The object you are working for is affluence. The key to this is the NATIONAL CASH REGISTER OFFICE: 67 YONGE.

The Toronto World.

NEW NOVELS
Beatrice & Benedick, by Hawley Smart; Out of Eden, by Dora Russell; Dumaresq's Daughter, by Grant Allen.
Red Letter Series. - At All Bookstores. 246

TWELFTH YEAR. THURSDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 5, 1891 ONE CENT.

THE VOLCANO OF IRELAND.

A "RAZORS IN THE AIR" KIND OF A TIME AT WATERFORD.

Dillon Publicly Announces That He Was Offered the Leadership of the Irish Party in Succession to Parnell—Tim Healy Renews His Attack on the Women of Parnell's Family.

WATERFORD, Ireland, Nov. 4.—At the convention of the National Federation in session here great excitement prevails. The streets are crowded with uproarious mobs ready for a disturbance. The police have been making free use of their batons and several civilians have been injured.

Timothy Healy, who was horsewhipped yesterday by Mr. McDermott, was one of the speakers. He said he would not be deterred by violence from pursuing the course he had mapped out for himself and repeated the language in reference to the widow of the Irish leader which he used at Longford on Sunday last and which led to the chastisement he received at the hands of McDermott.

Mr. Dillon on arriving was received with mingled cheers and hisses. Three hundred police guarded the Federation delegates on their way to the convention, which was held in the City Hall. The police with their batons repelled repeated charges made by the mob. The Parnellite sympathizers tried to rush through the entrance of the City Hall, but were beaten back.

The convention proceeding, Mr. Dillon confirmed Mr. O'Brien's Boulogne revelations and added that the men now calling him a traitor had telegraphed to him while he was in New York, offering him the leadership in succession to Mr. Parnell. Continuing Mr. Dillon said that in spite of continuous calumnies heaped upon him he had never before revealed this fact. Harrington, Redmond and other prominent Parnellites had joined in the request which was made after he had declared against the leadership of Mr. Parnell. He refused the leadership because it was a painful and difficult position, a position which he had never sought or wished, and one which he would be slow to accept. After arriving at Boulogne he told them that he could not accept the position unless all concurred in promising loyal support. Those men one and all promised that if he (Dillon) took the chairmanship they would be his loyal followers. He had done nothing since that altered his position a hairsbreadth. For weeks at Boulogne they were as anxious to get Mr. Parnell out of the leadership as the majority were. If they had steadily adhered to that policy they might have saved Mr. Parnell from an impossible position. If anyone in the world was responsible for Mr. Parnell's fate after Mr. Parnell himself it was the men who, when the supreme hour came, had not sufficient courage, manliness or honorable friendship to take a firm stand and impose their judgment on him. (Cheers.)

Mr. Dillon left the convention hall on his way to the railway station guarded by police and 100 priests. A mob followed and kept up a continuous attack until Mr. Dillon obtained shelter in the station. A number of skulls were cracked.

Thirty delegates while crossing a toll bridge were thrown to the ground and trampled upon, many being badly hurt and bleeding profusely when rescued by the police.

Several thousand Parnellites held the approaches to the convention hall and everywhere struck down opponents. The whole quay a mile in length was the scene of savage fighting and many persons were taken to the hospital.

It is estimated that 150 persons were seriously and many others dangerously injured during the fighting.

The Mayor presided at a meeting held here to-day for the purpose of censuring John Dillon for his visit to this city.

A Silver-Mounted Whip for McDermott.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—A number of ladies of Longford have decided to present to Mr. McDermott a silver-mounted whip.

Priestly Influence at Cork.

CORK, Nov. 4.—Singular statements are alleged by the Parnellite leaders as to the intimidation of voters by the clergy. It is said that anathema has been threatened against electors who should dare to vote the Parnell ticket, that men were told to drop the Parnellite cause under peril of being denied the rites of the church, and that women were appealed to by priests to influence their husbands against the Parnellite cause.

It is thought probable that, in the event of an anti-Parnellite victory on Friday, Redmond will contest the election on the alleged ground of priestly intimidation and dictation. The Parnellites claim that but for the priests they could carry the district with ease, but that the clergy spare no effort to prejudice the minds of the people against the cause represented by Redmond.

Mr. Davitt's Parliamentary Disability.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Mr. Michael Davitt has announced that he will not enter Parliament until the general election. Mr. Davitt and his friends have conceived a most erroneous view of his position. He is disqualified from sitting in Parliament, as he was sentenced to penal servitude, and on being released before the completion of his term did not receive a free pardon from the Crown. Mr. Davitt is not an eligible candidate for the House of Commons until a special act of Parliament has been passed to remove his disqualification. If Mr. Davitt stood for any constituency the votes given him would be wasted and his opponent would be returned as a matter of course.

These Be Strong Words.

