Edward Kilgore, [illegible]
G. Gilmore, [illegible]
G. Mahony, [illegible]
Mr. J. Bachelor, [illegible]
Abraham Kalmer, [illegible]
Lord Milton, Wagon and Carriage Shop, and Blacksmith Shop, [illegible]
Howard Garrigo, [illegible]
Alexander Stewart, Proprietor, Rent, and Shoe Shop, [illegible]
G. H. Barle, [illegible]
Wm. A. Johnston, [illegible]
Alexander Mahood, [illegible]
Mr. Mahood, [illegible]
Albert Harris, [illegible]
George Addison, [illegible]
Adam Ramsay, [illegible]
Hamilton Bodth, [illegible]

Village of St. Andrews.
John Stewart, [illegible]
Isaac Flowright, [illegible]
John Watt, [illegible]
R. Stewart, [illegible]
A. Main, [illegible]
Thos. Griffith, Hotel Keeper.
F. Wm. Griffith, [illegible]
Robert Rowntree, [illegible]

Village of Pine Grove.
Vaughan, [illegible]
L. D. Stevenson, M.D., [illegible]
T. Jones, [illegible]
Alex. J. Gough, P.M., Grocery, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Patent Medicines, dyestuffs, [illegible]

Here the house of the Pine Grove sundries are almost wholly obliterated by age. Pat was doing one intensely cold morning this winter in Mrs. Chaffee's fine and comfortable new hotel in Woodbridge, a day or two after having been at Pine Grove, and had made the acquaintance of Pat had casually met with a few times before in other places entered the bar-room, and, as he asked Pat for paper and pencil, Pat gave him his note-book for him to write in, being careful to show him where to write in it; but the gentleman had never, when Pat was not looking, [illegible]