LONDON WANTS THE BATTLE.

Will Corbett Agree to Fight at National Club?

Parson Davies and his show are now in Baltimore. The clerical looking manager commented freely upon Corbett's statement in regard to the probable delay in the meeting of Corbett and Jackson. He said the fight would, without a doubt, be arranged in London within the next 60 days, as he had a cablegram from Lord Lonsdale to the effect that the National Sporting Club of that city would furnish the necessary backing. When Corbett shall reach London it will not be a difficult matter, if he is willing to have the fight take place in England at an early date.

A London cable yesterday says that The Sportsman says it has all but been settled that the Jackson-Corbett match will be decided at the National Sporting Club.

The score was 300 to 132 and the averages ruled very low. Sutton's best run was 37 when he went out by nursing along the line. The table did not appear to suit McCaul.

The Rival Jockey Clubs.

NEW YORK, March 13.—A conference was held yesterday between the committee of the new jockey club and Coney Island Jockey Club. The meeting was held in secret. Those present refused to divulge anything about the business transacted. It was rumored that the Coney Island Jockey Club still holds out against surrendering absolutely to the new system. The Coney Island Club wants to retain control of the dates for racing that have already been fixed. Phil Dwyer took part in the conference. Another meeting will be held Wednesday.

FIGHTING FREE LUMBER.

Senator Hale Declares That It Will Ruin the Industries of Maine and Michigan.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The Senate Finance Committee again discussed the Tariff bill to-day. No agreement was made as to when the bill should be reported to the Senate, and the only absolute fact accomplished was the restoration of the duty on encaustic tiles from 25 per cent. ad valorem to 40 per cent.

Senator Hale was before the committee with an argument against putting lumber on the free list, and said such action would ruin the industry in his state. He insisted that the duty should be restored, or that, at least, some duty should be put on this article to prevent the industries of Maine and other lumber-raising states from being ruined by the free importation of lumber from Canada.

Sore at the Newspapers.

Mr. George Evans occupied the chair at the meeting of the Reform Association of Ward 5 last night. The Globe was condemned by some of the members as being too slow for the rising generation. The News came in for its share of censure, one of the members stating that it was always filled with trash.

Mr. Ackerman and wife being away at the time, nobody but his mother, an old lady of 70 years of age, and a small hired boy were home. The boy discovered the fire first, and running to the old lady's room brought her down to the verandah outside and ran for assistance. While away the unfortunate lady, being in night attire, went back into the house for her clothes and was burned to death before assistance arrived.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., March 13.—A meeting of the Liberals of Brockville riding was held here to-day to select a candidate for the Local Legislature to succeed Hon. C. F. Fraser. Hon. C. F. Fraser was again nominated, the whole assembly standing and cheering. The president stated that Mr. Fraser could under no circumstances again be their standard-bearer. A REVERSE FOR ROEBERY:

might be advantageously reconsidered. William Field and John Redmond, Parnellites, supported the motion.

Mr. Asquith, Home Secretary, said that the declarations made on the subject a year ago still expressed the views of the Government. He regretted to say that having regard to the peculiar atrocity and exceptional wickness of the crimes referred to, the Government could not accept the amendment.

After Timothy Harrington (Parnellite), T. M. Healy (anti-Parnellite) and Charles Conybeare (Radical) had spoken in support of the amendment the division was taken, and the amendment was rejected by a vote of 286 to 96.

Clancy Impugns the Irish Policy.

John J. Clancy, Parnellite, then moved an amendment impugning the Government for virtually continuing in Ireland the methods of the late Government. The amendment was seconded by Timothy Harrington.

A. J. Balfour, Conservative leader, interposed to ask the Government what its intentions were with respect to its defeat on Mr. Labouchere's motion.

Sir William Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer and Government leader, replied that the Governmeht intended to proceed with the current business.

John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland then replied to the charges made by Mr. Clancy.

Joseph Chamberlain, Liberal-Unionist leader, followed Mr. Morley and moved that the debate be adjourned. The motion was agreed to by Sir William Harcourt. Mr. Balfour expressed the hope that the Government would be prepared to state its policy to-morrow.

Petroleum as Fuel For Ships.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Thomas G. Bowles, Conservative, pointed out to the admiralty the fact that a Standard Oil Company steamer, from Baku, had made a voyage across the Atlantic with petroleum as her only fuel. Sir Ughtred J. Kay-Shuttleworth, Secretary to the Admiralty, said that the adaptation of oil as fuel for vessels was as yet an experiment, the result of which and the action taken to its adoption by foreign powers the Government would watch closely.

In reply to further questions as to the use of oil as fuel for steamships, Sir Ughtred said the admiralty had no knowledge of the statement that the steamer from Baku had been propelled by steam generated by fuel composed wholly of oil.

Answering other questions, he said that no new experiments were being made by the admiralty with a view of ascertaining the utility of oil as fuel for naval vessels.

SIGNIFICANCE OF THE DEFEAT.

Early Dissolution of the Government Now Regarded as Inevitable.

LONDON, March 14.—The Daily News in commenting on the division on Mr. Labouchere's amendment says that the result is significant of public opinion, that the adoption of the amendment will do the Government no harm, but will stimulate the agitation against the House of Lords.

The Morning Post says: An amendment to the address successfully carried has always been treated as fatal to the Government and resignation has immediately followed. Lord Rosebery and his colleagues can hardly fail to treat the matter seriously.

