DYING WHEN HE SIGNED IT

MRS. FAYERWEATHER'S NIECE TELLS A SENSATIONAL STORY.

She Was Present at the Death of the Millionaire Leather Merchant, and Says He Was at the Point of Death When He Made a Bequest of $3,000,000 to the Executors.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—When the Fayerweather will, with its bequests amounting to millions for colleges and its codicills giving absolutely nearly $3,000,000 to the executor, was made public, it was found that the last codicil, by which Henry B. Vaughan, the third executor, was also made a residuary legatee, was signed on the day of the testator's death. The signature of Daniel B. Fayerweather was wavering, and had evidently been written by a man who was very weak.

Until today the facts and incidents of this deathbed transaction had not been made public. Mr. Fayerweather died about 11 o'clock on the evening of Nov 15, 1890, and today Mrs. Fayerweather's niece, who witnessed the last codicil, testified in the surrogate's office that to the best of her belief the testator was not in a condition of mind or body to transact such business.

When Gen. Woodford again took the witness stand, the court room was crowded. Mr. Rollins and Gen. Woodford went to work in earnest, the former questioning closely and the latter smiling and protesting that he was anxious to be very frank and tell all that he knew about the execution of the codicils.

The examination was directed to the fourth codicil, which was signed by Mr. Fayerweather a few hours before his death. Gen. Woodford said that he had drawn it on the day that it was signed.

"Did you receive instructions from Mr. Fayerweather about this codicil?"

"Not directly," said Gen, Woodford, "but Mr. Vaughan did, and he brought Mr. Fayerweather's instructions to me."

Gen. Woodford added that he knew Mr. Vaughan to be a personal friend of Mr. Fayerweather, and he therefore accepted Mr. Vaughan's statement that he had authority to give him the testator's direction for this codicil. The substance of these instructions the witness declined to state.

Miss Elizabeth R. Joyce, of New Haven, who said she was 22 years old, was the most important witness that has so far been heard. She is a neice of Mrs. Fayerweather, and has frequently visited her. At the time of Mr. Fayerweather's death she was living at his house. Mr. Coudert obtained from her a detailed account of the execution of the fourth codcil. Miss Joyce said that it was signed the day of Mr. Fayerweather's death.

"Were you called into your uncle's room to sign it?" asked Mr. Coudert.

"Yes. He was at the time in bed. It was about 2 o'clock, and my aunt, Miss Amelia Joyce, told me that Mr. Vaughan was not in the room when it was signed. Mr. Fayerweather was propped in bed on pillows, and he was so weak that he could hardly speak. It was with difficulty that he could use his hand in writing. The other persons present were the witnesses, Mr. Browning and Mr. Grout."

"Was your uncle able, so far as you could judge, to converse with you?"

"No. I think not, except to answer in a very weak way the questions that were asked him, and most of them I think he answered by a nod."

Miss Joyce said that she was in the room only about five minutes, and that Mr. Grout had asked Mr. Fayerweather the questions necessary for the execution of the codibil.

"In your deposition you are reported as saying that Mr. Fayerweather was in sound mind, memory and understanding. Do you now think that he was?"

"I do not because he was dying."

"Why did you sign it?"

"I did it without thinking."

The examination was adjourned until next Wednesday.

GERMANY IN AFRICA.

CHANCELLOR VON CAPRIVI DEFENDS THE GOVERNMENT POLICY.

Tribute to Major Wissmann—Gendarmes Breaks Up a Republican Demonstration in Barcelona—Argentine Affairs Reviewed.

BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Baron von Caprivi, in the Reichstag today, in defending the African policy of the government, said that it had followed the lines laid down by Prince Bismarck, who once declared that Lord Salisbury's friendship was worth more than the entire coast north of Witu. Emin Pasha and Major Wissmann, he added, can remain in the service of Germany if they so desire. Continuing the chancellor said: "Our efforts are now directed toward developing what we possess. We are beginning from the coast and not from the lakes. In the north no difficulty is experienced in constructing caravan routes, linked by small stations. The country in the south is not entirely pacified and we do not know how long the work of pacifying it will last. It is necessary to reorganize the troops, and we shall appoint a man invested with all possible powers. Throughout East Africa an attempt is being made to divert trade from Zanzibar. Before that is accomplished several decades may elapse. We shall have trouble and toil for a long time to come, yet nothing need deter us from the work. We have selected Dar-es-Salaam as the centre of administration. Regarding the slave question, we must consider the feeling of the coast population. Baron Soden was the best man to send to East Africa. There was still ample scope for Major Wissmann and Emin Pasha as subordinate to Baron Soden."

Herr Richter approved the treaty with England, but he doubted the wisdom of the policy of limiting German developments to a strip along the coast. The Government, he said, ought to clear up the difference between Major Wissmann and Emin Pasha. It seemed advisable to him (Richter) to recall Major Wissmann for bringing unjustifiable charges against Emin Pasha.

The chancellor here declared that the dispute between Major Wissmann and Emin Pasha was not ripe for discussion. He regretted that Major Wissmann had been judged so unfavorably. The Germans in Africa owed their success to Major Wissmann above all.

The chancellor's speech was applauded even by the left. The passage crediting the Emperor with the initiative in the colonial policy and that recalling Prince Bismarck's estimate of the value of England's good will, contributed especially toward strengthening the position of the government and enabling it to meet the attacks of colonial enthusiasts.

PARIS, Feb. 5.—A despatch to the Chilian rising was due to violence on part of the Chilian regulars. The rising occured at Castro. The battle between the regulars and the insurgents lasted three hours. Seventeen of the former and 130 of the latter were killed. Profiting by the revolt, the hostile sections of the Chilian regulars attacked one another with knives to settle an old quarrel, and the insurgents around the the city joined in the fighting which lasted two days. The Lyceum and hospital suffered severely. The number of persons killed is not known exactly, but is large. Ancud is now quiet. The harbor is patrolled by volunteers who are partisans of the President, assisted by 2000 sailors. The revolt appears to be reduced to the principal harbors. Beaten on all sides, the insurgents intend to retreat to the mountains, assume the defensive and march toward Santiago, which is now denuded of troops.

BARCELONA, Feb. 5.—There was a demonstration here to-day, the main features of which were a parade and speeches in favor of the Republican leader, Don Nicolas Salmeron y Alfonse, Zorilla's co-worker in the propagation of Republican ideas. The crowds became somewhat excited, and the officer commanding a troop of mounted gendarmes who had been detailed to maintain order, and, in case of such an emergency arising, to suppress any revolutionary proceedings, ordered a charge. It was made at a gallop, the gendarmes firing pistols and carbines right and left. The result was that several persons were more or less dangerously wounded and a number of bullets were flattened around the window of the hotel from which Salmeron was speaking. The crowd dispersed without any open act of retaliation. It is understood that the Government will be asked to order an inquiry into the conduct of the officer.

TRAIN ROBBERS DEFEATED.

The Messenger Makes Valiant Resistance and is Slightly Wounded—The Robbers are Beaten off.

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE GAZETTE

DELANO, Cal., Feb. 7.—A passenger train was boarded by robbers at Alita last evening. The messenger immediately blew out his lights and instead of opening the door commenced firing at the robbers. Many shots were exchanged, the robbers being finally beaten off and abandoning their undertaking. The messenger received a slight wound, but the fireman was fatally shot.

SIR CHARLES' VIEWS.

THE HIGH COMMISSIONER OF CANADA IS INTERVIEWED THIS MORNING.

