Allie Gates' Eppleworth Among the Also Rans on the Closing Day at Windsor—Detroit Derby to Be Decided To-day—Where the Thoroughbreds Go from Hamilton.

Cincinnati, June 7.—Jockey Clerico had a close call from being killed at Latonia to-day. He was on Tigirene in the fourth race. While at the post the filly broke away from the others, and after tearing down the starting machine, made a wild dash for the grand stand fence. Before Clerico could regain control she had jumped over the railing at the lower end of the stand and fell into a ditch, with the boy under her. Clerico escaped with a bruised back and Tigirene was uninjured. The judges ordered all bets off, and, after scratching Tigirene, 20 minutes was allowed for a new book. The track was muddy to-day. HIGHLY HONORED IN DEATH.

Funeral of Surgeon Lieut.-Col. Fred. W. Strange.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIAL.

Thousands of Citizens Paid Honor Where Honor Was Due.

All Classes Were Present at the Obsequies Yesterday Afternoon—Lying in State at the Armouries—Graphic Account of the Touching Scene—All Ranks of the Army Represented in the Imposing Parade—Tributes Paid to Dr. Strange's Many Sterling Qualities by Crowds in the Pitiless Rain.

As the rain poured down in torrents yesterday afternoon the remains of the late Surgeon Lieut.-Col. Frederick William Strange, who died so suddenly last Saturday, were laid away at rest in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Around the grave was a large assembly of the many friends of the deceased, who were braving the weather to pay their last tribute to the dead soldier and physician, who in life had enjoyed such an enviable popularity among his fellow-men.

As the concluding words of the burial service had been concluded by Rev. A. Williams, the bugles of the Queen's Own Rifles sounded the guard salute, which was followed by a volley over the grave from the 150 members of the Queen's Own Rifles who composed the firing party. Three times the bugles sounded and three volleys were fired. Then the earth was shovelled in upon the casket and the impressive ceremony was over. Then the representatives of the various city battalions formed up and to quick music by the bands marched back to the Armouries.

Impressive Scene.

The funeral was one of the most impressive held in Toronto for many years. Before the body was removed from the residence of deceased, 218 Simcoe-street, hundreds of citizens of all classes, who had known the Doctor professionally, or as an intimate friend, filed past the casket and took a last look.

At noon the remains were taken to the Armouries, where they were placed upon a large catafalque erected in the centre of the drill hall. The casket, which was of red cedar, beautifully lined with satin, faced the west and was surmounted by a splendid collection of ferns and palms, and draped with the Union Jack. The body was attired in full regimentals. On the breast was a beautiful calla lily and in the right hand a small bunch of white roses. The coffin plate bore the simple inscription:

SURGEON LIEUT.-COLONEL
FREDERICK WILLIAM STRANGE.
Born September 9, 1844.
Died June 5, 1897.

The Floral Tributes.

These were very numerous and were most handsome: they included splendid designs from the non-commissioned officers of Stanley Barracks, who sent a beautiful wreath of white roses and a cross of lilies. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brock, Miss Karfe A. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. David Dick, Mr. and Mrs. John Laxton, Mrs. John Drynan, from Viola, deceased's housekeeper, Dr. Charles and Mrs. Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Cawthra, Mrs. Jones, Miss Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Henderson, the Misses Ball, Miss Archer and Wallace Nesbitt. One beautiful wreath was ticketed as being "From a dear girl," and there were dozens of wreaths and lovely bouquets, the anonymous tribute of friends.

The Funeral Parade.

Soon after 2 o'clock members of the city regiments made their way through the drenching rain to the Armouries, where they were formed up for the funeral parade. Ninety men of the Royal Regiment of Canadian Infantry and the Royal Canadian Dragoons, with the permission of the Government at Ottawa, came over on the boat from Niagara, where they were in camp. They formed up at the east end of the Armouries, while the Queen's Own Rifles firing party formed up at the west end. While the soldiers were preparing for the long march through the mud thousands of citizens viewed the remains. All of the galleries in the Armouries were crowded with people, and along the Avenue outside citizens stood three deep in the pouring rain awaiting the departure of the funeral cortege.