DUBLIN, Nov. 4.—John Redmond and Timothy Harrington have issued a statement, to which is attached their names, in reply to William O'Brien's recent revelations in connection with the Boulogne negotiations. They characterize Mr. O'Brien's statements as artful, dishonest misrepresentation, a shameless breach of confidence and a wanton outrage on the memory of the dead leader. The burden of the statement is that O'Brien has given an incomplete and colored account of the negotiations at Boulogne, at the same time suppressing his own copy of the proceedings, which would show that he and his friends proposed to obtain the withdrawal of the denunciation of Mr. Parnell by the Catholic bishops, and to give Parnell the right to veto any Home Rule bill proposed by the Liberals. The latter condition, it is evident, they say, O'Brien omitted in his revelations from fear of the Gladstonians, and while publicly canting morality he was privately willing to spit upon it. The Parnellites did consent to Mr. Parnell's retirement because they knew it would have been a sham retirement. They challenge O'Brien to publish Parnell's letter renouncing these conditions. The making public of this letter is most important to the Irish people. They also accuse Dillon and O'Brien with suppressing various letters which had passed between Parnellites and Gladstone and Morley, the Liberal leaders. Archbishop Cooke and Bishop Welsh, they say, utterly deny that the Parnellites considered the Liberal assurances satisfactory. They also allege that Mr. O'Brien was not satisfied with promises of Liberals, and in support of their statement challenge him to publish a letter which they say he wrote to Morley, begging him to amend his assurance and Morley's reply, in which he refused to alter a single comma.

An Irish Farmer Murdered by Italians.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A mysterious murder is reported from Monaghan, Ireland. A farmer from a neighboring county went to Monaghan to attend a fair. Upon going to his lodgings where he intended to stay for the night he was seen to enter into a dispute with someone. No one seems to have witnessed the end of the dispute, but the farmer was found dead, stabbed to the heart. Two Italians, husband and wife, who were in the town as wandering musicians, have been arrested on suspicion of having committed the crime.

A BERLIN BANK FAILURE.

The Empress, Prince Henry and the Minister of Worship Heavy Losers.

BERLIN, Nov. 4.—The suspension of Hirschfeld & Wolf, the bankers, has caused a drop in the shares of the Patzinhofer Brewery, the best of the kind in the market, of 80 per cent. It is reported the Empress and Prince Henry lost a large amount by the suspension and that the Minister of Worship lost his entire fortune. Many of the leading aristocrats are badly involved in the suspension.

A Comedian in Earnest.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—At Coatbridge, England, last evening, shortly after the play began, the gallery commenced to hiss and jeer, and Toole, the actor, angrily appealed to the audience to protect themselves against the gallery "ruffians." He was surprised, he said, at their want of manliness, and declared that he would never play in Coatbridge again. After struggling through the remainder of the performance Toole, in an agitated manner, offered a reward for the discovery of the ruffian who had thrown a missile on the stage. The uproar was due to the raising of the prices of gallery admission tickets.

A Mistake Somewhere.

The C. E. said that no World reporter had been sent to see him. Young Mr. Walters was alert in a moment.

"You mean to say that none of your reporters were up to see me to-day?"

"No sir."

Mr. Walters was too dumfounded to speak, but merely sat and looked unutterable things.

He then began to describe: "Tall, stout man, bulging eyes, double chin."

"No World reporter," said the City Editor.

"Looks like a description of Detective Rogers," he added.

"Trapped, by thunder!" hissed Walters in true melodramatic style.

Will you please explain yourself, said the City Editor?

"Well, sir, to be brief, some one called me up by telephone representing himself to be a World reporter and asking the favor of an interview in regard to the affairs of the Dominion Building and Loan Association at my house to-night. I made an appointment and the man whom I have described to you put in an appearance. I had taken the precaution of having Mr. Macdonald, my solicitor, present and my friend Mr. McQuillan. When the man came in he saluted me by name and any suspicions I may have entertained vanished at once. I gave him some information and some documents which I had and then he left, promising to bring back at 10 o'clock the 'write up' for me to examine. Now I find he was a detective put on my trail by the Hon. G. W. to hound me," and again Mr. Walters looked very melodramatic.

We Will Have Him Yet.

"But ha, ha! we will entrap him—the trapper trapped. He promised to be back to my house to get my approval of what he wrote up at 10 o'clock. I will go home, get the statement from him and then set the bulldog on him."

Mr. Walters urged the City Editor to accompany him and denounce the man as an imposter. The C.E. felt like complying, as it is about time that this sort of imposition was stopped.

But—

Just at that moment another gentleman entered the sanctum. He was Dan J. Rose, well known in lacrosse circles and an active partner in the firm of Hunter, Rose & Co. Mr. Rose was very anxious to have a confidential chat with the editor. The other visitors, after waiting a minute or two, were anxious to be on time to keep their appointment, and hastily saying good-night, departed.