He Explains Why He Has Come to Canada Now—His Duty to His Country Compelled Him to Set Aside all Personal Considerations—Mr. C. H. McIntosh is Asked About Imperial Federation.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—Sir Charles Tupper left today for Kingston where he speaks tonight. In talking to the GAZETTE'S correspondent he said: I was most reluctant to return to this country to take sides in a party struggle. I have always held that the Canadian High Commissioner in England should not identify himself with the fortunes of any party, but should be truly representative of the whole people of Canada, and during my tenure of the office I have endeavored to act, not as the representative of a party government but as a representative of the Canadian people. True, an ambassador ever acts for the government of the day, but Lord Lyons was twelve years an Ambassador to France although the Government in England rose and fell during that period. Of course the representative of a country would feel it incumbent on him to resign his office in case the policy of the government for whom he acted was such as in his judgment was injurious to the interests of the people; otherwise, as in the case I have instanced he would be justified in continuing in office independent of political changes at home. These are the views I hold of the position of the Canadian High Commissioner in London and under ordinary circumstances and in the regular course of events I should never have consented to depart from this view of my duties, but the circumstances just now are entirely exceptional. In the first place we have arrived at a most important crisis in the history of Canada when our industries and the interests of the people of Canada at large are seriously menaced by the fiscal policy of the United States as embodied in that measure generally known as the McKinley bill, and it becomes necessary for the government and people of this country to put forth every effort to find new channels of trade and to devise means to meet the effects that this restrictive measure threatened to bring about. At such a time as this we find a man who assumes to speak for the Liberal party of Canada, I mean Mr. Wiman, publishing an article in the North American Review, in which he says the general elections cannot be at most, further than a year off, when the whole commercial situation in Canada would be overturned. I believe the United States notwithstanding the comitant of direct taxation and its even worse tendency to erect a barrier between Canada and the mother country must eventually and inevitably lead to the severance af this country from the crown. So I felt the solemn obligation imposed on me as upon every other man who labors for the well being of our land to lay aside all personal considerations, all personal scruples and to discharge my duties in the best interests of my country. This is why I respond to the invitation of Sir John Macdonald and why I am here.

The policy of the goverument as outlined in the despatch, of the Governor General to the Colonial Secretary in reference to trade relations commends itself to my judgment. It is a policy of broad and liberal reciprocal trade relations with the United States. Sir Charles says he will not reenter the cabinet.

"Did you observe much interest taken in imperial federation?" was asked of Mr. C. H. Mackintosh who arrived from England yesterday.

"No, I must say candidly I did not" was the ready reply.

"Canada's position at the present time I take it, would hardly justify a policy of this kind. A larger federation of the empire is a sentiment which it would be impossible to crystallize by legislation. To my mind, and I speak from observation gained through intercourse with many practical men in England and I am glad to say I met many, the more practicable scheme would be to advise as much as possible by frequent pressure upon the Imperial Government, as well as those of our fellow colonist, the federation of that splendid galaxy of Australian possessions as well as that of South Africa; the appointment by these for the very best men as Colonial ambassadors in London with seats in the local cabinets and there being called by the Imperial Government to the Privy Council of Great Britain, thus giving them an entre to meetings of the Imperial Privy Council whenever questions affecting their respective colonies come up for discussion.

HALIFAX MATTERS.

Crazed by Religion—Political.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

HALIFAX, Feb. 6.—A young and well educated French women Miss Pettipas residing at south end became insane last evening over religion. She had to be taken in charge by the police who removed her to the station. She will be sent to the insane asylum.

It is announced this morning that Dr. E. Farrell will be the Hon. A. G. Jones' colleague on the liberal ticket for this county.

THE BODY OF T. G. RALSTON, the well known boot and shoe dealer, who died so suddenly at Chatham, was brought down to this city last night. Mr. Ralston did not drop dead at Chatham Junction as was reported at first. He accepted an invitation to go for a sleigh drive with some friends on Wednesday, but after starting he complained of feeling unwell and at his own request was driven back to the Adams House in Chatham. His condition grew worse and a doctor was sent for in the evening but in spite of all medical assistance that could be rendered he died at 3 o'clock Thursday morning of congestion of the lungs. He was a member of Albion Lodge, A. F & F. M. The remains will probably be taken to Montreal for interment.