Mounted on a flag-draped rostrum, close to the casket, Rev. A. Williams read the solemn burial service of the Church of England, while the men in the big assemblage bared their heads.

The Procession.

It was 4 o'clock when the sad procession left the Armouries. First came the brass and bugle bands of the Queen's Own Rifles, followed by the firing party of the Queen's Own, under the command of Major Murray, the other officers with the guard being Capt. Gunther, Adjt. Capt. Lloyd, Capt. Kirkpatrick, Lieut. Barker, Lieut. Bentham, Lieut. Cooper.

Following the firing party came a gun carriage and five horses manned by six men of the battery, Capt. Crean in command. On the gun carriage were the remains of deceased, his sword and chapeau bras lying on the casket, the whole being draped with the Union Jack.

Behind the gun carriage was the favorite horse of deceased, the animal having been brought over from Camp Niagara for the funeral. The horse was saddled and bridled, the dead soldier's boots and spurs being reversed in the stirrup irons.

Their Last Loving Service.

The pall-bearers, who were in full uniform and walked at the side of the gun carriage, were: Surgeon-Major Lessip, R. L.; Surgeon-Major Grasett, G.G.B.G.; Surgeon-Major Elliott, 9th Field Battery, Canadian Artillery; Lieut.-Col. Davidson, 48th Highlanders; Major Delamere, Q.O.R.; Major Lessard, R.R.C.I.; Major Bruce, Royal Grenadiers; Major Joseph Mead, Toronto Field Battery.

A carriage containing the floral tributes came next, then the chief mourners' carriage, followed by small detachments from the 48th Highlanders, Royal Grenadiers and Queen's Own Rifles, including many non-commissioned officers.

The R.R.C.I. marched next, and they were followed by the representatives of the G.G.B.G., the Royal Canadian Dragoons and a large number of uniformed officers, including Major Macdonald, 48th; Lieut. Bickford, T.F.B.; Capt. Myles, brigade major; Lieut.-Col. Dunn, G.G.B.G.; Capt. Montgomery, R.G.; Surgeon-Major King, R.G.; Lieut. Campbell, 48th; Capt. Heward, R.C.D.; Capt. Forrester, R. C.D.; Veterinary Surgeon Hall, R.C.D.; Major Cartwright, R.R.C.I.; Capt. Thacker, R.R.C.I.; Major Mutton, Q.O.R.; Major McGee, Q.O.R.; Capt. Mason, Q.O.R.; Lieut. Wyatt, Q.O.R.; Lieut. Greene, Q.O.R.; Surgeon Nattress, Q.O.R.; Rev. Mr. Baldwin, chaplain, R.G.; Capt. McKay, R.G.; Capt. Cameron, R.G.; Capt. Boyd, R.G.; Lieut. Stanley, R.G.; Lieut. Pringle, R.G.; Surgeon Dunn, 48th, and Lieut.-Col. Otter, D.O.C. Then followed a long string of probably 50 carriages.

Extended Route.

The cortege turned north from the Armouries and proceeded through mud several inches deep up University-street. At Elm-street it crossed to Queen's-avenue and went north through the Park to Avenue-road. Thence along Yorkville-avenue to Yonge-street, where the R.R.C.I. and the R.C.D. boarded special street cars and returned to catch their boat for Niagara. The rest of the cortege moved on to Mount Pleasant.

The "Dead March."

The procession was most solemn, the band playing its dirge-like slow march and the firing party carrying their arms reversed. When near the cemetery the band played the solemn music of the "Dead March in Saul."

At the gate the firing party formed up in two lines and the cortege passed between and into the cemetery, the firing party taking up the rear.