The Daily News says that the defeat of the Government on Mr. Labouchere's amendment is not likely to have any result, the adoption of the amendment not being a vote of want of confidence but merely a premature development of the Government's policy. The only practical outcome, The News adds, is that the amendment must come under the notice of the Queen.

The Standard says: "It would be easy to exaggerate the significance of the Government's defeat, but it would be sheer stupidity to maintain that the defeat has no significance.

The vote on Mr. Labouchere's amendment leaves the Cabinet's authority visibly impaired. It is not an unlucky accident but a dangerous symptom."

The Times says: The defeat of the Government means nothing less than the breakup of the combination which alone can keep the Government in office a single day. It shows that John Redmond's position is virtually accepted by both divisions of the Nationalists.

The revolt of the Radicals and the Irish has so shaken the whole position of the Government as to render an early dissolution of Parliament inevitable.

The morning papers generally comment upon the absurdity of Mr. Labouchere's amendment, which prays the Queen to do what no power can perform.

ROSEBERY'S FIRST SPEECH.

The Times Sees Trouble Ahead When Its Import is Understood.

LONDON, March 13.—The Times says: "Lord Rosebery's incidental admission in replying to Lord Salisbury that before Home Rule would be conceded, England, as the dominant member of the three Kingdoms, would have to be convinced of its justice, changed the whole aspect of affairs, and shattered the very basis of the new Prime Minister's policy.

"In the presence of this momentous declaration, all the rest was wasted verbiage. It must produce the gravest consequences as soon as its significance is perceived.

"There is a majority of over 70 against Home Rule among English Commoners, and when the Premier admits that a decisive result is impossible until an English electorate return a Home Rule majority, he virtually acquiesces in the arguments of the opponents of separation."

After summing up Lord Rosebery's declarations at the Liberal conference, The Times says that the general feeling was that his first appearance as Premier had been distinctly disappointing.

Liberal Journals Satisfied.

The Daily News (Lib.) expresses great satisfaction with the proceedings at the meeting of Liberal leaders.

"The result will be to put a new heart of hope into the Liberal party in and out of Parliament," it says.

The Daily Chronicle (Socialistic Liberal) says: "Lord Rosebery's appearance as leader was an unquestionable success. We rejoice to see that as a man has been lost so a man has been found."

The Standard (Conservative) says: "Contrary to general expectation, Lord Rosebery comes before the world without ambiguity or hesitation as a leader of extreme Radicalism. Roseberyism is but Gladstonianism. For the Unionists there can be no question of a truce or reconciliation with a Cabinet pledged to continue a fatal policy."

Ellis As a Whip Must Fail.

The appointment of Mr. Ellis to be chief Liberal whip excites only derision, Yates cables. Ellis has no influence. His selection is taken as an indication that Rosebery and Harcourt have no faith in the stability of the Ministry, and think it makes no difference who handles the awkward squads for the short time they can stay in office.

Lord Rosebery's statement that England must be convinced of the justice of Irish Home Rule, while causing great excitement in both sections of the Irish parliamentary party, has also greatly excited all sections of the Conservative party, and is hailed with delight by the Conservative papers. These seem to regard it as settled that Home Rule will be indefinitely shunted.

The statement of Lord Rosebery in the House of Lords yesterday which has produced such a sensation is in his exact words as follows:

"Lord Salisbury made one remark on the subject of Home Rule with which I confess myself in entire accord. He said that before Irish Home Rule could be conceded by the Imperial Parliament England, as the predominant member of the partnership of the three kingdoms, must be convinced of its justice. That may seem to be a considerable admission, because your lordships well know that the majority of English members elected in England proper are hostile to Home Rule."

The Parnellites openly denounced the attitude of Lord Rosebery, and there is much soreness among the members of the McCarthyite section of the Irish Parliamentary party.

The Globe this afternoon says it is not surprised to learn that there is a grievous searching of conscience among the McCarthyites, who will doubtless strain every nerve in an endeavor to provide an excuse. But there is not one among them, it says, who does not see that Lord Rosebery has practically overthrown Home Rule.

All the Conservative afternoon papers express similar views and view a general election as near.

The Independent says it is clear from Lord Rosebery's speech that Home Rule is indefinitely shelved and that Ireland has been invited by the Liberal Government to assent to "that act of treachery." The plain truth, it says, is that Ireland has been bought and sold.

Davitt Says Rosebery Justifies the Lords

In the lobby of the House of Commons Michael Davitt said to-day:

"It is useless to shut our eyes to the fact that Lord Rosebery's language creates virtually a new departure of the Liberal party on the question of Home Rule.

"The eagerness with which the enemy has seized Rosebery's words is sufficient reason why Home Rulers should distinguish between phrases that are coined in the heat of debate and the settled policy of the new Liberal Government.

"But the words spoken by the Premier yesterday furnish the clearest justification of the action of the House of Lords in rejecting Home Rule. The position of the Unionist Lords is English and they must be convinced of the justice of Home Rule before it will be granted to Ireland. That is Lord Rosebery's doctrine."

I.O.F. Concert at Peterboro.

PETERBORO, Ont., March 13.—The concert of the Independent Order of Foresters given here to-night was an immense success. The Opera House was crowded to the doors with the elite of the town. Standing room only was to be had by the time of opening the order. The addresses of Supreme Chief Ranger Oronhyatekha, briefly giving the benefit of membership in the I.O.F., and of H.C.R. McGillivray were listened to with great interest to the end. The entertainment was pronounced one of the best of the season.
