VARICOCELE, FALSE RUPTURE

MEN OF ALL AGES SUFFER from this terrible affliction in some way. There is no other affliction to which man is heir that so completely unfits him for the duties or pleasures of life as Varicocele. The universal tendency of these conditions is to grow worse and more complicated—leading to impotency, nervous debility, wasting, stricture, lumbago, sexual exhaustion, etc. Do you intend to allow this insidious affliction to sap away your vitality? It is doing so now and if not checked will result in the above conditions. No matter how serious your case may be, time afflicted, or the failure you may have experienced in trying to be cured by medicine—free trials, or Electric belts—my Biotone system will cure you; the wormy veins return to their normal condition and hence the sexual organs receive proper nourishment, the parts become vitalized and manly powers return. No temporary benefit, but a PERMANENT one. NO OPERATION necessary. No detention from business. MONTAGNINI'S PAPERS

Some Startling Statements That May Cause Trouble if Published.

Paris, March 31.—The publication in the Figaro, of a synopsis of the documents that come into the possession of the French Government at the time Mgr. Montagnini, the secretary of the papal nunciature, here, was expelled from France, has elicited an indignant letter of denial and protest from Premier Clemenceau.

The Figaro concluded its presentation of the documents by an analysis of those papers that relate especially to internal church questions. These show conclusively, the paper believes, that the Pope was always scrupulously careful to discountenance any attempt to attack republican institutions.

A number of entries of conversations in Mgr. Montagnini's famous notebook show that certain diplomatists maintained sympathetic, and, in some cases, too confiding relations with Mgr. Montagnini. They all deplored and even condemned the religious policy of France.

The ambassador of a great power expressed the opinion that the Pope would make a mistake if he placed too much reliance upon manifestations of sympathy from Emperor William. The ambassador supported his opinion by telling the Monsignor that a certain great Protestant power had once wanted to send a Catholic as ambassador to Germany, but Emperor William had opposed his nomination. The name of the diplomat in question appeared in the notebook in full, and this leads the Figaro to hope that the Government may yet refrain from publishing the papers.

PAIN IS A PUNISHMENT.—Pain is a protest of nature against neglect of the bodily health, against carelessness regarding the physical condition. It steals in at the first opportunity, and takes up its abode in a man, and it is sometimes difficult to eject it. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will drive it out in short order. Pain cannot stay where it is used, but immediately flees away.

THEY ARE A POWERFUL NERVINE.—Dyspepsia causes derangement of the nervous system, and nervous debility once engendered is difficult to deal with. There are many testimonials as to the efficacy of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills in treating this disorder, showing that they never fail to produce good results. By giving proper tone to the digestive organs, they restore equilibrium to the nerve centers.

MONTREAL RIVER NOW THE MAGNET

Great Rush of Treasure Hunters Begins.

FORMATION SIMILAR TO COBALT

Theological Students Make Lucky Find Enabling Them to Pay for Education.

Cobalt, March 31.—Spring has come so early and with such a burst that there are many of the weather-wise who predict a cold spell soon. Be that as it may, everything is swimming. The streets are lined with miniature watercourses, and many of the houses on low-lying land are almost surrounded by turgid lakes. To put it mildly, Cobalt is not looking at its best Meanwhile the last flight of Cobalters for the Montreal River before the quick thaw rots the ice has set in. The Montreal River, though covered with slush a foot deep, will certainly be available as a route for another week or ten days, but Spring Lake, about 32 miles from Cobalt and 18 from Elk Lake, the goal of the present stampede is reported to be treacherous.

Ten dollars a day and up is being paid for rigs, and in some cases liveries will not cross Spring Lake unless the price of the team is deposited in the bank before starting. There are reported to be three thousand men living in tents either in the vicinity of Elk Lake or Maple Mountain. And the great majority of these will remain out in the bush, for the month after the snow has disappeared in the bush, and while the decaying ice on the Montreal River prevents navigation, will give them a clear field to prospect before the great rush. Ten miles square around Silver Elk and Hubert Lakes are staked, that is to say, almost the entire township of James and four miles west into the Temagami reserve. From there a thin string of claims on the west side of the Montreal joins up the Elk Lake district with the Maple Mountain district. The formation of staked claims is not unlike a gigantic dumbbell, with the two ends representing Elk Lake and Maple Mountain claims; for down at Maple Mountain, from twenty to thirty miles northwest of Latchford, there is another thick cluster of located properties.

There can be little doubt now about the great importance of this new field Authentic discoveries of bloom and silver are reported from a dozen different points. Bernard Micmac, the Indian near whose shack a postoffice is shortly to be established, can show it in the vein. So can Tommy Saville, a well-known guide to pleasure and hunting parties going up the Montreal River. Leaf silver has been taken out of his vein, and it is reported to be as rich as any surface showings in Cobalt Downey struck it on the surface and now has a shaft down fifty feet on his vein. And there are a host of others who have found good cobalt bloom. A very interesting question is, how far does this mineral formation extend? It is said by those who have prospected away to the northwest up the Montreal River that the formation changes to gray granite in place of the bright, clear diabase of Elk Lake and the vicinity. Nothing is certain about the Cobalt district, but if this is found to be correct the line of extension is not likely to be farther northwest up the Montreal. Will it be pushed west into the Temagami reserve? That depends a great deal on whether the Government survey it, for no one but an old prospector will venture into the unblazed bush, and at least 75 per cent of the men now up the Montreal are new hands at the fascinating game.

