King Leopold of Belgium died early on Friday morning last. The aged monarch had been critically ill for some time and gradually sank into a condition from which he seemed to be rallying when he suddenly collapsed. Leopold II son of Leopold I was born at Brussels on April 9th, 1835, so that he was in his 75th year at the time of his death. He had been on the throne since 1865, 44 years. His Queen, Archduchess Marie Henriette of Austria died in 1902. Their family consisted of three daughters. The two eldest of them, the Princesses Louise and Stephanie have been estranged from their father; but Princess Clementine remained in his affections. Prince Albert, the dead King's nephew, succeeds to the throne. The deceased King is said to have been very wealthy. By his will he divided many million dollars between his three daughters. As this may be regarded as a practical disinheritance of his children, it is intimated that a gigantic legal battle is likely to ensue in order to obtain the King's wealth. King Leopold was a cousin of the late Queen Victoria of England.

Notes From Ottawa.

Arrangements have been set on foot at Ottawa for the preliminary work of organizing for the great Conservative convention. The special committee appointed by Mr Borden has made the following recommendations:—

(1) That a Committee of fifty (of whom not more than twenty will be members of Parliament) to be known as the Committee on Preliminary arrangements for the Dominion Convention of the Liberal-Conservative Party be appointed by our Leader.

(2) That the said Committee be called together at Ottawa for the first meeting on some day in the month of January, 1910, to decide on the best way of getting the whole party throughout the Dominion to join heartily in the said Convention, and to arrange the system of obtaining delegates to the Convention, and all other matters connected with the same.

(3) That while it is the opinion of this Committee that the Dominion Convention should be held in the City of Winnipeg two or three days previous to the Winnipeg Exhibition, which would be early in July, the final decision as to the place of holding the said Convention should be left until the first meeting of the Committee on Preliminary Arrangements, and that in the meantime, Mr. Borden be asked to communicate with the Conservative Provincial Prime Ministers, with the Conservative Leader of the Opposition in Provinces which have a Liberal Government, and also with the Provincial Conservative Association Executives in those Provinces where such exist and request their opinion as to the best time and place for holding the Convention, in order that their views may be laid before the Committee on Preliminary Arrangements at its meeting in January.

(4) Your Committee further recommends that each member of Parliament and defeated Conservative candidate be requested to consult the Executive of the Association for his Electoral Division with the object of obtaining their views, and that the whips of the respective Provinces be requested to transmit immediately to each defeated Conservative candidate a copy of its recommendation and invite an expression of their views and the opinions of their said Executives thereon.

Following are the expressions of various members of Parliament upon the Eight Hour Bill which was discussed recently in the House of Commons. The Conservatives put their backs into the debate, with the result that the subject was discussed with a seriousness never before seen in Parliament.

Mr. Claude MacDonell urged that the Government should grapple with the question and advised consideration by Parliamentary committee which after hearing all sides could draft a workable measure. He favoured the principal of having the eight hour day introduced on public works.

Mr. A. S. Goodeve (Con. Kootenay) testified that the introduction of the eight hour law in British Columbia had produced eminently satisfactory results. He stated of his own personal knowledge that before the introduction of the eight hour law in the mining district of the Kootenay only a small percentage of the labouring men owned their homes, or apparently took any interest in their homes. Since the introduction of the eight hour law a large number of miners have purchased and now own their homes and are active in improving their surroundings. They have a certain amount of daylight at home which, under the old conditions they could not have. With the ten hour day in the mines, it meant practically twelve hours. Men had to rise long before daylight in the morning to get to their work and they usually did not return until after dark. They hardly saw their families in daylight from one end of the year to the other. He also advocated careful examination of the bill in committee with a view to divising a workable measure.

Mr E. N Rhodes (Con. Cumberland) said, I have given more or less attention to the subject of an eight hour day, even before I become a member of this House, and the result of my reading together with direct experience of the condition of labour has led me into a position of absolute sympathy with the movement of the labour men to secure what is known as a uniform eight hour day. I approve of the principle of an eight hour day, and of the movement which has been inaugurated by organized labour in this and other countries to secure an eight hour day. The objections which have been offered to this measure today have been largely technical legal objections." Mr. Rodes went on to combat the opinion that an eight hour day would mean accomplishment of less work than a ten hour day, drawing for his arguments upon the experience of Victoria, Australia. He went on to satirize the way in which the labouring men in their quest for this eight hour day have been thrown from province to dominion from the dominion back again to the province.