But before they left the editor knew that there was a mysterious connection between them and Mr. Rose. For Mr. Rose's opening words were an apology for an unauthorized use of The World's name in a little piece of detective work in which he had been engaged.

Then he told his story. It was this:

His firm had been printing some circulars for the Dominion Building and Loan Association. On Tuesday afternoon they started a boy out to deliver a quantity of these circulars to the directors. The circulars were duly delivered. The papers of yesterday, however, contained the text of the circular as follows:

TORONTO, Nov. 2, 1891.

DEAR SIR.—The directors of the Dominion Building and Loan Association have called a meeting of the shareholders at Toronto for the 20th inst. As a shareholder I intend to be present and see not only that the misdeeds of the late manager are rectified, but also that the future management gets into proper hands.

I inclose a list of shareholders in your town, along with a number of proxies. Kindly use your best endeavors to have them executed in my favor, getting as many shares represented as you possibly can, and forward at the earliest possible moment.

Thanking you in anticipation, I remain, yours truly.

The circular was not signed. He knew at once that this had been improperly obtained. He questioned the boy about it and the little fellow unbosomed himself of a secret which had weighed heavier on his spirits than lead.

The Serpent Tempted Me and I Did Eat.

When on his way to the directors with the bundles of circulars he had been met by a pleasant mannered young man who asked him where he worked. After learning that Hunter, Rose & Co. were his employers the young man said, "You are printing some circulars for the Dominion Building & Loan Association. If you get me one I will give you fifty cents."

"I don't know," said the boy, "and I can't go back and get one, as I am on my way over there now with these." The boy's story is then that his interlocutor took two circulars out of the bundle and gave him a quarter.

"Now," said Mr. Rose, "we have endured enough of this sort of thing, and I made up my mind to do my utmost to secure the arrest of the man who had stolen our circulars. From the description we guessed who it was, Tom Langton, our traveler, played a World reporter and went and saw Walters, the man we suspect, to endeavor to get evidence, and to-night I am going to have Walters arrested for larceny."

The City Editor had hardly time to express his regret at this piece of deception, when another startling episode of the drama developed itself.

Messrs Walters, Macdonald and McQuillan had gone outside. Mr. Rose did not know them from Adam, and they were equally blissfully ignorant of his identity. Nor did the editor think it his duty to inform Mr. Rose that he had seen his quarry face to face, in fact rubbed shoulders with him a moment before. When they reached the corner of Melinda and Jordan-streets they could scarcely believe their eyes when they saw Mr. Tom Langton, the man they were hurrying off to meet, standing there. He had accompanied Mr. Rose and was waiting outside for him. An earnest conference followed. The three wanted Thomas to come up and see the editor. After some hesitation he consented to do so.

Here Was a Pretty Kettle of Fish.

So that just as Mr. Rose was leaving, not in the

THE WORLD'S PRIVATE PLAY.

A DRAMA ENACTED IN THE EDITOR'S SANCTUM.

An Echo of the Troubles in the Dominion Building and Loan Association—Mr. Charley Walters Say He Purchased a Circular—Hunter, Rose & Co. Says He Stole It—He is Landed in Quod.

The Comedy of Errors was enacted right in The World Office last night under the very eyes of its watchful young men. It freely acknowledges that much of the news which it presents every lawful morning is not got without anxious labor. In a complicated case the very ends of the earth have occasionally to be searched and the talents of a Vidocq to be employed before the bright and variegated patchwork of the story is slowly pieced together. The intelligent reader, and The World flatters itself that the most intelligent portion of the community are its readers, may therefore dimly appreciate the wonder and the gratitude of the staff when a case of peculiar complication, a drama with a most intricate plot, rapidly unwound itself right in the editorial sanctum.

The World was the first paper to give to the public the story of the difficulties in the office of the Dominion Building and Loan Association. During the course of investigation of the affairs of that concern the reporters of the paper more than once interviewed Mr. Charles Walters, a young gentleman who lives in Brunswick-avenue and who is deeply learned in the politics of that financial institution. Last night Mr. Walters dropped into the office, accompanied by Mr. A. C. Macdonald of Macdonald & Corley, solicitors for those shareholders of the Dominion Building & Loan Association, who are taking action against the directors for misconducting its affairs, and a Mr. McQuillan. He saw the City Editor and asked if the reporter who had been up at his house earlier in the day was in.

A Comedy of Errors.

The C. E. said that no World reporter had been sent to see him. Young Mr. Walters was alert in a moment.

"You mean to say that none of your reporters were up to see me to-day?"

"No sir."

Mr. Walters was too dumfounded to speak, but merely sat and looked unutterable things.

He then began to describe: "Tall, stout man, bulging eyes, double chin."

"No World reporter," said the City Editor.

"Looks like a description of Detective Rogers," he added.

