SIXTEENTH YEAR. Senate Rdg Rm 22apl95

WEDNESDAY MORNING MAY 22 1895.

ONE CENT.

FIVE VICTORIES FOR MR. SEAGRAM.

The Fifth Queen's Plate For Waterloo.

5 RACES FOR BLACK AND YELLOW

One Event Captured by President William Hendrie.

Bonnifield Captured the Guineas With His Stable Mate, Millbrook, Second—The Vicar Barely Beaten Out For Third Place by Lochinvar—A Great Red Coat Race Through the Field—Bookmakers Get All the Worst of the Game in the Ring—10,000 Persons See the Sport in Chilly Though Fine Weather.

The race-fever struck Toronto yesterday in its full virulence. For some weeks it has been simmering, but the annual outbreak has now assumed its full force. The down-town streets yesterday morning were filled with folks who evidently intended that the week should be given over to sport and good humor. What the Eastertide festivals are to the old cities of Europe, the O.J.C. races are to Torontonians. They make merry without the aid of flowers, or confetti or dainty things of that sort, but the spirit is the same. It is the week when everyone is supposed to have a good time.

Afternoon the mattily clad men, with flowers in their buttonholes and the gaily vestured women with flowers in their hats, filled the street-cars and equipages that sped merrily to the Woodbine. Now and then a dray would pass along King-street announcing itself by the rat-tat-tat of a bugle or an Alpine horn.

10,000 People Present.

By 2.30 ten thousand people had assembled at the track to see the contest for the Queen's guineas, and the other delectable events of the day. All sorts and conditions of men and women were there, men being in the majority. Everybody who could get a day off was there, whatever his standing in society, and everyone was prepared to drop his little pile in the hope of adding to it. It may be that Providence was kindly disposed towards this merry crowd, for when the day was over the number of sporting individuals who came back feeling prosperous was larger than usual.

The weather did not feel so kindly as the presiding deity of the gamesters, however, for the first part of the afternoon was uncommonly cold and bleak. the ladies for the most part were saving their very finest gowns for the 24th, which is of course fashions' early summer exposition. What finery they wore, however, they had to cover up with sealskins and other autumnal wraps, and as it was the feminine noses were frequently blue. Toward evening, however, the sun shone forth resplendently, and the ladies ventured out to stroll upon the green and show some of their purple and fine linen to advantage.

Gray clouds had no depressing effects on the swarm of male humanity, however. From the members' enclosure down to the betting ring the scene was one of turmoil and laughter and unceasing chatter. Down among the bookies eminent lawyers and politicians rubbed elbows with the barbers and the grocers and the rest of humanity, and vied with them in the effort to find "a good thing." The occasion was thoroughly democratic in all its details, and replete with that genuine goodfellowship that always characterizes a mob, whether it is pulling down the Bastile or merely rejoicing over the triumphs of horseflesh.

The Ladies Gowns

As has been said the ladies did not wear their "very best" clothes yesterday, only their "second best," but if they had not said so themselves, of one another, male humanity would have been entirely deceived. Bor they all look as charming as Toronto women at their best can look. The prevalence of subdued cloth gowns, donned in preference to the cloudy skies, was marked, and winter wraps were donned as well. Mrs. Kirkpatrick was richly gowned in black silk, with a magnificent wrap of mink and seal.

Miss Kirkpatrick wore a charming gown of black crepon, black silken and deep valceennes lace.

Mrs. Wm. Hendrie's gown was a striking combination of mauve and purple, with a wrap of black velvet and cream lace.

Miss Hendrie wore a handsome gown of black and white checks, and her hat with a Paris confection of blue and white.

Mrs. Hay was gowned in Shepherd's plaid cloth, tailor made, and her wrap the most striking on the grand stand, a magnificent leopard skin.

Mrs. H. Montague Allan, of Montreal was attired in a rich gown of green crepon with a hat to match.

Mrs. Andrew Allan, of Montreal, wore a blue cloth costume and a fawn redengote.

Mrs. J. K. Kerr wore a grey cloth costume, handsomely braided with black.

Miss Ethel White looked charmingly in a combination of fawn and brown.

Miss Cawthra looked striking in a gown of green cloth, with a long fawn redingote.

Miss Mabel Lee's tailor-made costume was of fawn cloth, with large black hat.

Mrs. James Crowther was charmingly attired in black velvet, with a striking chapeau of cream and black.

Miss Arthurs wore an attractive combination of dark blue and pale blue, with a large hat, trimmed with black ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Dalton McCarthy was very richly gowned in a combination of black silk and black velvet.

