suggestion, when the cap fitted we resolved to wear it. The subject upon which Mrs Fields dwelt at greatest length was one in which many present were particularly interested, viz., Mothers' Meetings, and many helpful suggestions as to the mode of conducting these meetings; also, as to the necessity of providing suitable literature where mothers might have free access to it, were brought to the notice of those present. At the close of the service, standing for a moment in the vestibule, two of our women passed out in earnest conversation; accompanied with a sigh of satisfaction, we caught the words, "Well, that address was good; we were not disappointed this time." Later we found this to be the concensus of opinion with regard to Mrs Fields' first address to the women of our town. By this time we were fairly interested in Mrs Fields, and on returning to our home we proceeded to look up her record. We found that concerning her it has been said that even as a child she showed a desire to set right the wrongs that came to her notice. In her chosen occupation of teaching she developed a remarkable talent for training children. Commencing as President of a Mission Band; later she became President of the Loyal Temperance League, of her native city; still later, on account of her wonderful success in this work, she was appointed State Superintendent of that department in Illinois. In 1894 Mrs Fields was invited by Lady Henry Somerset to go to England for three months to help establish the work there. The three months lengthened into eighteen before the work was fully accomplished. By this time Mrs Fields' "record" was becoming very interesting to us, but the hour for the evening meeting had arrived. This meeting was held in the Methodist church, and was presided over by the Pastor, Rev. Mr Donkin, Mrs Fields is without doubt a first class platform speaker, being perfectly self-possessed, bright and interesting from start to finish. Her subject for the evening she chose from Paul's admonition that we be clothed with the whole armor of God. She dwelt particularly upon the necessity of living pure, clean lives, emphasizing the fact that nowhere in the Bible is found a double standard of purity—one for the man, another for the woman. The way in which Mrs Field's impressed us as she so earnestly and lovingly exhorted us to "increased work for God and Home and every land," is but expressed in the words of another, "Her train of thought is well planned, and fact follows fact in unerring, logical order, so that the lesson to be taught is plainly before the mind of the hearer. The whole is lightened by incidents and anecdotes which now will bring tears to the eye, or again will cause an "audible smile" to run through the audience. It has been said of Mrs Fields that 'she is all things that are good and upright to all people," and certainly this evening's address proved the truth of this statement. The written result of this meeting is found in a number of of new names for our Union. The unwritten result is known only to God. Now, what shall we say of the children's meeting? As we listened to Mrs Fields on that occasion we were simply fascinated at the marvellous way in which she caught and held the interest of those tired, usually restless little folk, just released from the afternoon session of the public school. Truly now, her "fort is on her native heath," and we no longer wonder at her wonderful success in forming Bands, Leagues, etc., not only in America and England, but also in the islands of the sea. And this brings us to Bermuda. With regard to the work accomplished there, Mrs Fields writes to the Union Signal, April, "Our round of meetings began January 1st and last night I gave my 100th address. I have addressed all sorts of meetings, and all sorts and conditions of people." Mrs Fields tells us that the Archdeacon, the head of the church of England in Bermuda, presided at two of her meetings. After telling the readers of the Signal of the amount of work done in the Islands, she closes with these suggestive words, "It was impossible for human power to have secured the co-operation of so many and such influential people, and I can only say, the Lord has done it."

Letter From Boston.

DEAR ACADIAN,—The Evangelical Alliance of Boston held an enthusiastic meeting to-day. This organization is composed of the evangelical churches of the city. Dr. Lorimer, of Tremont Temple, presided. In opening, the congregation sung, "Blest be the tie that binds," and after reading the first Psalm, and a prayer full of thanksgiving for the special blessings that have crowned the work of the society since its last meeting, and singing again, "Jesus lover of my soul," the president gave the introductory address full of love, pathos and pleasantry so characteristic of himself. He said discord in the churches marked the opening of the Republic, but he rejoiced to know that now there was much union among them. The churches in the past had made the mistake by trying to get unity in doctrine. The churches are now working on evangelistic and humanitarian lines. Next, the doctor voiced, amid cheers, the feeling of the meeting. He said the whole civilized world outside France, and many there were in full sympathy with the persecuted Dreyfus and his heroic wife. He read the following resolution, which was adopted and a translation in French directly cabled to Madame Dreyfus:

"The Evangelical Alliance of Boston, U. S., sharing in the indignation of the Christian world at the outrage perpetrated in the name of justice on your [illegible] sympathies and of our prayers to our God of love and right for speedy vindication."

Following this the president read an anonimous letter from one of the police staff, complaining that in violation of both the laws of God and the state, policemen were now obliged by their superiors to do Sunday service when and where it was absolutely uncalled for. The writer withheld his name, for if known he might look for immediate dismissal, or as Dr. Lorimer expressed it, "Be brutaly turned out." The meeting was in full sympathy with the writer and appointed a strong committee to bring the united forces of the city in line for redress.

The Alliance supports a missionary who superintends the Sabbath meetings on the Boston Common and ministers to the sick in the hospitals. The missionary reported that during the summer the congregations on the Common averaged about five hundred attentive hearers who in most cases were addressed by city pastors, and that twenty five had raised their hands for prayer. In the hospitals, Roman Catholics received him as cordially as Protestants, and he was sure from the many "Thank you" and "God bless you," that the work was on the right line.

The grand address of the day and which elicited a constant round of applause and brim full of good feeling between England and the United States was given by the Rev. J. Hirst Hollowell, Congregational pastor of Rochdale, Eng.

The Rev. E. G. Myrie, a Boer (farmer) whose ancestor on his father's side was an Englishman who went to Africa soon after the pilgrims sailed from Plymouth was a representative from Johannesburg, S. Africa, and spoke of the claims of his people and England's unrighteous war against his liberty loving country. He had the sympathy of the meeting.

In behalf of the Alliance, the president gave the right hand of fellowship to four delegates from Honolulu, Hawaii. They all were good specimens of humanity, in complexion about like the Micmac Indians. They brought the Christian salutations of their brethren from the far off islands of the sea. The Rev. Oliver P. Emerson, one of them, addressed the meeting in good English, and then the Rev. E. S. Timoteo in his native language, interpreted by Emmerson. The meeting closed with prayer and the benediction and shaking hands with the dusky sons of the Pacific.

The Sec. of the Boston schools made the statement to-day that arrangements have been made for 77,000 children, an increase of 3,000 over last year. The schools open on the 13th inst.

The weather is cool and dry with only occasional showers. The fading and falling leaves tell the early advent of autumn.