"Trapped, by thunder!" hissed Walters in true melodramatic style.

Will you please explain yourself, said the City Editor?

"Well, sir, to be brief, some one called me up by telephone representing himself to be a World reporter and asking the favor of an interview in regard to the affairs of the Dominion Building and Loan Association at my house to-night. I made an appointment and the man whom I have described to you put in an appearance. I had taken the precaution of having Mr. Macdonald, my solicitor, present and my friend Mr. McQuillan. When the man came in he saluted me by name and any suspicions I may have entertained vanished at once. I gave him some information and some documents which I had and then he left, promising to bring back at 10 o'clock the 'write up' for me to examine. Now I find he was a detective put on my trail by the Hon. G. W. to hound me," and again Mr. Walters looked very melodramatic.

"We Will Have Him Yet.

"But ha, ha! we will entrap him—the trapper trapped. He promised to be back to my house to get my approval of what he wrote up at 10 o'clock. I will go home, get the statement from him and then set the bulldog on him."

Mr. Walters urged the City Editor to accompany him and denounce the man as an imposter. The C.E. felt like complying, as it is about time that this sort of imposition was stopped.

But—

Just at that moment another gentleman entered the sanctum. He was Dan J. Rose, well known in lacrosse circles and an active partner in the firm of Hunter, Rose & Co. Mr. Rose was very anxious to have a confidential chat with the editor. The other visitors, after waiting a minute or two, were anxious to be on time to keep their appointment, and hastily saying good-night, departed.

But before they left the editor knew that there was a mysterious connection between them and Mr. Rose. For Mr. Rose's opening words were an apology for an unauthorized use of The World's name in a little piece of detective work in which he had been engaged.

Then he told his story. It was this:

His firm had been printing some circulars for the Dominion Building and Loan Association. On Tuesday afternoon they started a boy out to deliver a quantity of these circulars to the directors. The circulars were duly delivered. The papers of yesterday, however, contained the text of the circular as follows:

TORONTO, Nov. 2, 1891.

DEAR SIR.—The directors of the Dominion Building and Loan Association have called a meeting of the shareholders at Toronto for the 20th inst. As a shareholder I intend to be present and see not only that the misdeeds of the late manager are rectified, but also that the future management gets into proper hands.

I inclose a list of shareholders in your town, along with a number of proxies. Kindly use your best endeavors to have them executed in my favor, getting as many shares represented as you possibly can, and forward at the earliest possible moment.

Thanking you in anticipation, I remain, yours truly.

The circular was not signed. He knew at once that this had been improperly obtained. He questioned the boy about it and the little fellow unbosomed himself of a secret which had weighed heavier on his spirits than lead.

The Serpent Tempted Me and I Did Eat.

When on his way to the directors with the bundles of circulars he had been met by a pleasant mannered young man who asked him where he worked. After learning that Hunter, Rose & Co. were his employers the young man said, "You are printing some circulars for the Dominion Building & Loan Association. If you get me one I will give you fifty cents."

"I don't know," said the boy, "and I can't go back and get one, as I am on my way over there now with these." The boy's story is then that his interlocutor took two circulars out of the bundle and gave him a quarter.

"Now," said Mr. Rose, "we have endured enough of this sort of thing, and I made up my mind to do my utmost to secure the arrest of the man who had stolen our circulars. From the description we guessed who it was, Tom Langton, our traveler, played a World reporter and went and saw Walters, the man we suspect, to endeavor to get evidence, and to-night I am going to have Walters arrested for larceny."

The City Editor had hardly time to express his regret at this piece of deception, when another startling episode of the drama developed itself.

Messrs Walters, Macdonald and McQuillan had gone outside. Mr. Rose did not know them from Adam, and they were equally blissfully ignorant of his identity. Nor did the editor think it his duty to inform Mr. Rose that he had seen his quarry face to face, in fact rubbed shoulders with him a moment before. When they reached the corner of Melinda and Jordan-streets they could scarcely believe their eyes when they saw Mr. Tom Langton, the man they were hurrying off to meet, standing there. He had accompanied Mr. Rose and was waiting outside for him. An earnest conference followed. The three wanted Thomas to come up and see the editor. After some hesitation he consented to do so.

Here Was a Pretty Kettle of Fish.

So that just as Mr. Rose was leaving, not in the blood having been shed, what was the editor's horror to see his victim sail in at the door, exclaiming:

"Here is the fellow that was playing reporter!"

Mr. Rose took in the situation at a flash. He vanished and sped with all speed to the detective's office. In the meantime big good-natured Tom Langton was subjected to an excited cross-examination. He kept cool, but he did perspire. In the midst of it all in walked Detective Slemin and arrested Mr. Walters.

The curtain may as well now be rung down as the reader doubtless thinks the play is running to seed. Suffice it to say that Mr. Walters was duly taken to headquarters, searched and taken downstairs and after about half an hour's duration was duly bailed, and consequently slept in his own house last night. The charge will be heard by the Police Magistrate this morning.

