ARMSTRONG MISTAKEN AS TO ENUMERATORS

The Matter of Appointments in the Hands of Mr. Fisher's Department Only.

Ottawa, May 15.—In the Commons this afternoon, Mr. Armstrong read a statement from a Conservative paper to the effect that Mr. George M. Reid, of London, was revising the superintendents' nominations for census enumerators.

Mr. Staples read an alleged letter from Mr. H. E. Perry, Liberal organizer in Manitoba, advising one of the census enumerators of his recommendation for the appointment.

The reply of Hon. Mr. Fisher was that Mr. Perry had nothing to do with the taking of the census in Manitoba, nor was he in any way authorized by the minister to write the letter referred to. Equally emphatic was the minister's statement that Mr. Reid had no control over the enumerators in London.

Mr. Taylor said it had been reported to him that copies of the speeches of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Hon. Mr. Fielding had been sent to certain postmasters for distribution. He did not think that "was a proper kind of literature for distribution to the Canadian people."

The Minister of Finance said he would call the attention of the Postmaster-General to the complaint for investigation.

CALLED TO ELORA.

Elora, May 15.—At a largely attended meeting of Knox Church congregation, held this evening, a unanimous call was extended to Rev. W. M. Hay, of Ottawa, to the pastorship of their church, which was made vacant six weeks ago by Rev. W. R. McIntosh's removal to King Street Presbyterian Church, London.

ST. THOMAS BELLBOY GIVEN THREE YEARS

Goes to Kingston Penitentiary for Theft of Diamond Rings.

St. Thomas, Ont., May 15. — Leonard Otterson, the bellboy, who confessed to stealing three diamond rings, valued at $700, from Mrs. J. H. Cooper, of Chicago, while she was a guest at the Grand Central Hotel, was today sentenced by Magistrate Glenn to three years in Kingston penitentiary. Inability to resist temptation when he saw the rings on the washstand in Mrs. Cooper's room was the only explanation Otterson gave the magistrate.

DOROTHY DREW ENGAGED

Gladstone's Favorite Grandchild to Wed Father's Aide-de-Camp.

[Canadian Press.

London, May 16.—The engagement of Miss Dorothy Drew, the favorite grandchild and constant companion of Gladstone, to Lieut. Parish, aide-de-camp of Viscount Gladstone, is reported as a romance of her visit to South Africa.

Miss Dorothy, as a child, asserted that Windsor Castle was "nearly as nice" as Hawarden Castle. When her grandfather, with whom she was photographed hundreds of times, chided her for getting up late, she quoted the verse from the Psalms: "It is vain for you to rise early."

BIG POWER PLANT.

Christiania, Norway, May 16. — An enormous electric power station at Vemark, in the Province of Telemarken, was started today, the Rjukanfos, or Foamingfall, supplying the power for the machinery. This fall, which is one of the magnificent sights of Norway, has been changed, and now is a straight drop of about 1,400 feet.

CITY HALL SALE

business there for many years, and built their building at a large expense, expecting that the market and other places would remain there. If this deal goes through they will be most seriously affected. So far the bank has only spent a comparatively small sum of money, and their loss will be very little."

Want the Old Site.

Mr. A. H. M. Graydon said those who some time ago petitioned to have the courthouse site decided upon for the new hall, thought the present site the very best one, and favored spending some money on the old building, for the remodelling of it and the fitting up of more offices.

Mr. T. J. Murphy read a copy of the offer the bank had made, and of the council's resolution of Jan. 31, accepting it. He said his clients had already spent nearly $2,000 in having their engineers here looking over the building and in having him look up the titles. He had gone back through all the documents for 60 years and found the title perfect.

"I will tell you what you may not know, and that is, that the site is made up of five or six pieces of land, one of them a strip not more than four feet wide," he declared. Believing, he said, that the council were businessmen, he had advised his clients to go ahead with the deal.

At this point Ald. Cooper moved, seconded by Ald. Mitchell, that the transaction stand over.

To Sell or Not to Sell.

Ald. Cooper said that on the night the vote was taken everyone thought that just the city hall property was meant. The council, he thought, still had the power to sell or not to sell. If the bank directors were willing to guarantee not to build outside of the building he would be willing to let them have it.

