EVEN HEARST HAS SOME GOOD WORDS

Britain at Least Tries to Pay What She Owes— Attack on France.

(By Canadian Press)

New York, Jan. 30—"Britain at least, tries to pay what she owes," is the admission which William Randolph Hearst makes in the heading over a lengthy article on the debt-funding controversy which is printed in the Hearst papers today.

While criticizing Stanley Baldwin for his frank utterances regarding the United States Congress, which it terms "peevish phrases," caused by annoyance that "he has not had his own way in regard to the payment of the British debt," the Hearst editorial adds that, "after all, the only European nation which is showing any disposition to pay its honest debts is England." The article continues: "England is asking for terms, to be sure, but they are terms of payment, not means of evasion.

"Therefore, while the United States should sacrifice no part of the principal or proper interest in the payment of England's debt to it, this country should show as much consideration as possible to the one European country which is making an honest effort to discharge its obligations."

Incidentally, the Hearst editorial battery of criticism, which in the past has generally been aimed at Great Britain and everything British, in this artical is turned upon France in a scathing criticism of that country's alleged miliarist policy.

"Look at France by way of contract," the editorial continues. "That buccaneering nation is not even thinking about paying its debt to us, or even interest on the debt."

France, according to the views of the Hearst writer, is "war-junketing through Europe" on United States money; she is "plundering defenceless Germany" on United States money; and she is "disturbing the peace of the world and heedlessly pushing her plans of conquest and carnage" on the money she should be paying the United States.

The France which was pictured during the war, adds the Hearst writer, has apparently ceased to exist, and instead there is what he describes as "a defaulting France; a plundering, imperialistic France; a reckless, ruthless, brutally selfish France; a greedy, grasping, money-grabbing France, which, although it could not whip Germany itself, does not hesitate to go through the pockets of the wounded and bleeding body of Germany which we left beaten upon the battlefield.

Declaring that in contrast to France Great Britain seems "an evangel of peace, an example of financial stability and business integrity," the editorial concludes:

"In international business dealings, therefore, the United States should show some appreciation of the apparent honesty and sincerity of England's appreciation of her desire and effort to promote the peace and prosperity among nations upon which all industrial and commercial relations rest."

TORONTO COMMENT ON CHOICE OF MONTREAL AS C. N. R. HEADQUARTRS

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 2.—Commenting on the selection of Montreal as national headquarters of the Canadian National Railways, Mayor Maguire said last night that he was amazed that Sir Henry Thornton, after the positive statements he had made in Toronto on the mater, should have overlooked the economic side of the question. "However," said the Mayor, "we shall have to put up with the decision and make the best of it. The railways belong to the people, and we must pull together to make them a success."

A. O. Hogg, newly elected president of the Toronto Board of Trade, said there was consolation in the fact that Toronto will be the centre of the new central division extending from Port Arthur to Riviere du Loup, so that the cities of Montreal and Quebec are included in the division which will be operated from Toronto.

U. S. MUST CO-OPERATE

Time to Take Hand in World Affairs, Says Barnes.

New York, Feb. 2.—An assertion that the United States must come to grips with the economic problem of Europe, again taking a hand in world affairs, was made by Julius H. Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and A. C. Bedford, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, in addressing a luncheon of the merchants' association.

Both speakers agreed that the United States too long had been restrained by political differences from heeding the advice of her business men who, for years, had called for co-operative, helpful interest in Europe.

1923 FURNITURE SALE OF MARCUS'; MANY FEATURES

Another remarkable record has been made by those young men conducting the furniture house of J. Marcus. Tomorrow their one sale of the year is on for a fortnight—special attractions have been brought from near and far and a special plan of purchase prevails.

A deposit may reserve any article with option of delivery any time between now and autumn. At the sale discounts of twenty to thirty-five per cent. It will be put away, stored and insured free until wanted. Freight will be prepaid also to any point in the province.

In preparation for the sale, H. L. Marcus spent the best part of January in various manufacturing centres gathering the cream values of the market and some very notable offerings have resulted. A great deal of credit is generally accorded the Marcus boys for the way they have brought their business to its present pre-eminence. All are gifted with splendid taste and a manner of doing business that has won them and their store a particular popularity. Their windows are perhaps the nicest in the city of any establishment and the range of prices seems always to be figured fine. An establishment with the size and character that makes for deserved success.

On Tuesday night of this week she went to the Victoria rink and requested to be given a pair of skates, which she indicated, saying that her brother had sent her to get them. The skates were handed over. Her depredations were brought to an abrupt halt owing to the police taking a hand in the game and this morning she was called upon to answer for her sins. A Fredericton High School Case

(Special to The Times.)

Fredericton, N. B., Feb. 2.—At a Fredericton School Board meeting on Thursday night the matter of fifteen student of Grade 9, who had been returned their original schools because of failure to pass examinations at Christmas, was considered. The contention of a delegation of parents was that pupils when once admitted to high school could not be removed until the end of the school year; also that the parents had not been notified that their children had been admitted conditionally in Division 3 and that an oral examination should have been given them before they were admitted in Grade 9.

They will be reinstated and will be subject to removal from the High school at the end of the school year if reported by the principal as having failed to do satisfactorily the work assigned to the regular class. Failure on the part of the students will necessitate their again writing the High school entrance examinations.

BIRD'S-EYE MAPLE IS DUE TO A PARASITE

Woodsmen and botanists have speculated for a century concerning the cause of those curious marks, known as "Bird's-eyes," which occasionally adorn a board of maple wood. The woodsman inclined to ascribe these marks to the activities of woodpeckers, while the guess of the botanist was that the "bird's-eyes" were the traces of dormant buds or shoots. Research into this subject at the Forest Products Laboratories of Canada (Dominion Forestry Branch) points to the conclusion that "bird's-eye" maple owes its curious and attractive appearance to the action of a minute parasitic fungus which lives in the growing tissues of the tree. If this conclusion is correct, the production of bird's-eye maple by artifical means does not appear to be outside the bounds of possibility.