Hunter, Rose & Co. have suffered from robberies of their work, among them the theft of the notorious Farrer pamphlet about a year ago, and which cost them the loss of considerable business. A job office has to maintain its reputation for secrecy or lose work, and consequently Hunter, Rose & Co. were determined to make an example of the first person caught stealing a proof or printed circular.

Mr. Walters declares he will make everybody suffer who was concerned in his arrest. The really confidential circular, and it seems there were two printed at Hunter, Rose & Co.'s, was sent to a prominent officer of the company and escaped the hand of any would-be larcenist. This circular, it is supposed, was the one Mr. Walters wished to secure.

REMEMBERING AGED WOMEN.

The Corner Stone of a Home for Them Well and Truly Laid.

The corner-stone of the new building in Belmont-street to be known as the Aged Women's Home was laid yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Gillmore, who officiated, has been long connected with the Industrial Refuge, the oldest charity in the city. Rev. Messrs. Septimus Jones, O. S. Wallace, George Robertson and Dr Parsons were present and took part in the service. The following ladies were also present: Mesdames Gunther, Mortimer Clark, Jeffrey, Telfer, Chase, Hurden, Stark, Christie, Edwards, Gregg and Moore. The edifice, which is to cost $18,000, will be 128 feet deep and 86 feet front, with a capacity to accommodate 50 inmates. It will be built of red brick and stone in the Elizabethan style of architecture. It will be heated with hot water and will have a basement, two stories and an attic. The directors have $5000 on hand towards the cost of the building. Mr. William R. Gregg is the architect.

Chicago's High Building Construction Method.

"If this building were on an open plain, it would completely resist an earthquake or a cyclone," said Mr. W. L. B. Jenney to me in his office, on the eleventh story of the Home Insurance building. You will appreciate the force of his remark when you learn the details of what is now known as the "Chicago construction method."

It has been within the past few years that architects began to apply the methods of bridge construction to habitable houses. And now almost every new structure designed for the purposes of city business (at least in Chicago) is designed after this fashion. Twenty years ago there was not in the world a large and imposing structure built of nothing but steel and terra-cotta or brick. The fire-proof building was a rarity, and the loftiness that is now considered a matter-of-fact affair was biblically bold. The material used in the fire-proof house was either brick arches or solid cement concrete, and this stuff was of such excessive weight as to render it necessary to confine the structure to a hundred feet or so above the foundation. It is true that there were a few high buildings, but their walls were very thick, the light in them very poor, and the cost of construction out of all proportion to the income from the investment.

The first improvement came with the invention of the hollow fire-clay floor arch tile. This invention gave to the builders a material that made their structure perfectly fire-proof, that enabled them to build at a much reduced cost, and that permitted of almost indefinite height, because of its lightness when compared with the old brick arch and concrete method. The first of the tall buildings to be erected in Chicago after this invention was the Home Insurance building that was designed by Mr. Jenney. This was in 1884, and the structure was then only ten stories high. It has recently been elevated to twelve stories, and the upper floors are better, if anything, than the older ones.

Soon after the invention of the hollow tile came the idea of applying the steel bridge construction to houses, and thereafter all new buildings were made on this plan. The method is simple and comparatively cheap, and involves an entire revolution in the manner of building, in the preparations of plans, in the nature of the specifications, in the trades and manufactures called upon for the work, in the superintendency of the construction, in the laying of the foundations, in the expense to the owner, and in the advantages to be had when the work is finished. With all this, the external appearance of the building may be made to counterfeit any of its more solid, less stable, less safe, and more expensive and massive neighbors. The only difference will be in its great loftiness, and it is in this particular that the beauties of the new school are seen.

Laid at Rest in Mount Pleasant.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon the funeral of the late Dugald J. MacMurchy took place from this father's residence, 354 Sherbourne-street, Rev. G. M. Milligan officiated at the services in the house. The chief mourners were Archibald MacMurchy, the father of the deceased, and the deceased's two brothers, Angus and Campbell. The pallbearers were: Thomas Marshall, B.A., of Dunnville; I. E. Martin, B.A., of the Royal Military College, Kingston, his dearest friends at college, and Henry Brock, George Miche, C. N. Shanly, Hume Blake, Douglas Armour and George Evans.

At the request of the family no floral offerings were sent, and the coffin was strewn only with violets and white roses from his wife, father and sisters.

Many of Mr. MacMurchy's old friends attended the funeral, among them a delegation from the National Club, a large number of the male pupils of the Jarvis-street Collegiate Institute. The class of 1886 of Toronto University was also well represented.

Interment took place in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

"Well, That Bangs Bannagher!"