Mrs. Fitzgibbon was handsome as ever in fawn, with an exquisite brown chip hat, trimmed with peacock blue silk.

Mrs. Fraser Macdonald wore a pretty gown of blue cloth, with a handsome hat to match.

Miss Louie Janes' gown was black and white striped silk, with a pretty hat of pale green and black.

Miss Gussie Hodgins wore a charming costume of mauve, with a large black hat.

Mrs. W. R. Riddell was handsomely attired in bluette cloth.

Miss Bunting wore a charming tailor-made gown of fawn cloth.

The Misses Eckhardt of New York wore exquisite tailor-made costumes.

Miss Williams wa strikingly gowned in black.

Miss McNaught was charming in combination of fawn cloth.

Mrs. Robert Christie wore a very rich gown of fawn and green shot silk.

Her sister, Miss Lee, was attired in fawn, with a brown chip hat to match.

Mrs. George Gooderham wore a rich gown of maroon shot silk brocade.

Miss Goderham wore a fawn tailor-made gown, with a large hat trimmed with black ostrich plumes.

Miss Mary Elwood was prettily gowned in blue.

Mrs. Jas. Carruthers was handsomely dressed in pink and black.

Mrs. Percy Rutherford wore a charming combination of black and rose.

Mrs. John Ros Robertson was attired in fawn and black.

Miss Pauline Johnson wore a rich gown of black silk with a black velvet wrap and a hat to match.

Mrs. J. Kerr Osborne was richly attired in black cloth.

Miss Connie Jarvis was charming in black, with a natty green chapeau.

Mrs. Alfred Cameron wore a rich gown of heavy black crepon, set off with mauve.

Mrs. Cecil Gibson was gowned in tailor-made grey checked costume.

Mrs. John Wright was handsomely costumed in black.

Mrs. Fred Moffat and Miss May Walker also wore handsome gowns.

Mrs. Dr. Moorehouse wore a black tailor-made gown with a handsome hat of pale green.

Miss Sadie Burns was strikingly costumed in dark green cloth, set off with red.

Mrs. Fraser's gown was of rich green cloth, with scarlet vest.

Mrs. Watkins was effectively gowned in deep green, with scarlet trimmings and had a charming hat to match.

Mrs. Percy Green wore a handsome gown of black and white striped silk, with a wrap of cream lace and purple velvet.

Mrs. Harry Merritt wore a rich costume of black satin, with small blue stripe.

Mrs. W. H. Beatty was effectively costumed in dark blue.

Miss Beatty wore a fawn tailor-made gown.

Mrs. W. D. Wilson's attire was a pleasing combination of brown and blue.

Miss Clara Jackes was handsomely gowned in grey cloth.

Miss Etta Jackes wore a handsome combination of black and pink silk.

Miss Isabelle Garland was charmingly attired in brown cloth.

Miss Lizzie King wore a beautiful tailor-made gown of fawn.

Mrs. Aylesworth was strikingly attired in black and mauve brocade.

Mrs. John J. Dixon wore a handsome costume of blue cloth.

Miss Dixon was costumed in an effective combination of fawn and lavender.

LARGE FIELDS AND CLOSE FINISHES.

Excellent Sport and a Red Letter Day For the O.J.C.—Races Over a Track That Was Fairly Good.

From a racing standpoint it was of the rosiest tinge. Big fields, good time and close finishes were the general order, and the popular turfman from Waterloo came in for the lion's share of victories. There were six races on the program, and no less than five of these were captured by Mr. Seagram. The odd race, the Red Coat, went to Royal Bob, owned by Mr. Hendrie of Hamilton. The six winners were all favorites, their odds ruling from 2 to 1 on to 8 to 5 against. Morpheus, who went to the post at 3 to 5, won on the opening event from big field. Pyramis, Seagram's fast little brown filly, captured the Juvenile Scurry in fine style. She was an even money favorite. Mr. George Carruthers rode a masterly Red Coat race and won one of the best steeplechasing events ever seen at Woodbine Park, on Mr. Hendrie's Royal Bob, after a close finish with Capt. Forrester's Dodo, without a mishap. The Walker Cup went to Saragossa, the big brown horse that Mr. Seagram declared to win with, having a good length to spare at the finish. The race was royally honored at its close, when Mr. Hiram Walker presented the cup to Mr Seagram. It was filled with the sparkling, and everyone drank to the health of the Laird of Waterloo.

