TORONTO, MAY 1, 1903

If the gentlemen who occupy the bench object to contempt of court, they should act in such a way as not to merit it.

✣ ✣

If the Telegram's serious editorials were not more serious than its humorous effusions are humorous, it would be the star comic paper.

✣ ✣

The World and Mail may be fined or imprisoned for "contempt of court," but if they should be, it is safe to say that they will have still more than they gave evidence of possessing. And small wonder.

✣ ✣

The next thing we may expect to hear is that a "bouncer" has been taken up for "contempt of court" for throwing some of their judgships out of a dive when the latter were out on one of their not unknown jags.

✣ ✣

Fire Chief Thompson may possibly think that we have forgotten his opposition to the Firemen's Union. We can assure our friends that we have not forgotten Mr. Thompson, but at present have things of more WEIGHT to deal with.

✣ ✣

The member of the City Council who votes in favor of encroaching on the Island Park reserve can rest assured that he will meet with opposition by organized labor and thousands of other fair-minded people. Preserve the park in its entirety.

✣ ✣

The bench has become the most pliant instrument in the hands of the corporations and the capitalists, and consequently the element most prejudiced to labor. It is time organized labor combined to upset the whole machinery of so-called justice.

✣ ✣

Judging by the amount of barking done against organized labor in some of the courts, one might suppose them to be bench shows. The only thing out of place is the puppies, who ought to be in cages instead of occupying exalted easy chairs and sending their superiors to the cages.

✣ ✣

It would be real funny if William Finlay Maclean, member of Parliament, should be sent down by their lordships, who appear to be doing something they were not appointed to do and leaving unattended the business that is theirs. W. F. might enquire as to what right these high-salaried hired men have to leave their own work and attend to other people's.

✣ ✣

It is really rich to have Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, president of the G. T. R., say, in speaking of the proposed Grand Trunk Pacific subsidy, that he hoped Sir Wilfrid would look at the matter in a "statesmanlike manner." If Sir Wilfrid should by any possibility do that same thing, Sir Charles will be the most crestfallen voyager on the whole bosom of the Atlantic on his voyage home.

✣ ✣

There is no doubt that the chief owner of the News understands "finance" from a personal standpoint, but if no one in the office knew more about turning out a readable paper than the writer of an article on national finance and currency in Tuesday's paper appears to several thousand readers of the News would have good cause to charge it with obtaining as many cents under false pretences.

✣ ✣

Hon. A. G. Blair, Minister of Railways, recently said that he would have no objections if the Intercolonial Railway were extended to the Pacific Coast. This being the case, why does he not introduce a bill to this effect in Parliament? Is it because he and the rest of the Government dare not move because of the heavy hand of Senator Cox and other manipulators of the Grand Trunk Pacific subsidy deal?

✣ ✣

Manufacturers and other capitalists—outside of land and interest sharks—may just as well understand now as later on that labor can live without capital, but that capital can produce nothing without labor. By opposing the reasonable demands of labor the capitalist is only hastening the downfall of his class. He may import foreigners if he likes just now, but organized labor will educate them in spite of all the capitalist can do. But some capitalists appear to have the characteristic stupidity attributed to the ostrich, that puts his head under the sand and, not seeing his pursuer, thinks he is not seen.

✣ ✣

At a conference of the Anglican Church on Tuesday a resolution was unanimously adopted "that this conference is of the opinion that some reform should be introduced into the Ontario Public School sytem introducing a practical solution of the difficulty of imparting religious instruction. The school system has enough clogs on the wheel already, and religionists will not be tolerated in adding to them. It would be much more in place for them to show some practical brotherhood and genuine Christianity as a result of their "work" where they have a field entirely to themselves to cultivate. Let them teach the wealthy despoilers of the poor to do as they would have others do unto them, and they will have their hands full for a while without meddling in public school matters.

✣ ✣

So unaccustomed have the big-wigs of the bench become to their supposed importance that even when off the bench they consider criticism of questions before them for consideration as "contempt of court." While it may be illegal to criticise courts or the questions before them, there is no power on earth to prevent us from showing contempt for the upstarts who possess such an overweening estimate of themselves.

TAKING VOTES OF THE PEOPLE.

Very little has been said or printed of late about the objects that the Toronto Federation for Majority Rule has been working for. The one first wanted is legislative permission for municipalities to take votes of the people. Action upon this matter is in abeyance until the trial of the Gamey charges is disposed of and the Legislature settles down to work again.

Meanwhile, the City Solicitor has put in shape the necessary amendment to the Municipal Act, and The Toiler has got a copy of the main portions. This amendment is in several sections, and appears to be full and complete. We quote the first section in full:

"323 A. 1.—When the Council of any municipality desire to submit any question to the electors, which question is not specifically authorized by law, such question may either be submitted to the ratepayers entitled to vote on money by-laws or to the municipal voters generally, as the Council may determine."

This is, of course, the important section, giving the power which a majority of the Toronto aldermen pledged themselves to ask the Legislature for. Then follow eight other sections (or subsections), making the required provisions as to matters of detail in taking the vote.

The secretary of the Toronto Federation for Majority Rule is keeping his eye on this matter, and he will call the committee together when the time for action arrives. A strong and united effort will then be made to back up this clause of the city's legislative demands.

A CAPITALISTIC WHINE.

In a recent issue the Canadian Manufacturer has an article urging the necessity for manufacturers to organize an association, or resuscitate one that was formed a year ago, for the purpose of "defending the rights of its members and protecting them against the encroachments of organized labor."

