CAMP SUSSEX ENDS WITH SHAM BATTLE

Fortnight's Drill Was Notable for Good Order and Little Rowdyism—No Liquor on the Grounds Except That Brought by Visitors—Militia Began to Strike Tents Last Night.

Sussex, July 5—Camp Sussex of 1912 is no more. The big militia grounds, for the last two weeks, the home of more than 3,000 men, are rapidly being deserted by their soldier inhabitants and by noon of tomorrow there will be scarcely 200 men of all that vast host remaining to remind one that the place has sheltered New Brunswick's army in what was probably the largest camp yet conducted in this province.

It was a record camp in more ways than one. While the attendance was remarkably large, there was little disorder, the men conducting themselves in an orderly and commendable manner; there was little liquor in evidence, practically none except what was brought to the grounds by visitors; the drilling was well up to the standard, several new features being introduced; sanitary measures were most strictly enforced; the number of patients treated in the hospital was particularly small; and there were other features connected with the camp which will serve to impress it upon those who attended as being one of the most successful for years.

That Colonel W. H. Humphrey, camp commandant, was well pleased with the camp of 1912 is quite apparent from the following valedictory issued in today's general orders:

"The camp commandant desires to express his appreciation of the manner in which all duties have been performed during the annual training this year, the excellent spirit which has prevailed, and the exemplary behavior of the troops both in and out of camp.

"This reflects credit on all concerned, and he begs to convey to the officers of the staff, the brigade commander and officers commanding all units, his hearty thanks for the zeal which has been displayed in carrying out the orders and instructions which have been promulgated in connection with the same."

Several special trains have been ordered for the military siding tonight and tomorrow morning and the troops will be carried from the grounds to their homes in all parts of the province, satisfied with their training, the work accomplished, and the better in many ways for having participated in the duties of soldier life under canvas. As they came in, so they are going out. In twos and threes, in squads, companies and regiments, they are being borne from the scene of activities, but it is noticeable that there is for the most part a vast difference in their demeanor, in their marching, and in their obedience of commands. The effects of the constant drilling, the utilizing of the hours of morning and afternoon to make them efficient in this respect, have been productive of promising results and they carry themselves with an improved military bearing, in marked contrast to the slouchy, lackadaisical air worn by the majority on entering camp.

Field Day.

The annual field day was held today and it was a significant event with many. The majority of the troops had never engaged in "battle" before and the smell of powder brought out their mettle, seeming to cheer them to the fray and make them anxious for the encounter with the opposing forces, whom they were determined to rout at all costs. This is the event which tells as to whether or not the work of the last fortnight has been successful, to a great extent, for the powers of endurance, alertness and diligence are considerably taxed while the din of battle is in progress or in its preliminary stages.

The scheme of the fight today was for the 12th infantry brigade, commanded by Lieut.-Col. J. D. B. F. McKenzie, and the 28th N. B. Dragoons, both comprising the defending force known as the "Blues," to rout from their stronghold at Ryan's Hill, a few miles from camp, a hostile advance guard of an enemy's army approaching on the camp by the rear of the hill. The 8th Princess Louise Hussars, known as the "Reds," in charge of Lieut.-Col. J. A. McDougall, valiantly stood their ground on the mountain, as the advance party, even though they were greatly outnumbered by the defenders of the encampment.

Scouts brought in the news that the "Blue" forces were advancing to storm the hill, and signallers heralded their approach to the invaders by keeping a line of communications clear in vantage spots commanding a sequestered view of their coming, so that the enemy was prepared to meet the onslaught, terrific though it might be, when the redcoats charged the hill. The infantry made a frontal attack while the dragoons charged on the right and left flanks.

Whether they captured it from the foe or not is a question of argument. The attacking party claim the honors of victory, but no decision was given up to late this afternoon by the umpires, the chief of whom was Colonel Humphrey. He was assisted by Major Doull, Lieut.-Colonel Foster, Capt. T. M. McAvity, Capt. Gilman, Colonel Dwell and others.

No Casualties.

