Romance of a Fast Clerk.

About a year ago, there appeared in this city one Clarion H. Kimball, formerly a lieutenant in the Eighteenth New Hampshire and afterwards a detective under General Baker at Washington. Kimball, a young man of twenty five, backed up by numerous letters of recommendation, easily secured a situation with Jameson, Maine st. His duties led him last summer to Jacksonville, Illinois, where he made the acquaintance of Lucy Chalice, a young lady attending school in that place. The attention of Lucy often called him out of his line of travel, his collections became meagre, his account overdrawn, and finally the last of last month he so overstayed his time as to awaken serious apprehensions in the minds of his employers, who examined his accounts and arrived at the conclusion that he was a defaulter in the sum of $2,000. They immediately placed the matter in the hands of detective Stone, informing him that the last account they had of Kimball was at Spring field, Ill. The case was placed in the hands of Mr. Stone on the morning of the 9th of the present month, and the same evening Mr. S. started for Springfield. Arriving there the next morning he ascertained that the day before Kimball had married Lucy Chalice, the school girl of Jacksonville, at her parents' residence in Springfield, and that he and his bride had immediately taken passage, via the Great Western Railroad, for Boston; but inquiries at the railroad office disclosed the fact that their baggage had only been checked to Albany.

At this time Mr. Stone had no knowledge of Kimball's former residence, nor that he hailed from New Hampshire. Fearing that he intended to leave the case at Albany the detective telegraphed to that point for his arrest and followed fast after. Arriving at Albany he ascertained that his telegram had arrived too late for service, and he therefore passed on to Boston, where he speedily ascertained that the loving pair had not made "the hub" their objective point. The trail had been overrun and must be recovered. So the detective commenced his westward journey, keeping a sharp lookout for indications of his game. At Worcester, Massachusetts, he found that a quite answering to his description had taken the cars for Concord, New Hampshire, a few days before.—Officer Stone followed up this clew; and, arriving at Concord, he placed himself in communication with the authorities, and found that Kimball was well known there and that his father lived only ten miles away in the country. Satisfied that the game was up to earth, Mr. Stone immediately proceeded to his father's house, where, surrounded by friends, radiant with joy, proud in the love of his youthful bride, he found Kimball. A few brief words informed the wayward clerk of his fate. A tearful farewell followed, and with a bride left behind and a calaboose opening before, Kimball commenced a second western tour, a return bridal trip—and this morning was safely lodged in the calaboose to await the action of the law.—[St. Louis Dispatch.

THE ADVANTAGES OF HAVING A WOMAN WITH YOU WHEN TRAVELLING.—"That seat is occupied," said a bright-eyed girl at the hotel table to a man who was about to take it. "Occupied!" he growled, "where's his baggage?" With a saucy look upward at him, "I'm his baggage," she said. And this brings me to say that if you are going a long journey in regions where it is "first come first served," the most desirable place is not a hat box or a blanket, but a woman. If you have none, then marry one, for you are not thoroughly equipped for the road till you do. When dinner is ready you follow in her blessed wake, and are snugly seated beside her, and exactly opposite the platter of chickens, before the hirsute crowd, womanless as Adam was till he fell into a deep sleep, are let in at all. There you are, and there they are. You twain-one, with the two best chairs in the house, served and seated beside her, and exactly opposite the platter of chickens, before the hirsute crowd, womanless as Adam was till he fell into a deep sleep, are let in at all. There you are, and there they are. You twain-one, with the two best chairs in the house, served and DARING SAFE ROBBERY AT QUEBEC.—The Chronicle says that sometime during Sunday night or Monday morning, the office of Mr. W. Wuthall, proprietor of the Steam Flour Mills, St. Paul street, was entered by burglars. They appear to have got into the building by a back window, one frame of which was broken, thus enabling them to draw the bolt that fastened it. Arrived in the office the rogues proceeded to pick the lock of the safe, which, with bits of a woman's dress, they had wrapped in the form of a safe-key, that they succeeded in doing. This kind of safe was supposed to be secure against any thievish effort, the lock aperture being small—only admitting a key as thick as an English sixpence—as to render its forcing by gunpowder almost impossible. Nevertheless, the light fingered gentry found the means of opening the lock, and were reckless enough to leave behind the articles used in the operation. Ladies' hoops have been much condemned, hitherto, for real or imaginary evil effects, but they are now chargeable with a more serious kind of mischief than has been remarked in the past. The burglars obtained $300 in the safe, which they took away, leaving the papers and books behind, and let themselves out of the building by unbolting a back-door that opens on the wharf. It is surprising that within two hundred yards of the police station, in St Paul street. No trace of the perpetrators has been discovered.

We are glad to learn from the Peterborough Review, that Mr. D. Sutherland, of that town, who was formerly, we believe, a resident of South America, has made a successful shipment of flour to Brazil. The consignee, writing to the Brazilian Times, says he "has just received a consignment of Canadian flour from Peterborough, to Upper Canada, the same being forwarded merely as an experiment, in order to test the quality of the article in our market. This flour was even duly inspected, and is rated in grade equal to the best brands that come from Philadelphia, and will yield the shipper a handsome profit. Mr. Sutherland deserves great credit for the public spirit and commercial enterprise which prompted him to make this experiment, and we hope his success will induce others to follow so good an example.

A melancholy case of accidental shooting occured last week in Tuckersmith, Judson Rye, a night watchman employed in Mr. Shickluna's shipyard was outside of his to-do, cleaning the revolver which he carries while on duty at night, but failing to extract one of the charges he turned to enter the house. At that moment the weapon discharged itself and the ball penetrated the right lung of the man's wife, coming death in less than two hours afterwards.

The Lord have mercy on us, poor widows!" said the old lady, stepping quietly to her looking-glass to put on her new cap.

The following is from the Bermuda Royal Gazette:—It will be remembered that some years ago, when George Remington, Esq., was Civil Engineer to the Dockyard establishment, Ireland Island, he proposed a system of submarine telegraphs to unite the Islands of Bermuda, West India Island and Trinidad. We have been informed that the gentleman has not lost sight of his great prospect, but that the eminent electrician Sir Charles Bunston, Member of Parliament, and Mr. Latimer Clark have united with Mr. Remington to endeavour to carry out the enterprise."

A dispatch to the Chicago Times states that one of the prominent features of Morrill's new tariff bill is to reduce the duty on wool import to compete with American fleece, to six cents per pound. The House bill, now pending in the Senate, makes it ten cents per pound (ten cents ad valorem.) This year Kansas Ayres produced one hundred million pounds more than was raised in the States. If the New York importers succeed in substituting their bill for the House tariff bill passed last July, wool growing as a business in the west will be ended, and western sheep will inevitably go to the butcher.

Fifty Lashes.—The dreadful punishment of flogging was inflicted on Private Higgins of the 100th regiment, at Ottawa, on Thursday, for theft. He had been thrice convicted for similar offences since 1858, and pardoned. For this, the fourth offence, he received fifty lashes, from cat o'-nine-tails, laid on by two prisoners and is now in hospital.