The Manufacturer says that no complaint was made when a deputation of farmers waited on the Ontario Government and asked for aid in bringing in 10,000 immigrants to help till the fields of the province, and it complains that when a deputation of manufacturers asked for the importation of a few thousand skilled mechanics, organized labor made a most determined opposition to the request. Continuing, it says that organized labor "contends that there is no scarcity of skilled labor, and that it would be unjust to that class now amongst us to bring in others, the tendency of which would be to glut the market and depress wages."

The immediately foregoing statement is a fair presentation of the case in brief for skilled labor now here, while in the case of farm labor there is an undoubted and chronic shortage, which is liable to continue for some time to come, unless immigration of farm labor should increase greatly over the average of recent years.

The Manufacturer wails that "whether this abundant supply of skilled labor exists or not, it is evident that the labor organizations are in a condition to control the market and force manufacturers to either accept their dictation or close their shops."

Unfortunately the statement of our contemporary is far from the truth. In the great majority of cases organized labor has been unable, so far, to obtain for its members anything like fair conditions; but it is working persistently and systematically in this direction now, and hopes soon to be in a position to secure at least living conditions for those who choose to enroll themselves under its banner.

Our contemporary's prattle about the "encroachments of organized labor" is just a little too thin to be wholesome. The trouble with the majority of the manufacturers is that they have taught themselves foolishly to believe that the only use of the workers is to make profit for their employers. The latter, as a result of their "capital"—real or suppositive—and the unorganized ignorance of their workmen, have been able till now to carry out their ideas to a very great extent. But the times are changed; the workers have learned the value of combination almost as well as the capitalists; they have realized that their proper condition is not that of cogs in a wheel or asses treading out the corn—they have come to realize their manhood, and, having realized it, are prepared not only to assert but obtain and maintain it.

The humblest honest, industrious man has greater rights than all the "capital" the world has ever seen or will see, and the sooner the manufacturers and other exploiters of labor awaken to a realization of the fact the better.

Man, made in the image of God, was not made to be a prey of his fellow, stronger or more cunning than himself, but to participate in the enjoyment of the product of his toil.

While the wage system lasts, capitalists may continue to be "captains of industry," and for directing affairs enjoy larger incomes than the mechanics or laborers, but the day when they can own their employees, body and soul, has gone, and they may as well recognize this now.

GIVE US STATUTORY LAWS—NOT PRECEDENTS.

There seems to be a growing tendency on the part of not a few judges and police magistrates to become disagreeable in order to appear important.

This is not wise in their own interests, for the people, their masters, will become tired of their insufferable arrogance some of these days and clean them out root and branch.

We have had a surfeit of "precedents," even when dealt with by the most gentlemanly members of the bench, and the impudence given by some manipulators of the musty opinions of their defunct predecessors has just about made the whole thing intolerable.

Surely we of the twentieth century know our needs and wants, our rights and wrongs, somewhat better than a succession of bewigged bodies or nobodies of the more or less distant past.

"Common law" has become a thing so fearfully and wonderfully made that no man on earth knows just what it is, and yet the gentlemen of the bench, tier above tier, with an air of wisdom, express their respective opinions, which in turn are most likely to be upset by the "higher court."

There is by far too much law and too little justice in our courts these days, and it is about time that our representatives in Parliament took steps to wipe out the whole fabric of precedents known as common law, and substitute it with statute laws.

Were this done, then he that ran might read and understand much better what the law really meant than the most self-important sophist that ever gave judgment. Then, if the law did not suit the majority of the people, they could change it and know where to change it. But with those worm-eaten impositions called "precedents" as an element in the case, if a bad one is disregarded by one wise acre on the bench it is almost as certain to be acted in accordance with by an equally wiseacre under similar conditions the next day, or perhaps in the next court room at the same time.

Judges and lawyers have taken themselves too seriously, and it is about time that Parliament woke up and cleared away the cobwebs of centuries which have too long obscured the face of Justice in our courts.

If this reads like contempt of court it is what it is intended to be, and of which there should and will be very much more, if things are not radically changed soon.

THE SCAB'S PRAYER.

To the Devil in Council in Hell.
(Contributed.)

Your Satanic Majesty, being one of your servants in trying to promote injustice on this earth, I desire to ask your assistance to aid in continuing injustice. I can see that you have more influence in the world with the classes, more especially with the so-called ministerial class, who, in the livery of heaven, serve you in preference to—I dare not write the name, but you know who I mean. I would ask you to mould me to a condition of thankfulness which will be pleasing to the capitalistic class; that so I may be led to accept with cheerfulness whatever conditions they may impose, however unjust the conditions may be, and however small a share of the commodities I produce. Even although my wife and children suffer from an insufficiency of food and raiment, if they should complain don't heed them, for they belong to me, and I belong to you, and you will get them at any rate. And do thou bring to naught the machinations of the labor unions, who have the audacity to try to get what is just, and have the effrontery to find fault with the conditions which the adorable capitalistic class choose to impose. Help me to aid in breaking all strikes, and confer thy favor on all lockouts and so that they may be successful, and that unjust conditions may continue to exist. And the workers and their wives and families may suffer for the necessaries of life, as is meet they should. Help the capitalistic class in all their devilment in thy service. Continue to aid the passage of any unjust laws against the masses. Be with all scabs, who alone are worthy of thy favor. I trust that all those who have served thee faithfully on earth may look with certainty on obtaining thy favor in hell. When it is your pleasure to take me to yourself, help me to play the flunkie to the capitalistic class in hell. Grant me the aid of all police magistrates and deputy chiefs of police, in making scab stoves, salamander carpets and red-hot shingles in hell. And now, Mr. Devil, if you have any of your subjects who complain of their jobs, I will cheerfully undertake to do the work myself. I am as ever, your devoted admirer, Scab Judas.
