SPORTING MATTERS

CURLING.

THISTLES VS. MONCTON.

Tonight the Thistles will defend the McLellan cup against three rinks from the challenging Moncton club. The Moncton skips will be E. H. Allen, Geo. W. Maddison and W. W. Rippey. The leaders of the defending rinks will be D. R. Willet, J. Fred Shaw and James Mitchell. Moncton gave the local curlers one of the closest calls of the season last week, when the Thistles won out by two points. A great match is expected.

SACKVILLE DEFEATED.

SACKVILLE, March 8.—The Ramblers of Amherst defeated Sackville tonight in a well contested game of hockey, the score being 3 to 1. Sackville's forward line outclassed that of the visitors, but the defense was very weak, while that of Amherst was exceptionally strong, Corey putting up a great game in goal and long shot Currie being the mainstay of the Ramblers. Twaddle played his usual heady game. Norman, Phelan and Chase played a good game for the home team.

Fred Delahunt of Moncton refereed satisfactorily.

The line up:

Sackville.		Amherst.
Chase	Goal	Corey
Rainnie	Point	Andrews
Knapp	C. point	C. Currie
Stuart	R. wing	Simpson
Ayer	L. wing	Currie
Phelan	Centre	McLean
Norman	Rover	Twaddle

HOCKEY.

ST. MARK'S, 4; HIGH SCHOOL, 3.

In the Marathon Rink last evening the High School and St. Mark's teams met in a fast game of hockey. The game was close and fast. Referee Ralph Parker had his work cut out for him and officiated well. The St. Mark's septette won the game, scoring four goals against three made by the High School. The teams lined up as follows:

St. Mark's, 4.		High School, 3.
R. J. H. Smith	Goal	McAvity

MARYSVILLE WINS.

MARYSVILLE, March 8. — The Marysville Crescents tonight defeated the St. John Marathons five to one in one of the most uninteresting games of hockey ever seen here. The game throughout was slow and neither side made any brilliant plays. Owing to the late arrival of the St. John team the game did not start until nearly ten o'clock. In the first half the game was in Marysville's favor and ended 3 to 0 against St. John.

In this half Dennison of Marysville was the star player and scored two of the goals for his team. The goal keeper had very little to do and the game dragged.

The second half opened even slower than the first half had been. After ten minutes' play Marysville scored another goal, which brought the score up to 4 to 0. Five minutes afterwards Clawson of the St. John team shot a goal from the side. After this the game grew more exciting and the St. John men seemed to be encouraged. For a while they rushed things and just as it began to look as if they would score again Dennison rushed down the ice and placed the puck in the net for Marysville. The game ended soon after.

There was very little penalizing, although Wodworth of the Marathons was put off the ice twice for checking, and Inch of Marysville was sent to the boards once for slashing.

PARIS ELECTRICIANS STRIKE; THE CITY IS IN DARKNESS

Theatres Closed; Candles and Oil Lamps Used in Business Houses, While a Few Establishments Are Fortunately Supplied With Gas.

PARIS, Mar. 8.—A sudden, virtually unanimous and unexpected strike on the part of practically all the electricians of Paris at five o'clock this afternoon, resulted in the almost complete paralysis of the business of the city by the time night had fallen. The inconvenience was very great. A number of theatres had to forego their performances, several of the evening newspapers were unable to get out their editions and the great department stories were hurriedly emptied. The strikers demanded the fulfilment of the promises to improve their condition which they claim were made to them last July.

Many of the great department stores of Paris, especially those in the centre of the city, rely entirely upon electricity for lighting and heating.

These buildings are not piped for gas and when the electric lights went out no oil lamps were on hand, As a result candles had to be installed hurriedly in order to help the shoppers and the employes to leave the buildings.

The prefecture of police, the buildings of the various ministries and the public institutions also were without light and even the Elysee Palace was temporarily thrown into darkness. The senate and the chamber of deputies are provided with gas pipes and were therefore able to get light and go on with their business.

Almost all the theatres, including the opera and others of the subsidized houses, were compelled to put up announcements that there would be no performances and that the money would be refunded at the door. Only four of the minor variety halls were open. The Boulevards were practically in darkness, except for the glimmering of a few gas jets.

The strike resulted early this morning in a serious inundation in the tunnel of the Paris subway system, now in course of construction on the south side of the Seine. The reason for the inflow of water was that the electric pumps ceased working. There is over twelve feet of water for a long distance in the subway, and it is feared that the sides and the roof of the tunnel will fall in.

The men who were at work in the tunnel at the time of the inundation made their escape hurriedly and had to leave behind their tools and other property.

The Avenue De L'Opera and a small section of the Champs Elysees were illuminated by electricity, the men working in the plants supplying these districts returning to work early in the evening. The many cafes and restaurants presented weird pictures with flaring candles on all the small round tables.

It was impossible to get out the later editions of the afternoon newspapers and the offices of the morning papers were scenes of confusion. The type setting machines and printing presses are at a standstill. Only the Parisien will appear in its full size tomorrow morning, this because it possesses its own electric installation. The managers of all the other morning papers, while hoping against hope that the electric current soon will be restored, do not see their way to getting out other than two or four page papers, set up by hand and printed on improvised plants.

The reason for the strike by the electricians are as follows:

The company that supplies electricity was recently accorded concessions by the municipal council, and it now refuses to carry out certain resolutions passed by that body under which the electrical workers are granted an eight hour day and old age pensions. These stipulations are not written in the contract with the city, but it was understood that they would be granted.