Mr C. A. Magrath (Con. Medicine Hat) endorsed what Mr Goodeve had said. "I am a supporter of the principle underlying this bill "he said," and am prepared to vote for it. We hear much said about the conservation of health as one of the most important things to which we can devote our attention, and this bill affects health It also has a bearing on the question of the unemployed. It may affect the profits of some of our industrial firms, but as between the conservation of health and the diminution of unemployment on the one side and maintaining the profits of capitalists on the other side, I am in favour of it, of looking after the interests of the workingman, and allowing a few dividends to be diminished."

Mr J. W. Maddin (Con. South Cape Breton) declared himself in favour of an eight hour day for the labouring classes. Meeting the argument that a man must accomplish more in ten hours than in eight, he said that the product is not the result alone of the time devoted to the labour, but also the skill and vitality put into it by the workman. For instance, in the coal mines of Nova Scotia within recent years, they have introduced coal mining machines which are worked by compressed air at a very high pressure. The air is taken in from the reservoirs at the pit bottom at about 900 pounds pressure to the square inch It is conducted through the mines and used in these machines. A man is stretched out on his stomach at full length, grasping the handles of this powerful machine, weighing, perhaps, 900 or 1000 or even 1200 pounds working, as I have said, at heavy pressure, and pounding with a pick on the working face. There is a recoil that shakes and vibrates every part of the anatomy of the man operating the machine. It has been stated on apparently good authority that a man's working life devoted to the operating of such machinery, even at eight hours per day is only five or six years on the average." Mr Maddin went on to say that manufacturers who formerly thought that it was the last hour that gave them their profit have discovered that it was the last hour that registered their loss—that their workingmen had lost the vim and vitality with which they had pursued their labours earlier in the day. He instanced the firm of Messrs, Holden of Bradford England, the largest wool combers in the world, who have mills in England running fifty-six hours a week and find that they can comb wool more cheaply in England than in France though they pay higher wages for the short day in England than for long day in France, and employ exactly the same machinery in both places.

Mr. A. A. Crosby (Con. Halifax) said the question had come to stay and that Parliament should deal with it. Nobody regretted previous limitations of the hours of labor, and the same objections had been urged against the limitation of child labor.

Dr. J. D. Reid (Grenville) said he would vote for the bill and objected to having it sidetracked.

Mr. George H. Barnard (Con., Victoria, B. C.) offered to support the bill if it were pressed to a division.

Mr. R. L. Borden said that it was a question that must be not. "In common with every member of this House, I am disposed to give the most sympathetic consideration to every measure that will improve the condition of the laboring men of this country. We want our laboring men to live and prosper under fair conditions so that, as has been well said tonight, we shall have a strong virile population, not doomed to work on conditions of inequality or to compete on unfair conditions with the pauper labor of any country. We ought to give every possible consideration to their claims in this regard and I am disposed to do that." Mr. Borden went on to urge that the matter must not be shelved. On the motion for a special committee being passed he took special pains to see that the committee was given the most ample powers in regard to the summoning of witnesses.

The Market Prices.

There was a large inside market yesterday and prices were well advanced. Eggs were away up, as high as 32 cents being paid. Butter had scarcely changed from last quotations. Poultry was in the second envy also; 18 cents a pound being paid for turkeys. Geese were $1.00 to $1.50 each; fowls and chickens, too, were well up, changing hands at 75 cents to $1.00 a pair. There was a large quantity of pork which sold as high as 10 cents a pound. Oats were not in great abundance, and what offered was picked up quickly at 43 cents per bushel for black. There was little or no hay on the market, the falling snow rendering the hauling in of hay quite unsuitable. The hide market has declined somewhat, 10½ being the highest price offered Sheep pelts were from 75 to 80 cents, and calf-skins were little changed. For the rest the prices generally were as per following list:

WINTER OVERCOATS

PATON'S SUITS & OVERCOATS

THERE IS INDIVIDUALITY IN PATON'S CLOTHES for MEN

We do not mistake freakishness for individuality. But we do succeed in getting into the Suits and Overcoats that bear the Paton label a certain distinction that is a characteristic of the apparel of the best dressed man—and that is not commonly to be had in clothing bought ready-to-wear.

All of this clothing is made expressly for us, and made in special ways which we prescribe.

Choice of high grade and attractive fabrics; of cold shrunk canvas for interlining; of the best grade of buttons, tapes and other tailor's "fixings" are the first step.

But the artistic and scientific cutting of the cloths and the careful and intelligent hand tailor work by skilled craftsmen are what give to Paton's Clothes their individuality and assure long service to the wearer. Each week we make endeavors to do better than in the seasons past. This season we believe we have better Clothes than we or any other store ever had to offer for the prices. There is a full range—we make especial efforts to have Clothing of the proper proportions for men of many builds.

Suits and Overcoats $6, $7.50, $8.50, $10, $12.50, $13.50, $15, $18 and $20.