Mr. T. H. Smallman addressed the council on behalf of Smallman & Ingram's. He declared that the council had not bound itself to the sale, and cited the case of the street railway regarding the Rectory street line to show that it was not too late to turn back. The citizens would be saved much money and the business interests of a firm, which had done much for the city, would not suffer if the sale were not gone on with, he declared. The present building could be made into one sufficient for all the needs of the city for years to come by the spending of a few thousand dollars.

Bank Discourteous.

"There is not much to be expected," he said, "from any appeal on our part to the bank. They were so discourteous at the last that they did not reply to our letter. You might just as well deal with the matter now and settle it."

"Would you undertake to protect us in case of litigation?" asked Ald. Eckert.

"I think you have full protection," said Mr. Smallman.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Saunders, that the acceptance of the bank's offer be withdrawn and that all communications which have passed in the case be given to the city solicitor. Latter this motion was withdrawn.

Aldermen Ashplant, Bennett, Donnelly, Morgan and Wilson expressed themselves as being ready to stand by the bargain that they had made.

Ald. Eckert said he felt that the council ought to take care and not get into hot water, and he thought the city solicitor should be consulted.

Ald. Stevenson said that the city hall site will confidently live case in value.

Mayor Speaks.

Mayor Beatty asked Ald. Eckert to take the chair. "I want to impress upon you," said the mayor, "the necessity of obtaining the city solicitor's advice. It might be very dangerous to take the advice Mr. Smallman has given, because the cases he has cited are different altogether. Those of which he has spoken come under the municipal act. We are working under a special act. I may tell you that today, when I saw the letter of the Royal Bank, it looked to me as though they intended to hold us to our bargain. I called up the city solicitor, and he said he could not give an opinion at once. It is abundantly plain that we have no right to use the $25,000 the people voted for repairs to this building. What are we going to do, then? Go to the people again? I think we should certainly leave this matter until the next meeting and the city solicitor will give us his idea by that time. You all know that I am in favor of selling the hall. I have done what I could to give the people an opportunity to be progressive and get a new city hall. It is up to the council to settle it now. I have done my duty."

Ald. Stevenson's motion was withdrawn, and, on a vote being taken, it stood 10 to 2 to lay the matter over.

SPLENDID MEMORIAL

thrones and persons. The nation rejoices with me that he is here today to share in the unveiling of this memorial."

A Brilliant Spectacle.

As a spectacle the unveiling was brilliant. King George and Emperor William were dressed in the uniform of British field marshals, wearing the blue sash of the Order of the Garter across their shoulders. The Queen, empress and the princesses appeared in bright costumes, with large picture hats. The Prince of Wales wore the uniform of a naval cadet, and the younger princes were in white naval suits. Home Secretary Churchill attended the King.

King George delivered a speech in eulogy of Victoria, describing the monument as "the tribute of races and legions more various in character and circumstances than have ever been combined before upon a common empire."

No one was allowed to approach within many yards of the memorial. Court officials and others invited to be present were accommodated in the gardens surrounding the statue, while the general public were strictly excluded from the immediate vicinity. Nevertheless great crowds stood for hours at the approach to the plaza, watching the coming and going of those who took part in the ceremony, most of whom were in uniform.

There were great gatherings of troops and marines who, after the ceremony, marched past the King and Emperor, the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards playing the National Anthem, while the artillery fired the royal salute.

At the conclusion of the religious service Sir Thomas Brock, who made the marble statue of Queen Victoria, was knighted by the King, who, in the ancient way, tapped the kneeling recipient on the head with his sword. The Emperor placed an immense wreath at the foot of the statue, an example which was followed by an officer of the German Dragoon Regiment of which Victoria was an honorary colonel.

SPECIAL CUSTOM OFFICER WORKING

Dominion Govt. Will Stop the Smuggling of Goods Into Canada.

DETROIT'S CINCH SPOILED

People Who Go From London to Shop in the American City Will Have to Pay a Heavy Duty on Goods Brought In.

Windsor, May 15.—There are hundreds of very indignant women in Windsor today. It's a safe bet that many of them are still sizzling yet, and their opinion of customs officers in general, and one from Ottawa in particular, wouldn't look well in print. And it's all because of the most unexpected arrival in Windsor of a special customs officer, who decided to make a wholesale raid on Windsor women's handbags.

