For a fuller elucidation of the topics touched on in this little manual, and others of a kindred nature, we refer the reader to "Jahn's Biblical Archæology"—"Horne's Introduction"—"Simpson's Key to the Bible"—and "The Tract Society's Bible Companion"—from the latter of which we have transcribed various interesting tables, and other particulars.

We conclude, by asking the reader seriously to reflect upon the uncertainty of all things below; the speedy passing away of all the means and opportunities of improvement; and the necessity there is for each one in his own sphere taking a part in the good work of helping forward the blessed consummation, when the knowledge of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the channel of the mighty deep; when no one shall need say to his brother, Know the Lord, for all shall know Him from the least unto the greatest.