Parade of the Platers

Secretary Ogden led the Plate parade, and the maiden province-breds showed themselves before the spectators prior to the great race for Her Majesty's guineas. First came Mr. Dyment's Susquehanna, then followed Mr. Duggan's Chickie, the President's Lochinvar, the Hamilton horse with the great trial record, and Kittie. Then followed Lady Sinclair, the pride of the East; and next, amidst applause, came the Seagram quartet, Bonnifield, Confectioner, the Vicar of Wakefield and Millbrook. Annie Millar brought up the rear, just as she did at the end of the race. It was a grand race, and excitement reigned supreme from the drop of the flag until Bonnifield beat out Millbrook, and the Vicar nearly snatched third place from Lochinvar. The speculators sent Bonnifield to the post an even money favorite.

Many thought that Stonemason was going to the post a false favorite for the last race, but they were in error, as he practically won as he pleased. When the big son of Stonehenge got through the bunch at the start, he had the race all the way, and won in a walk.

The track was almost first-class, having dried out nearly perfectly after the recent rains. The day was fine and clear, and perhaps a little chilly for perfect racing weather.

The Trial Purse For Morpheus.

The opening event at six furlongs had nine starters, with Morpheus, the horse imported for Mr. Seagram by Mr. Haines, as the public's fancy, opening at 7 to 5 and closing at 3 to 5. Copyright was next in demand, and was well played, notwithstanding that he opened at 2 1-2 to 1 and closed at 4 to 1, while a good price could always be had against Lord Nelson, whose chances were well thought of by the stable connections. The others had few friends, and almost any price could be had against them. When the flag fell Lord Nelson was first to show, closely followed by Copyright and Morpheus, with the others bunched. Morpheus soon overhauled the leader, and the pair ran lapped to the stretch, where Morpheus drew away and won, ridden out, by half a length from Lord Nelson, who beat Copyright two lengths for the place, the others being strung out.

Pyramis a Great Two-Year-Old.

The Juvenile Scurry for 2-year-olds at half a mile again saw the Seagram colors finish in front. Ten youngsters faced the starter, and again the yellow and black, which was sported by the English filly Pyramis, was selected to carry the bulk of the money. The big bettors went down on Hand Car, while many fancied Roundsman and Kilrana, which were both well played, as was Looram, hap. The Walker Cup went to Saragossa, the big brown horse that Mr. Seagram declared to win with, having a good length to spare at the finish. The race was royally honored at its close, when Mr. Hiram Walker presented the cup to Mr Seagram. It was filled with the sparkling, and everyone drank to the health of the Laird of Waterloo.

Mickey Free, 5	97	12	11	10½	12	13	Reeves	P. McAvoy	10	30

Start fair; won by 4 lengths, one between second and third. Time 2.00 Winner by Stonehenge—Mary Buckley. Mutuels paid Stonemason $14.60 straight, $5.35 place; Kilkenny $5.50 place. Mickey Free and Addie B. carried overweight.

Mr. Hoyes had the mount, opened an even money favorite, but went back to 4 to 1 at the close, while Royal Bob was backed from 3 down to 7 to 5. A good price could always be had against the others. Prince Charlie and Dodo raced the first two turns of the field alternating in the lead until the last time over the water, where Mr. George Carruthers, who rode with good judgment up to this point, made his run with the favorite and led over the remainder of the jumps in the field, closely followed by Dodo, who had been made much use of during the first part of the rout. Coming to the last jump Royal Bob lost considerable ground, allowing Dodo to get on even terms, and at the sixteenth pole had the favorite beaten, but Mr. Carruthers made a final rally, and in an exciting finish landed the President's horse a winner by a neck. The victory was a most popular one for both owner and rider, the latter receiving quite an ovation on his return to the scales. Prince Charlie finished third ten lengths off, with George C. fourth and Venus, on whom Mr. Hoyes took his time, fifth. The Maid being pulled up after the last time over the club house bank.

Saragossa's Walker Cup.

The Walker Cup in which Mr. Seagram started Saragossa and Silk Gown, resulted in an easy victory for the son of Duke of Montrose, who opened at 3 and 4 to 1, but was quickly backed down, when Mr. Seagram declared to win with him. Silk Gown's good work last Saturday and light weight made her decidedly in demand, while the strong tip on Penniless made him many friends, and he was well backed by the stable connections, as was Coquette by the followers of the brown and yellow jacket. The big bettors were down on Penniless, whose price was forced from 5 down to 3 to 1, notwithstanding the heavy play on Mr. Seagram's pair. Saragossa, however, looked like a "good thing," and to outclass his field, as the result of the race showed. Silk Gown, who it was expected would go out and set a pace, got off poorly, but managed to get to the front just before reaching the stand, and showed the way round the club house turn, when she gave it up, and dropped out of the race, as did Penniless, who pulled up very lame. Saragossa and Coquette ran lapped up the back stretch and around the far turn, when the mare had enough, and Mr. Seagram's horse was allowed to win as he pleased, finishing a length in front of the President's mare, who beat Lotus two lengths for the place.