This was the classical remark of one of our prominent Irish citizens yesterday after splitting his sides with laughter at listening to Aldermen Brady's election speech in the Edison phonograph at 12 King-street east. "The brogue is perfect and there is a touch of the blarney in it, too," he added. This and Mr. Brady as a justice and his interview with his doctor were also in great demand. Everybody should hear these rich bits of humor. They are wonderfully like life.

50 Cents Will Buy

Gents' kid gloves from sizes 7 to 8; these gloves are worth $1.00 per pair. Gents' lined kid gloves only 75c per pair. Linen collars, 4 ply, English make, 3 for 50c. Scotch lamb's wool shirts or drawers only 75c to $1.50 per suit. Scarlet lamb's wool shirts or drawers from $1.00 up. Fancy striped shirts and drawers only 50c or $1.00 per suit. See our windows for 25c neckwear. Bogner's, cor. Yonge and Queen-streets. 246

Try Heisel's Digestive Gum; one grain pepsin in each stick. Druggists, 5c.

Hand-knit underwear will wear longer, shrink less and be more comfortable than anything else shown at White's, 65 King-street west.

Notes.

A. J. Spencer, manager of Nellie McHenry, last week scooped in $6351 during the clever comedienne's week at the Chicago Haymarket Theatre, playing "A Night at the Circus."

Mr. Thomas Q. Seabrooke's performance of "The Cadi" is said by the critics to rank with the Rip of Mr. Jefferson and the Col. Sellers of Mr. Raymond. If it were not for Bill Nye's popularity with the newspaper fellows this paragraph would not be in print.

M. J. Jacobs, auditor and treasurer of H. R. Jacobs' Imperial Amusement Circuit, is getting some excellent work out of the magnificent team of roadsters which he recently purchased. The pair have a record of 2.35.—Exchange. Wait until H. R. Jacobs gets the speedy fellow bought for him by Joe Frank the youngster's team will not be in it.

A CEMETERY BLOWN UP.

Hundreds of Bodies Hurled From Their Graves by a Gas-Well Explosion.

WHEELING, W. Va., Nov. 4.—News has just reached here from Corapolis, Pa., between here and Pittsburg, of a strange and terrible affair near that place to-day. The Allegheny Cemetery Company a few months ago started to bore a gas well on its new cemetery property in Corapolis. To-day there was a terrific explosion at this well which caused a great upheaval of the earth in the vicinity. Hundreds of dead bodies in the cemetery were hurled from their resting places and many costly monuments were shattered.

HIS HEAD BLOWN FROM HIS BODY.

The Awful Termination to a Duck-Shooting Expedition Near the Humber River.

A terribly fatal shooting accident occurred near the Sunnyside Rowing Club's building yesterday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. Mr. John McEachern, who lives at 112 Northcote-avenue, had the contents of a gun discharged into his head. He was instantly killed.

The unfortunate man, in company with George Summers, 62 Macdonnell-avenue, rented a boat from Walter Dean, a boat builder in Lakeshore-road, and set out on an afternoon duck-shooting expedition.

Nothing more was seen of the men until Summers returned with the boat, and in it lay the body of McEachern with one side of the head shot away. Everything in the boat was spattered with blood and brains and presented a sickening sight.

No particulars of the accident could be ascertained on account of Summers being altogether out of his mind. He had to be confined in No. 6 police station.

Coroner Lynd was notified but did not think an inquest necessary.

Both men worked in Wagner's piano factory at West Toronto Junction, their trade being finger-board makers. The two men were married and McEachern leaves one child.

The body of the unfortunate man was first taken to No. 6 Police Station and was afterwards removed to his home.

ASHBRIDGE'S BAY.

Tenders for Its Reclamation Extended at Request of An American Syndicate.

The Fire and Light Committee met at City Hall yesterday afternoon to consider the application of William Mitchell to erect a house in Euclid avenue with tile facing on part of it. The matter was referred to a sub-committee consisting of Ald. Bell and Jolliffe.

The sub-committee appointed to deal with the claim of William McGill & Co. for shortage in the weights of coal delivered to the waterworks last winter met yesterday afternoon. Considerable evidence was taken, but no settlement was arrived at.

The Ashbridge's Bay Committee met yesterday morning to consider the request of Col. Robert Alexander, representative of a New York syndicate, that the time for the reception of tenders for the reclamation of Ashbridge's Bay be extended for six weeks to give him time to put in an offer. The time was extended to Dec. 1.

The Fischer Grand.

[From The Musical Courier, N.Y.]

Reference has been made in these columns in an incidental manner to a new Grand Piano, the product of the firm of J. & C. Fischer, recently placed upon the market and offered for judgment to the trade and the musical public. Months ago it had passed its experimental stage, but the demand that has sprung up for the instrument makes it apparent that what was at first stated by us in reference to this Piano has been amply indorsed by the firms who have placed orders for the same, and particularly by those who have already disposed of many of these Grands and are now anxious for duplicates.