SIR DONALD SMITH

WILL BE AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE FOR MONTREAL WEST.

He is Willing for Friendly Commercial Relations With the United States—The Stock Market in England, &c.

SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.

MONTREAL, Feb. 7.—Sir Donald Smith announces that he comes again as an independent in Montreal, west. He desires the closest possible commercial relations with the United States, so long as they in no way discriminate against England. Sir Donald states that the money market in London is reviving from the panic caused by the Barings troubles but English capitalists are still chary about making investments. The Canadian Pacific Railway stock is fully established in the London market and it was recently the only stock that held its own during the panic.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—The Conservative demonstration here last night was one of the most successful ever held in this city. The building was packed to the doors, many being unable to get in. Speeches were delivered by Sir John Thompson, Hon. Messrs. Bowell, Foster and Carling, and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed.

A big row is expected at the meeting of the reform club tonight and it is expected that president B. J. Coghlan will be deposed. A few days ago in an interview he expressed opinion that Curran should not be opposed in Montreal centre, and this has aroused the ire of many members who have determined to make trouble at the meeting to be held this evening.

Hon. Mr. Mercier will arrive in the city tomorrow and will take charge of the Montreal district during the campaign, devoting all his energies against Hon. Mr. Chapleau.

A telegram from Paris announces the death there this morning of Judge Rainville, who has been ill for some time. He was born in 1839. He married the daughter of Chevalier Drolet. His body will be brought to Montreal for burial.

BADLY CUT.—About half-past six o'clock last evening, Henry Whalen, the coachman, fell on Charlotte street near Haley's saloon and cut his head very seriously. He was carried to Dr. H. G. Addy's office where it was found necessary to put in a number of stitches.

THE WOMAN who hauls in ship timber from near Loch Lomond still attracts considerable attention as she drives her horse up Main street and down to Sayre's ship-yard. It is said that she is a widow woman; and that her son cuts the timber which she is hauling into the ship-yard. She does her work in true lumberman fashion and philosophically ignores the wonder stricken public who gaze at her. This hard working and manly woman looks to be between 35 and 40 years of age. She is quite a dark brunnette and though not at all handsome she may be termed fairly good looking.

Funeral Of Thomas Chubb.

The funeral of Mr. Thomas Chubb who died in New York on the 3rd. inst, was held this afternoon at 2 30 o'clock, from the residence of Mr. G. J. Chubb No. 36 Queen square. The services were conducted by Rev. Canon Brigstocke. The funeral was largely attended. The pall-bearers were Messrs B. L. Peters, Gilbert Murdoch, Geo. Hutchinson, Jas. McAvity, T. Gray Merritt and R. W. Crookshanks. The body was interred in the Rural cemetery.

Youthful Liberals.

The Young Men's Liberal Club met last evening for organization. Geo. H. McAvity was chosen president; D. C. Robertson, John O'Keefe, A. P. Barnhill, vice presidents; C. E. MacMichael, treasurer; Clare Ferguson, secretary. A committee consisting of the president, G. Wetmore Merritt, E. H. McAlpine, John. L. Carleton and Dr. D. E. Berryman was elected as a delegation from the club to attend the nominating convention of the Liberal party to be held next Wednesday.

The meeting adjourned without doing anything.

C. P. R. Paying System.

The system of paying engineers on the C. P. R., New Brunswick division, has been changed, the schedule of rates on the other divisions of the C. P. R. coming into vogue on the N. B. division February 1st. On the old New Brunswick road, enginemen were paid by the month. The system now adopted is wages by mileage, and thus drivers can earn more or less per month according to the number of miles they run. The same schedule has been adopted with regard to the conductors on this road, and this, the superintendent, H. P. Timmerman, says to be thoroughly satisfactory to both the road and employes. Taking everything into consideration it probably means an increase in the wages of both drivers and condnctors.

HYGIENE AND DRESS REFORM.