A typical story is told of three divinity students who went prospecting to finish their course at college. They were utterly ignorant of geology, or staking, but managed to locate a claim each, for which they will probably get $1,000.

The rich find on the Temiskaming still continues to furnish sensational nuggets. Not since the early days of Nipissing have Cobalt mines furnished such pure silver in huge quantities. Yesterday from the new vein a nugget weighing 720 pounds, and requiring six men to handle it, was taken out and brought to Cobalt. It will certainly assay 14,000 ounces to the ton, if not more, as it is almost half silver. Two carloads of ore have been shipped from the mine, one first and one second grade.

Shipments were very low last week. Not an ounce left the Nipissing. One explanation of this is that ore will be held back until after the annual meeting, another that the report of the finding of a rare metal does not altogether lack foundation. They are shipping again this week, however. The Buffalo and O'Brien were the only two other shippers. The big sensation in camp has undoubtedly been the find on the Temiskaming and Hudson's Bay. The solid silver was revealed right on the surface of the rock. So rich it is that it can be whittled with a knife. The vein was found while trenching on an 80-acre patch of Temiskaming and Hudson's Bay property a hundred feet north of the Trethewey boundary. It runs east and west, and has been uncovered for about 300 feet. It will now not be a matter of much time to open a cut on the vein and take down a large body of ore. The Temiskaming and Hudson's Bay are very large property holders in Coleman, west and northwest of the town, and much development in the form of trenching has been done during the winter. Nearly all their property is well located, and further rich finds may be expected any time. On news of the find becoming known on Saturday and Sunday there was a big rush to buy up stock at the lower prices.

Larder Lake is momentarily eclipsed by Montreal River. But the fact that the Timminses of La Rose and a Hamilton firm are now shipping power machinery to the north is a pretty reliable indication that there will be genuine development work done up there in the summer The mines will be low-grade propositions, and only to be made pay by the outlay of considerable capital by moneyed concerns. It has been discovered that the reefs, which are sometimes 200 feet wide and a considerable distance in length, all through contain a little gold. Taking the rock right through, it is estimated that on one property of twelve lots the average yield per ton crushed will be $5. It is also computed that the cost of working and management per ton would be about $2 50, thus leaving an average profit of $2 50 per ton, considerably more than many well-known gold mines in the United States are making today. But to be worked to profit the reefs must be operated on a large scale.—Globe correspondence.

QUEEN BRIGHTENS THE HOSPITAL

Tiny Sufferers in London Hospital Receive a Visit From Royalty.

London, March 31.—The visit to the London Hospital recently of the Queen and her sister, the Dowager-Empress of Russia—which, by the way, was of a quite unexpected character, consequent upon a change in the royal programme—afforded delight alike to the representatives of the highest courts of Europe, says the Daily Chronicle, and to the humble inmates of the noble institution of which Queen Alexandra is patroness.

Their majesties' visit to the "Queen" ward—a memorial to the late Queen Victoria, and utilized solely for children—was marked by several incidents of a touching character. The august visitors, who were in the brightest spirits, chatted kindly with each little occupant of the cots which were arranged neatly round the walls, and the merry light in the eyes of the juveniles reflected the great joy they felt at the generous attention which was bestowed upon them.

All of them were greatly cheered by words of sympathy and encouragement, by gentle caresses, and by kindly greetings. In response they chatted away with all the ardor of childish glee and irresponsibility.

The ward contained but one cradle, in which reclined the tiny form of a four-weeks infant. This little mite had already gone through two operations, but had made such a rapid recovery that she will shortly be discharged. Much of the royal sympathy was given here.

Elsewhere a gay little spirit from Norfolk, who no doubt felt he had a special claim for a mark of royal favor, opened his large eyes in wonderment, for he had never seen the Queen.

Nearby a pretty little girl of five summers waited with much expectancy for her share of attention. Her chief concern had been that after her operation she would not "come round" in time to see "the Tween." Her childish delight almost overcame her as she found that this pleasure was not to be denied, and with great glee she handed a bunch of violets to "the Tween," who gracefully accepted her little offering.

Of a contrary disposition was a lad of Bethnal Green. Freddy Daniels, with a precocious turn for business, espying a large cluster of fresh violets on her majesty's breast, immediately asked for and obtained them. A favorite nurse kissed him tenderly, and by a magical influence the royal gift became hers.

The infants prattled to the Queen, and insisted on showing her majesty their wonderful toys, in which the greatest interest was taken. Rabbits and wee piggies, dolls, and what-not were examined by the royal visitors with a pleasure which gave the little ones unbounded joy. To show their delight at the favors they received, the children enthusiastically threw kisses in the orthodox juvenile style, to which the Queen and her sister responded in the same manner.