Ten minutes afterwards the last of the sad rites had been performed.

Some Who Were Present.

Among those who attended the obsequies were John Foy, Judge Falconbridge, Sir Casimir Gzowski, Judge Morson, Goldwin Smith, A Henderson, J T Jones, Dr Winnett, ex-Ald Bell, Fred Walker, N Clarke Wallace, M.P.; C Palmer, W H Pearson, B Ryan, Peter Ryan, Peter Small, Dr Herbert Adams, William Laxton, John Laxton, Dr Peters, George A Case, Julius Miles, Dr Phil Strathy, Dr Primrose, C J Townsend, W B Shortt, Dr Aikins, Warring Kennedy, Dr Young, A R Boswell, Judge McDougall, Hon S C Wood, Wallace Nesbitt, W H Beatty, Q.C., Rev Dr Barass, Major Manley, ex-Ald Millichamp, D Keith, William Laidlaw, Q.C., F D Barwick, John Dryman, D M Donogh, Hartley Dewart, Dr Murray, Dr Thorburn, J R Strathy, Dr A A Macdonald, H T Beck, Melfort Boulton, R D Fisher, B O'Keefe, Widmer Hawke, Lieut Burnham, Dr A H Wright, Hugh Ryan, Dr Reeve, Dr A Baines, Dr Sprague, William Bunting, D Coulson, J C Grace, Lieut Hamilton, 48th; Lieut Harbottle, 48th; Lieut Burnside, 48th; Capt Currie, 48th; E Martin, Q.C., Hamilton; T C Irving, Capt Postlethwaite, Hugh Rose, Col Dawson, Sir Frank Smith, H T Brock, L H Baldwin, Dr J F Ross, E S Cox, Dr Cameron, J F Scholes, O A Howland, M. NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE.

New York, June 7.—The Boston baseball nine is beginning to be looked upon by the other clubs of the National League with a great deal of fear. Both on their first Western trip and since they have returned to the east they have played in an admirable manner.

By good batting and excellent pitching they have pushed their way up from one of the lowest positions in the League race to third place, and they are likely at any time to step into second place, says The Journal this morning. The Bostons are a better team than they have been at any time since they won the championship some years ago. Said President Freedman of the New Yorks the other day:

"I am satisfied that the Boston team for the first time in many seasons has got back to the form that made it famous in 1891 and 1892. I believe the Bostons to be the real dark horses of the race, and I shall not be surprised at any time to hear that they are in the lead for the pennant. They not only have the pitchers, but the batters and fielders, and they will keep the Baltimores guessing when they get at them this year."

This view is entertained by most of the other baseball magnates who have given voice to their sentiments in the past three weeks. Perhaps much of it is due to the fact that the Boston pitching department has developed unexpected strength. Both Klobedanz and Lewis have shown that they are players of the necessary mettle and Nicholas' arm seems to be stronger this year than it has been since 1893.

As the season progresses, opinions naturally change more or less, and it is rather commonly agreed just now that the big fight looks to be between Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati and Cleveland. This, notwithstanding the fact that Cleveland is not very high in the race at present. The strength of the team must not be underrated. Although an off year may give the club no place in the race, the material is there, and since 1891 the team has at all times been one of the most dangerous in the twelve-club organization.

The attendance at the ball games this year has been better than anticipated. With the exception of Cleveland and St. Louis, every city in the National League has had good crowds. In Cleveland bad weather has kept the people away, and in St. Louis it has been a bad ball club.

Fire in the Early Hours.

A fire occurred early yesterday morning in the stable of John Purvis, feed merchant, 660 Queen-street east, and caused about $1200 damage, covered by insurance. The flames spread to Richard O'Keefe's house, 9 Munro-street, and caused $250 damage. One horse was burned to death and others were badly injured.

Succumbed to His Injuries.

John Milne, the young engineer who was so severely scalded on Sunday morning, died at 5 o'clock yesterday in the General Hospital.