The battle, while it raged fiercely for a time and presented evidence that it was being sharply and hotly waged, was fought without bloodshed. There were no casualties, except that one of the redcoats in being too spry in the charge up the hill, injured his ankle. Ambulance wagons hovered about the scene, ready to pick up the wounded and the Red Cross boys were prepared at any moment to render first aid to the injured, but in this their knowledge was not brought into play. The blank shells, though they made a "big noise" did little damage, and soon the command "cease fire" rang through the smoky air, and the battle was declared at an end.

Back to camp marched the troops, as eager to satisfy the cravings of the inner man as they were to engage in the encounter. Together friend and foe they proceeded to their lines and ate what would probably be their last meal on the camping grounds for this season, before beginning the work of striking tents and entraining for home.

Much of these duties were performed early in the afternoon in the heat of a boiling sun and before dark threatening clouds gathered about 4 o'clock and foreshadowed rain, many of the canvas dwelling houses had been securely packed in their stout coverings and deposited in the store house of the ordnance corps.

For those remaining in camp tonight it is expected to be rather exciting. It generally is during the last night of camp, and it is not at all unusual for slumbering soldiers to be awakened rudely from their dreams by finding themselves completely enveloped in the folds of the tent which has been struck upon them by "jocose" companions. However, the task of getting it ready is so much easier for it is already down and after drying can be stored. There is "little rest for the weary" and few can repose peacefully in slumber, being perturbed by the thoughts that there will be "something moving" while they do so.

Major A. J. Markham, 8th Hussars, was field officer today, with Capt. F. S. L. Ford, orderly medical officer.

Two Soldiers Taken to Halifax Hospital.

Two of the men in camp, both from St. John, Troopers Fred Rodgers and Winn O'Brien, of the 28th N. B. Dragoons, will not come home with the rest of the boys. They were taken this afternoon to the militia hospital at Halifax for treatment. Young Rodgers was badly kicked in the face by a horse and came nearly losing an eye as the result of the accident, while O'Brien has blood poisoning in his hand. He had a few blisters on the member and picked them with his jackknife and before long he was being attended to in the hospital.

Major C. W. Wetmore, 74th regiment, presided this afternoon over a court of inquiry into the alleged burning of a bed rug or blanket owned by Capt. Cameron, 73rd regiment. The other members of the court were Capt. C. H. Taylor, 67th regiment, and Capt. W. J. Osborne, 71st regiment. The proceedings were submitted to the headquarters office.

Badges were awarded several of the men for their shooting, the best shots in each of the regiments being as follows:

8th Hussars—Sergt. G. Murray, "B" squad, score 63.

28th Dragoons—S. Q. M. S. R. Pearson, "B" squad, score 67.

67th Regiment—Sergt. R. L. Boyer, "B" company, score 69.

71st Regiment—Corp. J. C. Knollin, "E" company, score 65.

73rd Regiment—Sergt. C. Archer, "F" company, score 68.

74th Regiment—Corp. R. Amos, "E" company, score 65.

In connection with the presentation of these badges it might be said that the work on the range this year was very satisfactory. Some good shooting was done and there were not many failures. Instruction was given from the first day of camp to the close and each company on the roll marched to the "butts" on the day appointed for it to shoot. "Sub-target" guns had been placed in position about the grounds and these were useful aids in practice for the men to endeavor to gain their efficiency pay, which is done only through being able to make the required number of points in the shooting.

Some of the St. John boys returned to their homes this evening. In the case of the service corps it is necessary that a fairly large rear party should be left to attend to the final details, but some of them left camp tonight. Others will entrain tomorrow, as will the 28th Dragoons, some of whom will be in St. John next week to aid in patrolling the streets during the festivities then to take place. Practically all of the troops will have entrained by noon tomorrow and the camp of 1912 will have passed into history.

Kingdon, bishop of this diocese. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Convers at 5.30, and on account of the recent death of the bride's mother, was very quiet, only the immediate relatives being present. Mr. and Mrs. Sturdee left by the early train for a few days' honeymoon trip, and on their return will reside in Mecklenburg street.

EXCURSION TO MONCTON JULY 12

All Arrangements for Glorious Event Have Been Completed

TRAINS TO TAKE MANY FROM HERE

Several Bands Engaged for the Celebration in Moncton—Probably More Than 2,000 Orangemen Will Be in Line—Some of the Details.