The fun started Saturday afternoon when Special Inspector Harris took command at the ferry dock. As all Windsorites know, the traffic on Saturdays between Detroit and Windsor is enormous. Evidently Mr. Harris knew this fact, too. He also concluded that if the passenger traffic was large between countries at this point, smuggling would likely be rampant. So Mr. Harris decided to find out for himself. And he did. Ask any of your lady friends if you doubt it. They know—to their sorrow.

As each ferryboat dumped its huge crowd at the ferry dock Saturday afternoon, the people were made to pass in bunches of twos and threes through the gate, which has been blocked with a stick so that it could be opened only a short distance. Here the customs officers were thicker than bees around honey. They were industrious, too, as bees, but not so sweet as honey to the ladies. Every woman carrying a parcel or handbag, irrespective of its size, was directed to the interior of the customs office, where more customs men were laying in wait for the victims.

Hauls Were Many.

The common, every-day feminine handbag, as a medium for smuggling, offers unlimited opportunities. This was soon discovered Saturday afternoon when the women were asked to open the bags. Such bulky merchandise as shoes were found in these handbags. Everything else under the sun was brought to light, and the women were made to pay duty on every little article. It was sure enough a land-office business, and the Government made a rich haul. The officers did not play any favorites. Many of Windsor's most prominent women were "caught with the goods," and they had to pay the duty.

"Better Than Vaudeville Show."

"Stick around, you'll see some fun. This is better than a vaudeville show," said one of the inspectors, just as a ferryboat was about to tie up to the dock, loaded down with passengers. And it certainly was fun.

A look of anguish passed over the faces of many of the women as they were told to step inside the office. They realized that escape was impossible. Others took it good-naturedly, and treated it as a great joke. Many, however, considered it an outrage, and expressed their feelings in no uncertain terms. "Government orders, madam," would reply the custom officer, as he deftly extracted a bit of smuggled goods from the depths of a handbag and made the necessary entry in the big book on the counter.

Merchants Complain.

Merchants along the line as far as London have been complaining to the Government that they are not getting a square deal. For instance, every Thursday a special $1 rate is given by Wabash and Grand Trunk railways from Chatham to Detroit and return. Hundreds of Chathamites avail themselves every Thursday of running down to "where life is worth living," getting a taste of city life on the instalment plan, loading up with American goods, and making a get-away to that dear Maple City. London people also enjoy a ridiculously low return rate from that city to Detroit, and they, too, spend good Canadian cash in Detroit. Then, of course, there are the Windsor ladies. They don't smuggle. Oh, mercy no; they just bring it across—that's all.

"It was as great a surprise to me as it was to the ladies," said Customs Collector Dr. Smith this morning, in speaking about the general "hold-up" at the ferry dock on Saturday. "Special Officer Harris of the chief inspector's staff, Toronto, was dispatched to take charge of the port on Saturday morning, but how long he is to remain I cannot say."

Eastern People Kicking.

On being asked by a Record representative the cause for the sudden campaign at the dock on Saturday, Dr. Smith replied that it was being done by the department after having received various complaints and memorials from boards of trade and businessmen in eastern cities complaining of laxity at the local dock regarding customs inspection.

"The opinion of those complaining to the head of the department is that we are not severe enough at the Windsor port, and as a result their business is affected somewhat," said Dr. Smith. "The complaints and communications received by the department from private citizens and others implicate several prominent Windsor families who are charged with bringing foreign goods into the country without paying the duty. The result will be that many homes in the city will be visited during the next few days and an account will have to be given. This work is to be taken up through the special branch of the department."

Saturday's raid on the women's pocket books, satchels, etc., brought to light many articles which had been concealed about their persons. Even the men were found attempting to evade customs inspection. One man was caught with an old pair of trousers tucked away under his vest. He said the new pair he was wearing cost him $1 40. He paid $2 duty.

Warns the Women.

Customs Collector Smith warns the women who are contemplating smuggling their summer millinery, suits, shoes, etc., over from Detroit, that it will be a most venturesome problem and advises them either to purchase on this side of the river or to pay the duty. "Apparently the ladies of this section have been buying wholesale over the river and have also considerably assisted their eastern friends by getting goods across the border without paying the duty," said Collector Smith. "Not being satisfied with their success, they have been spreading the news through other eastern cities until it has come to the attention of eastern businessmen."