We believe we called it a superb instrument, and we reiterate now that in every particular this Fischer Grand is a superb example of the piano-building art, for first and foremost it is endowed with musical quality; its tone is pure and noble and attracts the musician because of its essential musical attributes. For a pianist the instrument possesses that rare distinction known as the pianistic touch. It responds instantaneously and at the same time sympathetically and the action is regulated skilfully and scientifically.

In short, the Fischer Grand is one of the latest and most agreeable surprises in the evolution of piano manufacturing and it will add fame and renown to its maker.

The Fischer house has been doing an enormous trade during the past decade, placing about 50,000 pianos in the homes of the American people during that period. Much as this brings insure to the merits of the instruments, for this fact alone constitutes a great indorsement of the piano, the production of this Fischer Grand Piano will mark a new era in the progress of the firm and the history of its development.

The enterprising piano men Messrs. Gourlay, Winter & Leeming, 188 Yonge-street, are the representatives for the Fischer Piano for Western Canada.

His Wife Still Trusts Him.

CAYUGA, Nov. 4.—At the Haldimand Assizes yesterday, Samuel Atkinson, aged 52, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for incest. His wife believes him innocent and stuck to him until the last. She stood leaning against the dock when he received the sentence. Before being taken back to his cell he leaned over and bade her an affectionate good-bye. When asked what he had to say why he should not receive sentence, he protested his innocence and charged his eldest daughter with having put up the other girl to swear the charge upon him.

He Has Joined the Benedicts.

One of The World's Young Men is a young man no longer. Mr. Joe T. Clark of this paper's staff was married yesterday afternoon at Pickering to Miss Sadie Greig, youngest daughter of Mrs. L. Greig of that place. Rev. L. Ferrin, Presbyterian clergyman, performed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will shortly return to the city and take up their residence at 53 Mackenzie-crescent.

New flavor Heisel's Celery Chewing Gum for the Nerves. Druggists, 5c package.

Upon the maturity of 7 per cent. guaranteed income bond of the North American Life Assurance Company the full face thereof becomes payable and an amount ranging from 10 to 50 per cent. is guaranteed in addition thereto; also a full share of the profit accumulations, or, if the holder desires, he may withdraw the profit accumulations and receive a guaranteed income of 7 per cent. annually during life, the face of the bond being payable at death. Upon the decease of the holder at any time the amount of the face value. 246

Do you want a house? Read the "Guide" Page 3.

Three Feet of Snow.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Nov. 4.—While Fredericton is rejoicing in green fields the people of Williamsburg, not many miles away, have their dooryards and fence corners decorated with drifts of snow three feet deep.

Of interest to house hunters—World's Real Estate Guide. Page 3.

Personal.

Eugene D. Lafleur, Ottawa, is at the Queen's.

H. W. Ackhoff, Chicago, is at the Queen's.

Mr. Peter A. Scott of Lion's Head is in town selling property.

Rev. A. C. Crews of Winnipeg has received and accepted a call to the pastorate of the Parliament-street Methodist Church of this city. He will succeed Rev. G. J. Bishop, whose time expires next June.

Read the Real Estate Guide. 3rd, page.

TRAGEDIES IN MANY LANDS.

SEVENTEEN MINERS CRUSHED TO DEATH IN MONTANA.

Twenty Persons Killed in a Religious Riot in Persia—A British Steamer Goes Ashore and Many Are Drowned—A Long List of Canadian Casualties and Sudden Deaths.

BUTTE CITY, Mont., Nov. 4.—At the Anaconda mine this morning 17 miners were killed. They were in the descending cage, the rope broke and the cage was precipitated to the bottom of the mine. Of the 19 men who made the fearful ride 17 were killed, their forms being crushed out of all semblance to those of human beings. Two were yet breathing, but no hopes are entertained for their recovery.

One Hundred Hogs and Twenty-five Cattle Killed.

ST. GEORGE, Nov. 4.—A collision, attended with very heavy loss, occurred on the Grand Trunk Railway a short distance west of the bridge (where the terrible catastrophe of February, 1889, took place), at 11.50 o'clock last night. The colliding trains were regular freights—No. 35 going west, which leaves Hamilton at 10.45, and No. 32, which runs from Point Edward to Toronto via the Y. No. 35 was in charge of Conductor James Hunt. Both trains were going at regulation speed, and as they approached the engineers reversed and, with the firemen, jumped for their lives. All escaped without serious injury. The driver of the eastbound engine, a London man, had his face scratched and bruised and his right arm injured. The Mogul engines came together with terrific force and the result was most disastrous. Both were completely wrecked and the cars were piled up in a heap. The westbound train was loaded with live stock and the loss was heavy. One hundred pigs and 25 head of cattle were killed. The wreck made a terrible sight.

Killed with a Bale of Hay.

