City Police Court.

A solitary prisoner sat in the dock this morning—a woman, who gave her name as Margaret Gallagher, and confessed to drunkenness in Pond st. It was her first offence, though sixty summers had passed over her head. The Magistrate let her off, without even exacting the twenty-five cents that was paid for carriage.

John Ennis and Margaret his wife, whose united ages make a century, were in for protection, and let go. They are Nova Scotia Micmacs.

The Clerke-Peters abusive language case then came up. Mr. Clerke called Mr. Dean as a witness, who said that Peters told the plaintiff several times that he lied. A. H. Hanington, Esq., who appeared for Mr. Peters, called Mr. Potts, the collector of tolls in the Market, who also said he heard the same language used. Mr. Hanington wanted to prove by the witness that the whole affair occurred under the shed in the market near the scales. He was trying to shed light on the case, and the scales were introduced to assist the Magistrate in weighing the evidence and fairly balancing the testimony. Mr. Hanington asked for the dismissal of the charge on the ground that there was no evidence of intent to cause a breach of the peace on the part of Peters. He also considered that a man had a right to tell another that he lied, or call him a liar. It was plain English, and if a certain witness could have been secured they would have proved Clerke a liar. Mr. Clerke, who conducted his own case, also addressed the Court. He had been called villainous names and but for his position as a J. P. his strong right arm would have avenged the insults given by Peters. A wise man had said, "A good name was more to be desired than gold, &c." He would rather have a good name than all Dutch Gulch, in houses, lands, tanneries, feed stores, or in whatever form it was. In one night the flames might devour all. "Yes," said the Magistrate, "riches take to themselves wings and fly away." "It is some years, your Honor, since you and I went to Sunday school." "I never went," was the reply, "Sunday schools were not known in my day." "My grand-children go now, and in looking over one of their books I found the following verse that is applicable to the defendant:

"Mary had a little lamb,
It's fleece was white as snow;
And everywhere that Mary went
The lamb was sure to go."

"Yes" continued Mr. Clerke, "Peters followed me like the lamb, out from the Market into the street, and abused me." Mr. Hanington interrupted, and said he (Clerke) was out of his head, and his friends wanted to send him to the Asylum. The Magistrate said Mr. Hanington appeared more crazy than Mr. Clerke, and stopped further discussion by fining Peters $5.

Portland Civil Court.

The Court had a number of cases, most of which were settled without trial, but two occupied the Court some time. The first was McKeever vs. Larkins. This was an action brought by McKeever to recover for a pair of boots made for the defendant, and which he refused to take or pay for, on the ground that they were too small for him. McKeever denied this, and said the boots were anything, too large for the man. The Magistrate ordered Larkins to try on the boots. He took off his own and made the attempt. It was useless—he could not get his feet down. He pulled, pulled, and blowed until his face was the color of a beet, but the stubborn foot would not go in the boot. "Look at the creeum shavings he's got inside of his socks," said McKeever. "Ah, you dirty young shsver, if you say that I'll throw you out the Court as I did John Kerr," retorted Larkins. A lively dispute arose, during which Larkins got his own boot off and the shaving question was not investigated. The judgment was for the defendant, the left the court room delighted, while McKeever slowly walked away with the boot under his arm.

Peter H. Burke has a similar case. The plaintiff made a pung for Burke, who afterwards repudiated the bargain and refused to pay for or take it from the shop. The bargain was proved, and indeed Burke did not deny it in Court, but wanted his own time to pay. Judgment for the plaintiff for $30.

OLD PROBABILITIES.—Our learned friend who sits at Washington and receives, from the signal stations of a continent, reports on the vicissitudes of the weather, sorts, compares and infers from them the daily bulletins which everybody reads, might reasonably add, in view of the late sudden changes, "Colds, Coughs and Affections of the Throat and Lungs will prevail in the East and North. Warning signals continue in the West and South." In view of the truth of these probabilities, we commend to all sufferers that excellent and potent specific, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has, in countless instances, saved life, and has, within the knowledge of every one, alleviated most alarming symptoms and effected cures almost surpassing belief. So excellent is it that the medical faculty largely uses it in their practice. In cases of seated consumption, it prolongs life and softens the stay of the afflicted sufferer. About these days it is well to have it in the house. By its timely use serious disease may be checked or turned aside.—Nashua (Iowa) Post.