CORRESPONDENCE

A Layman's Views.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

Last Sunday a sermon was preached in a London East church on the subject, "Why are men ashamed of religion?" Among the reasons of this, no doubt, one of the strongest is the failure of professing Christians to act according to the precepts of their Divine Founder. To take one of the most important, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them," how has it been set at nought in a recent "church squabble," in a church that shall not be named here. Perhaps the leaders of the vestry thought they had provocation enough to dispense them from so exalted a principle in their treatment of the offending rector, but could they not have kept their actions within the less arduous form of the same great principle, given by even heathen moralists, "What thou wouldst not have done to thyself, do not to another?" Are they not all men to whom, in the poet's words,

"Good name. . . is the particular jewel of their souls?"

Now, is not his good name equally important to their rector? Nay, is it not even more important, considering the sacred interests with which, even if he had complied with the request to resign, he is intrusted, and the mission which, while life and strength last, he is bound to fulfill? Had he resigned his post here, would he not have found it hard to find another suitable parish, and were one found, would he not be followed, nay, preceded by the remark, "This is the man whose former parishioners asked him to resign; there must be something bad about him?" What chance would he have to serve the church or its Lord efficiently in his new field? For this should be kept in view, however, the selfishness of men who are prominent in "church squabbles" makes them ignore it, that the cleric in question will have, to take another parish, he cannot be "shelved," and the cause of religion there is just as important as in his present sphere.

"But," it will be said, "the relations of the rector and the parishioners have grown intolerable to them." Even so, this is no excuse for damaging him in the most important of all his possessions. Before publishing to the world through the press, what they knew well must do an irreparable injury to their "beloved pastor," why did they not as believers in episcopacy, invoke the aid and fatherly action of their bishop. Had he been asked to intervene, not as a judge, but as the "Father in God" of both parties, no doubt, and no doubt would have found a satisfactory solution. This is no theoretical or visionary opinion, as the following narrative will show: Some years ago in the parish in which the present writer then lived, some members of the church felt aggrieved at the conduct of their rector, and at a vestry meeting a resolution was submitted calling for his immediate resignation. But the majority, including some who did not consider that he was wholly blameless, vetoed the resolution, adopting instead the wise course, look! "That the wardens and lay delegate be a deputation to lay before the bishop the state of affairs in this parish." Now mark what followed. The deputation on waiting on the bishop were informed that the rector had resigned and been appointed to another parish. So those who wished to get rid of the rector had their wish, while he went to his new field of duty without the handicap of having been virtually ejected from his former post. Even if some scandalmongers or foolish busybody, of whom there are too many among even those who have been taught the duty of "keeping their tongues from evil speaking," not to mention "lying and slandering," its almost invariable attendant, raised some such story, the fact was on record that the resolution calling for resignation had been rejected. Hoping that the present difficulty may be solved without further injury to any one, or what is more important, to the cause of religion, and that such action as is charchmanlike, and what is more, Christlike, may be taken in future difficulties, I am, sir, yours respectfully,

A LAYMAN.

Superannuate the Rector.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

The Church of St. John the Evangelist is still in a state of disruption. It is admitted on all sides that the present rector by his arbitrary conduct, want of sympathy with his congregation, and seventeenth century ideas, will never be able to reunite the people who worshiped in the church. Although there is no canon to bear him out, he holds that, being once appointed as rector, he is there for life. He also contends that the vestry had power to increase his salary, but no power to reduce it except by his consent. To neither of these ridiculous claims do the people agree, but met them first, by a demand for his resignation, signed by 70 men of the congregation, and as he refused to comply, a motion was made at the adjourned vestry, and carried by an overwhelming majority, to reduce his salary after July 1 from $125 to $1 a month.

Still he refuses to give up, claiming that five clergymen said he was right, and the people are in the wrong, and one of the canons of the church penalizes the congregation for daring to refuse to accept such a ruling. The Synod of Huron meets next month. Would it not be good policy for that body to superannuate the man who is such a stickler for "rights"? The case, happily for the church, and the reputation of its clergy, is an uncommon one, and we trust the bishop, acting under section 5 of Canon 22, will see a way to settle this unfortunate business. Canon 22 says: "A clergyman of fifteen years' standing may be superannuated on an allowance of $300 a year, with $12 per annum for each additional year he has served." As the person in question has been about 25 years in orders in the diocese, he would receive over $400 a year, which would be a wise outlay, even if it had to be taken from the mission fund, which, of course, it would not. With a new rector, a man who realizes he is living in the twentieth century, the Church of St. John the Evangelist should be one of the most prosperous in the city. Now to many it is a cause for shame.