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 4.—Yesterday Captain Alexander Ferguson, aged 61, was standing looking down into the hold of his boat while it was being loaded wit pressed hay, when one of the bales of hay swung around and struck him, knocking him down into the hold. The captain alighted on his head and received fatal injuries. The remains will be shipped to Sarnia.

An M.P. Injured.

BEAMSVILLE, Ont., Nov. 4.—Mr. William Gibson, M.P., and his driver were on their way to the station, when the harness became disarranged, the horses unmanageable and the two men were thrown violently to the ground and seriously injured.

Left Her Babe to Burn to Death.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 4.—A child of Mrs. Hammoud's was burnt to death today. The mother was away washing and the two children, a boy and girl, being left alone were starting a fire with coal oil, when the little girl's clothes caught fire. She lived only a few hours.

Murdered and Placed on the Track.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 4.—The body of James King, an Italian laborer, was found on the Erie tracks near the Erie freight yard at Niagara Falls, N.Y., this morning. He had been shot in the back of the head and the body placed on the track to conceal the murder.

Shot by a Policeman.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Nov. 4.—At an early hour this morning Officer Thomas Caples shot Henry McNeill, a sailor, while attempting to rescue a prisoner from him. The ball entered the groin and lodged in the abdomen, and McNeill lies in a critical condition at the General Public Hospital tonight.

A Banker Suddenly Called.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 4.—James Fald, banker, of this place, died suddenly in his office this afternoon.

A Persian Riot.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—In a religious riot at Mazandenan, Persia, a mob set fire to the house of Gen. Cooly, who was killed with 20 dependents.

British Steamer Wrecked.

PORTLAND, Oregon, Nov. 4.—The British ship Startlebane, from Honolulu, went ashore 25 miles north of Astoria yesterday. Of 31 persons on board six were drowned, including the captain. The vessel is a total loss.

A Frightful Crime Reported From Poland.

WARSAW, Nov. 4.—A frightful crime occurred at Osowiec, Poland. A Jewish timber merchant and his entire family of 12 were murdered by robbers, the house robbed and set on fire, and the bodies burned.

Russian Soldiers Killed in a Wreck.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 4.—A train conveying a large number of soldiers was derailed at Ivan Goroda to-day. Three of the soldiers were killed and 15 injured.

Hanged Himself On a Dumb Waiter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—John Cramer, a janitor, to-day shot his wife Mary in the temple, causing a fatal wound. Cramer then went to the roof of the house and hung himself on the dumb waiter shaft. Cause, jealousy.

Strangled by a Neckchain.

WEBSTER, Mass., Nov. 4.—Harry Jones, an unmarried operative in the West Dudley paper mill, went to the cellar to turn water into a water-chest and a large silver chain which he wore about his neck caught a nut on the shaft, which drew the unfortunate man to his death. When found he was on his knees, the shaft was stopped and he was black in the face.

Excursion to Washington, D.C., on Nov 23, '91, via Erie and Lehigh Valley Railways.

Something every person should see is the grand scenery along this picturesque route, which is unsurpassed in the United States; now is the time to visit the South, while the flowers are all in bloom and the weather warm; don't miss this grand opportunity and only cost you the small sum of ten dollars for the round trip. Suspension Bridge to Washington; tickets will be on sale at Suspension Bridge, and good to return up to Dec. 3, inclusive; train will leave Suspension Bridge at 4.40 p.m. For further particulars apply to S. J. Sharp, 19 Wellington-street east, Toronto.

C. P. R. Returns.

MONTREAL, Nov. 4.—The Canadian Pacific railway net traffic earnings from Oct. 21 to Oct. 31, 1891: 1891, $656,000; 1840, $602,000; increase for 1891, $54,000.

Read it—World's Real Estate Guide Page 3.

Take Notice.

In order to meet the growing demand for high-class tailoring at moderate prices S. Corrigan, 68 King-street west, is now offering new Scotch suitings, imported direct, from $20 up. Also trouserings at $5, $6 and $7. Fit, workmanship and style assured. A trial solicited. 246

The Sheffield House Importing Company (Registered).

65 Yonge-street (below King). English Spoons and Forks, Side Dishes, Solid Silver Ware, Fish Knives and Forks, etc. C. E. Robinson, Manager.

Catarrh—Hay Fever—Catarrhal Deafness

A New Home Treatment has been discovered whereby the worst cases are permanently cured by a few simple applications made forcibly, by the patient at home. Send 25c. for Circular. J. G. Dixon & Co. 340 West King-street, Toronto.

A SAD RECEPTION AWAITS HIM.

Daniel Whale Son Coming Home From India to See His Mother.

KINGSTON, Nov. 4.—Daniel Whale, under a sentence of life imprisonment, and who was yesterday brought to the penitentiary from Stratford, has a son in India. Some weeks ago he sent word that he was coming home to see his mother. No word of her s