HAD A WHACK HIMSELF

Nationalist Leader Hears Epithets Applied to Him by Former Rival.

London, March 31.—Mr. Tim Healy saw himself as Mr. William O'Brien at one time saw him during the hearing of the action at Limerick, in which Mr. O'Brien sought to recover £5,000 from the Freeman's Journal for alleged libel.

Mr. Healy was Mr. O'Brien's counsel in the case, and, to the great amusement of the court, he had to listen to the many remarkable epithets applied to him at various times by his present client.

They were contained in Mr. O'Brien's writings, and were brought out in cross-examination by Mr. Ronan. Among the descriptions Mr. O'Brien applied to Mr. Tim Healey were the following:

"A secret stabber, displaying a ferocity worthy of the lower beasts of prey."

"Hideous duplicity and falsehood."

"Incorrigible disturber and crank."

"Demon incarnate of dissension."

Mr. O'Brien further admitted that he had stigmatized Mr. Healy as having had a "crooked, treacherous and rowdy career," and of having "told lies by the yard and by the mile."

"It was part of the wretched controversial methods of the days of the split," Mr. O'Brien explained.

Mr. Healy listened to the cross-examination with obvious enjoyment. "Sure," he exclaimed, "I was having a whack at him meself."

MYSTIC TEMPLE OF GOLD A FAILURE

La Mott's Spirits Go on Strike and He Also "Fades" With the Cash.

San Francisco, March 31. — A mystic temple built by spirit hands was one of the marvels promised by Frank La Mott, the medium of Stockton, to the members of his circle. The site of this wonderful structure was to be in the San Joaquin Valley, just east of Stockton. It was a spirit voice speaking in a dark seance presided over by La Mott that gave the promise of the shrine that was to be dedicated to the living by the dead. La Mott strengthened the faith of the depositors in the "treasury of heaven" by promising that they would be large shareholders in the temple of the spirits.

Between two suns, so the voices in the dark declared, this temple was to rear its proud eminence. It was to be no cheap and small affair, but something more beautiful than the world had yet known. The temple of Solomon would be a dog kennel in comparison to the structure that would be erected by unseen hands due east of Stockton.

And the faith of the deluded dupes in this promise was cemented by their faith in La Mott, based on past wonderful performances, as they believed. The investors in the "treasury of heaven" believed that they received interest on all their deposit from a spirit paying teller, so why should they hesitate in accepting La Mott's promise of a golden temple just east of Stockton?

With profound and childish faith the victims of La Mott's fancies arose early many and many a morning, that they might be the first to behold the shining structure as the rising sun gilded its towers and domes.

Those who contributed to the heavenly banking establishment which La Mott's spirit guides conjured up at his command never doubted that the temple would be built. But the landscape east of Stockton is still bare of any glistening palace. La Mott's victims being doomed to the despair of barren vigils. The closing of the doors of the heavenly treasury, which was accompanied by the disappearance of La Mott, was simultaneous with the shattering of the plans and specifications of the dream castle. The architect has sought other fields, and perhaps even now is engaging the shades to help him fashion another wonderful edifice to feed the fancies of the credulous.

MUST HARRIMAN ANSWER?

Washington, March 31.—The inter-state commerce commission will listen to arguments by counsel for E. H. Harriman tomorrow on the question whether or not the commission shall appeal to the courts to compel Mr. Harriman to answear certain questions affecting his management and control of the Pacific railroads, the Chicago and Alton and the Oregon Short Line. BRITAIN'S OUTLAY FOR HER WARSHIPS

£78,000,000 Spent in the Last Ten Years for New Fighting Machines.

London, March 31.—The total first cost of the ships which compose the British navy as it stands today amounts to the substantial total of £133,556,679.

This fact comes to light in the annual dockyard expense accounts, published recently. A birdseye view of the navy is included in the accounts, the cost of each ship and the date of its completion being given in detail. A summary of the total may be set out as follows:

Combatant ships—
Armored	£65,464,676
Protected	19,295,768
Unprotected	14,343,334
Nearly obsolete—
Armored	6,889,918
Protected	3,673,527
Unprotected	116,470
Non-combatant ships	6,148,937
Obsolete vessels and for sale.	4,669,927
Training and guardships	12,954,122

Of the total sum of just over £99,000,000 which has been spent on those ships included in the combatant section, more than £78,000,000 has been spent within the past ten years, and of this amount over £54,000,000 has been spent within the past five years, so that it becomes evident that the large majority of our ships are comparatively modern.

Each year has seen an addition to the power of the ships built and also to their cost. This is illustrated in an interesting way by the figures given in the return.

For many years the average cost price of an armored battleship was between £700,000 and £800,000. Nowadays it is seldom that a battleship costs less than a million. Take, for instance, the twelve armored vessels completed in the year 1905-6. The average price for the twelve was over £1,200,000. On the other hand, the seventeen armored vessels completed in 1903-4 cost an average of only £830,000 each. The tree completed in 1899-1900 cost an average of only £780,000 each.