The men are exasperated by what they characterize as bad faith on the part of the company.

The strikers number 1,300 highly skilled workmen, and it will be almost impossible to replace them. As a rule the men ceased work quickly, but in some instances they extinguished the fires of the central stations, which it will require forty-eight hours to get going again, and in a few cases they removed certain portions of the electrical apparatus, which it will require at least a week to replace.

The postal authorities report that the telephonic and telegraphic services have not been greatly disturbed by the strike, these services having their private electric plants.

The other boulevards of Paris that are without gas lamps are being patrolled tonight by policemen bearing torches.

The Metropolitan, the Parisian subway system, did not have to stop running its cars because of the strike.

PARIS, March 9—The strike of the electricians of Paris which commenced yesterday afternoon brought about remarkable scenes in the vicinity of the newspaper offices early this morning. In front of the building occupied by the only firm of steam printers who have presses large enough to take plates the size of a daily newspaper, there drove up this morning a number of trucks loaded with the plates and rolls of paper from the different morning papers, each of whom hoped to discover some means of bringing out even a small edition.

Not a single newspaper was obtainable in Paris until long after the regular hour for their appearance. The Figaro, the Petit Journal and the Petit Parisian finally succeeded in developing electricity and made their appearances at a late hour. Each of these newspapers printed papers for their rivals after their own editions had been run off.

The strike resulted early this morning in a serious inundation in the tunnel of Paris subway system now in course of construction on the south side of the Seine. The reason for the inflow of water was that the electric pumps ceased working. There is over twelve feet of water for a long distance in the subway and it is feared that the sides and roof of the tunnel will fall in.

J. Everett Watters' drug store on the West Side was broken into at an early hour this morning and a quantity of English money was stolen. The thief has not yet been captured.

The robbery was discovered by officer Gosline at 2.30 o'clock. He had just arrested a man for drunkenness and it seems as though the burglar had been awaiting his opportunity, for while officer was taking his prisoner to the lockup the theft was committed. Two pounds in gold and ten shillings, besides some other money was stolen. The entry was made by breaking the plate glass window in the door of the store.

GERMAN OFFICERS TO OPPOSE SOCIALISM

Have Instituted a System of Instruction For Men Under Their Command

BERLIN, March 8. — Enterprising officers of the 18th Army Corps whose headquarters are at "Frankfort-on-the-main," have instituted what has been called a "social-political instruction" for troops under their command, the avowed object being to combat the spread of Socialism. It is, however, stated that the War Office is not particularly pleased with the movement, the feeling being that it is not the Emperor's wish that the officers should embark upon a course of political pedagogy, and that his Majesty sees no reason why youths should during their term of service be initiated into the mysteries of the social reform legislation of Germany.

IMPRESSIONIST ART IS RECOGNIZED IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 8—The French law has been caused in artistic circles by the decision of M. Dujardin-Beaumetz, under secretary of state for fine arts, for the transfer of a painting by Edouard Manet, the impressionist artist from the Luxembourg to the Museum of the Louvre.

It is the first time that a picture of the impressionist school has been given admission to the Louvre. The principles of the impressionists, by the way, it may be said, have never been allowed by the sticklers for classic art. Some years ago if it had been proposed to place a painting by an impressionist in the Louvre there would have been a violent protest by the majority of French painters who are still faithful to the old traditions of art, Manet at the Louvre would have raised a storm in all the studios. Today scarcely a word is said about it. The picture is known as the Olympia and represents a nude woman reclining on a couch with a negress at her feet. It was for many years in the Salle Caillebotte at the Luxemburg Museum and was carried over to the Louvre to be hung in the gallery of modern French painters. Its transfer undoubtedly marks the official triumph of the impressionist method as an acknowledged school of art.

SOME DEEP MINES.

Writing for Science, Prof. F. W. McNair says that three shafts in the Lake Superior copper mining district go down 4,900, 5,000 and 5,200 feet, respectively. These are pretty nearly a mile deep. The writer says that so enormous is the weight of the overlying rock that a pillar 50 feet wide and having open space of 150 feet on either side would be crushed at a depth of 5,000 feet. Great care must be exercised therefore, in proportioning the supports to the open passages, or else mining would be impossible a mile below the surface. Another fact which puts a restriction on mining at great depths is the expense of hoisting out ore. Most of the work is done in the copper mines, not by vertical lifting, but by railways running up an incline. A third matter which must be taken into consideration is the temperature. As a person goes up in the free air from the surface of the earth, he finds that the mercury falls about one degree for every 300 feet. In like manner it rises about a degree for every 300 feet he goes down in a mine. The increase for a depth of a mile would be 16 or 17 degrees Fahrenheit. In winter this would not be serious, but in summer, with an outside temperature of 90 or 95 in the shade, the change would be near the limit of endurance. Without special ventilating devices, therefore, it would be impossible to work much more than a mile below the surface.

MAUDE WAS WILLING.

A strict housewife said to a new maid, "I forgot to tell you, Maude, that if you break anything I'll have to take it out of your wages."

But Maude, whom two days had heartily sickened of her berth, replied, with a merry laugh: "Do it, ma'am, do it. I've just broke the hundred dollar vase in the parlor, and if you can take that out of $4—I'm leaving at the end of the week—why, you'll be mighty clever."—Argonaut.