Again Mr Seagram Runs One-Two.

The Queen's Plate had ten starters, of which Mr. Seagram ran four, and for the fifth consecutive time captured Her Majesty's prize. The public would play nothing but Seagram and to the sorrow of the bookies, landed on Bonnifield, though many fancied Vicar of Wakefield. The race resulted in a most exciting finish between Bonnifield and Millbrook, the former ridden by Brooker securing the verdict by a short neck. Lochinvar just managed to get up in time to beat Vicar of Wakefild for third, the others being strung out. The winner got well away and at the stand had a slight advantage, while Millbrook was in the ruck. Chickie ran a good race for seven-eighths of a mile, where she gave up the fight. Millbrook then moved up and had he been placed as well as Bonnifield would no doubt have won.

Stonemason Won by Four Lengths.

The Welter Selling Purse, which brought the afternoon's sport to a close, resulted in another win for the Waterloo stable, and for the fifth time during the day saw the yellow and black first past the post, this time Stonemason easily disposing of his field. The public, as usual, went down on Mr. Seagram's horse, while the talent selected Kilkenny to carry their money, and a quiet tip was out on Curious, who with her light weight was thought by the stable to have a good chance. When straightened in the back stretch Stonemason took command, and, keeping on, won as he pleased by four lengths from Kilkenny, who beat Lasotta a length for the place.

IN THE BETTING RING.

Lively Battle With Bookmakers, and the Talent Put Up a Great Fight.

Shortly before the bookies had been allotted their boxes the betting ring was already packed with a crowd eager to place their dollars on the horse they fancied, and in many cases on the choice of the irrepressible "tout."

When the odds were posted showing Morpheus the favorite for the trial purse, at even money, the crowd besieged the boxes in their efforts to back Seagram's horse. His price dropped to 4 to 5, and still the money poured in, until all at once the crowd switched off on Copyright and Lord Nelson, both being played heavily for the place and across the board. Morpheus went up to 6 to 5, causing a second rush in his favor. Almost immediately his price dropped to 1 to 2, at which odds the betting closed. The other horses were considered rank outsiders, and were played for third only.

The Juvenile Scurry was also a hard race for the bookmakers, the talent having, almost without exception, a piece of the favorite Pyramis. The filly's odds opened at 2 to 5, and found takers in almost every speculator in the ring. The "bookies" kept its price varying from that at which it opened to 4 to 5, and closing at even money, with 2 to 5 offered for the place. A tip came in on Roundsman, but those who took it up confined themselves mostly to playing it for the place, at 4 to 1, and later at 2 to 1. Handicar found a goodly number of backers, but his price stood generaly at 3 to 1, and even for the second Kilrona was played by a few across the board at 8 to 1 straight, and 3 to 1 second.

The Redcoat race proved a throwdown for the backers of Venus, she being backed very heavily at even money on the opening, and 8 to 5 at the close. Royal Bob had a large support, who brought his price from 3 to 1 at the opening down gradually to 7 to 5. Prince Charlie was well backed for the place, but still the odds against him closed several points higher than they were at the opening. Dodo was moderately backed in some quarters for the place.

The Walker Cup proved another disappointment to the punters, when, after the race, there was a rush of Saragossa ticket-holders to get into line in front of the cashier. Money poured in on the Seagram pair as soon as the odds were posted, Saragossa being the more heavily backed of the two. Silk Gown opened favorite at 6 to 5, followed closely by Saragossa at 7 to 5, and both closed at even money, the latter being for a time obtainable at 3 to 1.

Coquette opened at 3 to 1 and closed at 8 to 3, and found some backers, mostly for the place. Penniless can boast of a number of backers.

For the Queen's Plate, Bonnifield was made favorite at 7 to 5, at which odds many dollars were entrusted to the bookies. Nevertheless, his price did not vary much, and closed at even money, and with a few books at 4 to 5. The Vicar had a number of backers, who could not bear to pas him by at 2 1-2 to 1. Millbrook's price was pulled down by his admirers, and many got a slice of him at 2 to 1 for the place. The others were freely backed, and almost in every case for third place by small speculators, who thought their respective choices sure things. In this race one book declined to take any Cool Enough Still.

The weather shows no immediate sign of growing very warm, and it is quite in order for ladies to see that their wrap or jacket is not left behind. The great sale of mantles this week at McKendry's offers a good opportunity to buy the seasonable garment at a shadow of its former price.