A general meeting of the July 12 committee was held at the hall, Germain street, on Saturday evening, when the arrangements were completed for the grand celebration of the glorious twelfth, at Moncton, on Friday next. This excursion is the only one planned to leave the city during old home week and should be well patronized, as it will give visitors to the city an opportunity to get out and see this fine section of the province as well as the far-famed Petitcodiac bore, at a very moderate cost.

It has been arranged that the first special will leave the Union depot at 7.45 a.m., instead of 7.30, as previously announced. This train will make all the intermediate stops along the line, while the second train, which will leave the depot at 8.30, will only make the necessary stops for water, etc., unless the first one is unable to accommodate all those at the various stations, in which case they will be picked up by the later train.

The Carleton Orangemen, accompanied by the St. John Pipe Band, will cross in the 7.40 trip of the ferry, joining the city brethren who will assemble at Germain street at 7.30 a.m., where the parade will leave for the depot at 7.45 in the following order: The Union Jack, supported by a bodyguard of Scarlet Knights, in uniform; the Artillery band, Royal Black Knights of Ireland, Royal Scarlet Knights, Havelock L. O. L. No. 27, Johnston L. O. L. No. 24, True Blue L. O. L. No. 11, with Pipe band; Gideon L. O. L. No. 7, York L. O. L. No. 3, Eldon L. O. L. No. 2, Verner L. O. L. No. 1, St. John district officers, St. John county officers.

Each of the foregoing bodies will be headed by their respective banners and clothed in appropriate regalia, much of which has never been worn in public before.

Members of the L. O. L. Nos. 60 and 70, of Fairville, will proceed to Simond street, where they will join the North End brethren. Under the lead of the Carleton Cornet band they will march direct to the depot. Refreshment bars will be attached to each of the above trains, and will be in charge of a strong committee of the county lodge.

A special train has also been arranged for over the St. Martins and Upham railways, leaving St. Martins in time to connect at Hampton with the first train at 8.50, returning again on arrival of train at night. Return tickets on the St. Martins Railway will be issued from all points at one first class fare. This special should also prove a great convenience to many people in that section of the country who may wish to spend the day in the city instead of going to Moncton, and who would thus have the full day to shop and visit their friends, or to see the automobile parade, and return on the suburban at night.

On arrival at Moncton each train will be met by a brass band and the visitors conducted to the exhibition grounds which have been procured for the day and where meals will be served at moderate cost. At 2 p.m. a mammoth parade will be formed, in which it is expected that there will be from twelve to fifteen bands participating, and probably 2,000 Orangemen from all parts of the province in attendance. Rev. B. H. Thomas, of Dorchester, Grand Master, will ride the white horse. After a short parade of the principal streets, a jubilee meeting will be held on the exhibition ground with speeches by the grand master, the Sen. deputy grand master, Hon. Robert Maxwell and other prominent members of the association.

Returning, the trains will leave for St. John about 6.30 p.m.

A REMARKABLE HAPPENING.

An elderly gentleman of rural appearance had hardly seated himself in the cross-town street car when a young lady who had followed him in approached him.

"Sir, did you lose a $5 bill?" she asked.

For a moment the farmer observed her with a surprised, curious look, then said convincingly, "Yes, ma'am, I did."

"Then here it is," said she, handing the bill to him. "I picked it up behind you from the car floor."

"Thank ye very much, young lady, for your honesty. This is a most remarkable happening!"

"Oh, I don't think so, sir! I believe every one should return the money in such a case as this. What is there so remarkable about it?"

"Why, I lost my $5 bill two years ago!"

DIED AT GREAT AGE OF 103

Michael Glynn Passed Away Saturday—Was on Fever-Stricken Ship.

Michael Glynn died on Saturday at the home of his son, 3 Dorchester street at the great age of 103 years.

Hale and hearty and more active than most men at the age of seventy, Mr. Glynn always took his daily exercise and till a few years ago went into the fields and did as much work as any farmer in the prime of life could do. A typical Irishman, he was humourous and witty. His pleasing disposition has been given as the cause of his long life.