GOVERNOR RECALLED.

Constantinople, May 16. — The governor of Jerusalem has ben recalled on account of the trouble which has arisen over the operations of an English expedition accused of having excavated beneath the Mosque of Omar. This expedition was under the leadership of Capt. Montague Parker, a brother of the Earl of Morley, and after it had become known that the mosque had been profaned and relics removed by the archaeologists, the governor was mobbed in the streets for having permitted the foreigners to carry on their work.

ST. KITTS MEN FACE SERIOUS CHARGE

Said To Have Abducted and Attacked Thirteen-Year-Old Girl.

[Canadian Press.]

St. Catharines, May 16.—Four young men of this city, James Everett, William Cox, Frank Tracey and James Bowen, were placed on trial this morning before County Judge Carman without jury in connection with the recent Western Hill outrage. It is alleged that these four young men one evening in April, carried Eloise Canute, a 13-year-old girl, against her will into a vacant building, where they assaulted her. The girl is not mentally right. Everett is claimed by the police to have been the prime mover in the outrage, and is charged with seduction, while the other three face a charge of abduction. Everett is also charged with the latter offence. All four pleaded not guilty, and have lawyers defending them, and will put up a vigorous defence. The fact that since the first charges were laid the discovery has been made from records in the city clerk's office that the girl is only 13, when it was supposed at first she was 15, will likely result in a more serious charge being laid against all four accused.

ALFANO IN A RAGE

Head of the Camorra Gang Prodded Into Furious Outburst.

[Canadian Press.]

Viterbo, Italy, May 16.—Enrico Alfano, reputed to be the dominant spirit of the Neapolitan Camorra, was again confronted by Gennaro Abbatemaggio, the informer, when the trial of the Camorrists for the murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and the latter's wife, the "Beautiful Sorrentino," was resumed today. He opened in a pathetic vein, which later, under the prodding of his accuser, gave way to angry explosions.

"Today," he began "is the anniversary of the death of my beloved brother Ciro, who died in prison. I must make a superhuman effort to overcome the emotion that possesses me. Still in my ears is the echo of the last despairing lamentations of my brother. I deny the assertions of this man, Abbatemaggio."

Attacking the testimony of the informer, Alfano said in substance: "According to his own statements Abbatemaggio had knowledge of the alleged plan of murder and so ought to have prevented the crime had he seen fit to do so. His description of the division of the reward for the murders among the assassins by Giovanni Rapi is ridiculous as the scene of the supposed division is a spot much frequented. It is more absurd to say that 400 francs ($80) was given to Abbatemaggio, who took no part in the affair, and only 150 francs to the real murderers."

Abbatemaggio interrupted here with the remark: "Alfano intended to buy my silence."

Alfano, suddenly infuriated, shouted: "If I had been in a position to fear your revelations, I would have given you 400 stabs instead of 400 francs."

FIREPROOF COMPANY AFIRE.

New York, May 16. — Fire started this morning in the factory of the Reliance Fireproof Door Company, at West and Milton streets, Greenpoint, and destroyed not only that building, but the factories of the Geo. MILLHANDS STRIKE.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 16. — Seven hundred millhands are on strike htre because of the refusal of the mill owners to grant an average increase of 5 cents an hour and a reduction of working hours from ten to nine. The millhands have the support of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, being affiliated with that organization. Should the strike be prolonged it will affect the work of carpenters, masons and other outside trades.

BRITAIN'S BIGGEST LANDLORDS.

There are some big landlords in Britain. The Duke of Sutherland, for instance, owns 1,358,000 acres, or about 2,122 square miles. This holding is larger by far than most of the German grand duchies and is at least thirty times the size of the principality of Liechtenstein. It is said of his grace that he can travel right across Scotland from sea to sea without ever leaving his own land. Then there is the Duke of Buccleuch, with 460,000 acres; the Marquis of Brendalbane, with 300,000; the Duke of Richmond, with 268,000; the Duke of Fife, with 256,000; the Duke of Atholl, with 202,000; and somewhere about a score whose holdings range between 100,000 and 200,000 acres. There are twenty men, including those mentioned above, who hold between them more than five million acres, equivalent to a block of territory 200 miles long by nearly 40 wide, or about one-eleventh of the total land area of the United Kingdom.
