STREET RAILWAY FALLING BEHIND

Percentages Due to City for June and July Have Not Been Paid.

The Toronto Railway Company has been falling behind in its payment of percentages of earnings to the city, and at the present the percentages of both June and July are owing, amounting to $237,325. Manager R. J. Fleming of the Toronto Railway Company was a visitor to Finance Commissioner Ross' office yesterday, and he may have suggested an arrangement for deferring payments. Quite recently Mr. Fleming wrote to Mayor Church, asking, owing to the financial difficulties under which the company was working, leave to let the payments of percentages stand until the end of the franchise term in September of next year. This suggestion was received coldly at the city hall, and it is understood will be definitely turned down by the board of control. The matter, it is said, may be placed before the board tomorrow, in the form of a communication from Commissioner Ross, calling attention to the delinquency.

The agreement between the city and company has the following to say regarding failure to meet payments of percentages to the city:

"25. And it is further covenanted and agreed by and between the parties to these present that the payment of the said gross percentages monthly, and mileages quarterly, and the fulfilment of the obligations of the said condition shall be a lien and charge on the said railways and the property used in working thereof.... and all after-acquired property is to be in the same manner charged for the fulfilment of the said obligations."

Superintendent Smith and his staff at the station were up to their necks in hard work all day long.

Orford vs. Orford—G. M. Jarvis (Rowell, Reid & Co.), for defendant, obtained order on consent amending order of 22nd June, by appointing commissioners to take evidence in England in place and stead of commission previously appointed, he having refused to act

Patterson vs. Shissel—W. H. Bouck (Waldron), obtained order for service of notice of writ of summons on defendant, residing in Texas. Appearance in 20 days.

At Trial.

(Before Kelly, J.)

Gosselin vs. Gagnier—D. O'Connell for plaintiff; A. C. McMaster for defendant. Action for rectification of agreement to purchase munitions plant at Peterborough for $200,000, for $25,000 damages for failure to deliver part of the machinery alleged to be covered by the agreement; for $1,800 received by defendant for shell scrap; for $2,400, proceeds of sale of scrap copper, for $619.50 received by defendant for 70 six-inch shells, and for $217.95 for water and power rates. The defendant counter-claimed for $3,299.02, amount alleged due for adjustments under the agreement to purchase.

Judgement: It cannot be successfully contended that plaintiff could have been misled into the belief that all the machinery except the special cordage machinery was included in his purchase. His claim for damages in respect of this part of the transaction, and for a rectification and reformation of the contract, fails. Plaintiff is entitled to $2,367.68 and interest from December 20, 1916, and defendant is entitled on his counterclaim to $1458.93 and interest from that date and to the interest, if any, allowed by the bank on the $166,900 from the date plaintiff took possession till December 29, 1916; their respective accounts to be set off, and the plaintiff to have judgment for the difference. Plaintiff is also entitled to the costs of the action, and defendant to the costs of the counterclaim, the one to be set off against the other, and the difference to be recoverable by the one entitled.