Mr. Glynn was born in County Sligo, Ireland, in 1810 and came to this country when he was twenty-eight years of age. He is said to have been one of the few who escaped death, when the ship carrying Irish immigrants was visited with fever and many of the passengers died and were buried on Partridge Island along with Dr. Collins, who went as a volunteer from St. John to care for the stricken passengers.

Mr. Glynn settled in Barnesville, Kings county, where he followed the life of a farmer until eight years ago when he came to this city to live with his son.

Among the many interesting things that Mr. Glynn liked to talk about was the great inventions and discoveries made since he was young—when the telephone and electric lights were things unheard of, when the "horseless car" would be considered something wonderful and the electric bell a miracle.

Mr. Glynn is survived by his wife, two sons, John and William of this city and two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Beamish and Mrs. George Allan, also of this city.

KINGS COUNTY COURT

Hampton, July 5—The July sitting of the county court for Kings county opened on Tuesday before Judge Jonah and a petit jury. The adjourned case of Campbell vs. Pugsley was ordered set down for Thursday, then to be tried before Judge Borden, of Westmorland county.

In the case of Brown against Parks, a suit to recover the amount of a promissory note, judgment was given by default. Fowler & Freeze for plaintiff; defendant did not appear.

The case of Garson vs. Chapman, a suit for breach of contract, was adjourned to chambers. G. H. Adair for plaintiff; G. W. Fowler for defendant.

On Thursday Judge Borden heard the case of Walter B. Campbell against John A. Pugsley, a claim for damages sustained from an automobile driven by defendant. Fowler & Freeze appeared for plaintiff and W. B. Wallace and J. P. D. Lewin for defendant. The occurrence took place on the road between the Station and Hampton Village, the plaintiff claiming that defendant in passing frightened his horses and in trying to restrain was forced back against a house and injured, his wagon also being damaged. Defendant and his witnesses stated that he stopped his machine before reaching plaintiff's team; that Campbell jumped out and led his horses past, saying "All right; go ahead;" that a passenger got out and cranked the engine, and that in starting the horses shied away, causing whatever damage, if any, was done. The jury found the defendant guilty of negligence and the judge fixed the damages at $100. There is some talk of an appeal from the judgment given.

Concert at Great Salmon River.

Great Salmon River, July 4—One of the most pleasing and successful entertainments that the residents of this hamlet among the hills of St. John county ever had the privilege of attending, was given in the hall here on the evening of July 1.

The programme had been arranged by the teacher of the public school, S. E. Charlton, who with his pupils, thirteen in number, were assisted by several of the young people, whose valuable aid and kind suggestions did much to make the occasion such a success.

The programme was a lengthy one, occupying fully two houre. G. E. Charlton was chairman, Robert Gillcrist was stage manager. The opening chorus was: Canadians All Are We. Other songs were: Tenting Tonight On the Old Camp Ground, Somewhere, and Good Night Ladies. Miss Jessie Gillcrist did full justice as organist.

Perhaps the most pleasing feature was shown while the song Tenting Tonight On the Old Camp Ground was being sung. Two men, dressed in full military uniform were seen prostrate in front of their tent.

Tableaux—Why the Light Went out—Persons, R. Tait, Miss Lila Wilcox and William Chapman. His First Experience—Persons, Reuben H. Greer and Miss Ida A. Ells. Courting Under Difficulties—Persons. Miss Jessie Gillcrist, Robert Crossman, R. Tait and Miss Lilly Wilcox. Dialogues—Trials of a Teacher; The Precocious Speller; The Premature Proposal; and The Beer-Drinker's Courtship.

Special mention should be made of the solo: When You and I Were Young Maggie, sung by Robert Crossman assisted by Miss Violet Philips and Paul Gillcrist, which was encored. Also the solo: Sing Me To Sleep, Mother Dear, which was very well sung by Miss Violet Philips.

Both Robert and Martin Crossman are to be complimented on the able rendering of their parts in the dialogues, which have been given above.

The recitations and songs by the pupils of the school were considered excellent, and showed very careful training.

At the close of the programme, ice cream, cake, candy and fruit were sold. The proceeds will be expended on the school room and hall.

An improved pie pan has a blade fastened to the centre, which revolves around the bottom of the pan, beneath the pie crust when the end protruding from the side of the dish is moved.
