LIFE AND DEATH.

This is the hut of being, the dim dawn,
The twilight of our day, the vestibule;
Life's theatre as yet is shut; and Death,
Strong Death, alone can heave the massy bar,
This gross impediment of clay remove
And make us, embryos of existence, free.
From real life but little more remote
Is he, not yet a candidate for light,
The future embryo, slumbering in his sire.
Embryos we must be till we burst the shell,
Yon ambient azure shell, and spring to life,
The life of gods, O transport! and of man.

IMMORTALITY.

Thy nature, Immortality! who knows?
And yet who knows it not? it is but life
In stronger thread of brighter color spun,
And spun forever; dipp'd by cruel Fate
In Stygian dye, how black, how brittle, here;
How short our correspondence with the Sun!
And while it lasts, inglorious! our best deeds
How wanting in their weight! our highest joys
Small cordials to support us in our pain,
And give us strength to suffer. But how great
To mingle interests, converse amities,
With all the sons of Reason, scatter'd wide
Through habitable space, wherever born,
Howe'er enslav'd! to live free citizens
Of universal Nature! to lay hold,
By more than feeble faith, on the Supreme!
To call Heaven's rich, unfathomable mines
(Mines which support archangels in their state)
Our own! to rise in science as in bliss,
Initiate in the secrets of the skies!
To read Creation; read its mighty plan
In the bare bosom of the Deity!
The plan and execution to collate!
To see, before each glance of piercing thought,
All cloud, all shadow, blown remote; and leave
No mystery—but that of Love Divine,
Which lets us on the seraph's flaming wing,
From Earth's academia, this field of blood,
Of inward anguish, and of outward ill,
From darkness and from dust, to such a scene!
Love's element! true joy's illustrious home!
From Earth's sad contrast (now deplored) more
What exquisite vicissitude of Fate! [fair!
Bless'd absolution of our blackest hour!
[Young.

NATURE TEACHING IMMORTALITY.

Nature, thy daughter, ever-changing birth
Of thee, the great immutable, to man
Speaks wisdom: is his oracle supreme;
And he who most consults her is most wise.
Look nature through, 'tis revolution all. [night
All change, no death. Day follows night, and
The dying day; stars rise, and set, and rise;
Earth takes th' example. See the summer gay,
With her green chaplet, and ambrosial flowers,
Droops into pallid autumn; winter gray,
Horrid with frost, and turbulent with storm,
Blows autumn and his golden fruits away,
Then melts into the spring; soft spring with breath
Favonian, from warm chambers of the south,
Recalls the first. All to resflourish fades,
As in a wheel all sinks to reascend;
Emblems of man, who passes, not expires.
With this minute distinction, emblems just,
Nature revolves, but man advances; both
Eternal, that a circle, this a line;
That gravitates, this soars. Th' aspiring soul,
Ardent and tremulous, like flame ascends,
Zeal and humility her wings, to heaven.
The world of matter, with its various forms,
All dies into new life. Life, born from death,
Rolls the vast mass, and shall forever roll.
No single atom, once in being lost,
With change of council charges the Most High.
Matter immortal, and shall spirit die?
Above the nobler shall the less noble rise?
Shall man alone, for whom all else revives,
No resurrection know? shall man alone,
Imperial man! be sown in barren ground,
Less privileged than grain on which he feeds?
Is man, in whom alone is power to prise
The bliss of being, or with previous pain
Deplore its period, by the spleen of fate,
Severely doomed, death's single unredeem'd? [Young.

THE SLEIGH-RIDE.

Hurrah for a ride to-day!
Hurrah for the jingling bells!
Be quick with the merry sleigh,
To ride o'er the hills and dells.
There is plenty of snow on the ground!
Then shout with a merry hurrah!
And let us go riding around,
And sing with a joyful hurrah!
Hurrah! hurrah!
And sing with a joyful hurrah!

Hurrah for a merry ride!
Old Sorrel shall try his speed,
While running along outside,
Old Chaser shall chase indeed;
And away o'er the hills and dells,
And away with a joyful hurrah!
We'll ride with the jingling bells,
And shout with a merry hurrah!
Hurrah! hurrah!
We'll shout with a merry hurrah!

Hurrah for a frosty ride!
Come, get on your mittens and furs;
Put Mary and James inside,
His little hand folded in hers.
There's room on the front seat for John,
And Robert by Ella's the law;
Come! get in your seat! we'll be gone,
And sing with a cheerful hurrah!
Hurrah! hurrah!
We'll sing with a cheerful hurrah!

Hurrah for the riders gay!
Hurrah for their joyous hearts!
The little ones laugh and play,
And shouts as the driver starts.
They're going to see Uncle John,
Who smiles when he hears their hurrah;
Though the days of his childhood are gone,
He loveth the children's hurrah!
Hurrah! hurrah!
The happy and cheerful hurrah!

VARIETY.

Fortune and the Dream.—A dream flitted past the cavern where Fortune was sleeping, and awoke her from her slumber.

"Whence comest thou?" asked the goddess.

"From a maiden," said her aerial visitor, "over whose pillow I have hovered all night. I wore the shape of a lover of rank and wealth, with horses equipages, and a train of liverie servants. I vanished. But the good child will think of me all day and be happy."

"My fate is not so happy a one as thine," replied Fortune. "'Twas but lately I visited a merchant, and made him prosperous and rich. While I remained with him he was contented, but yesterday I turned away my face from him and he hung himself. Why should those whom thou visitest feel thy disappearance less. Am not I, too, a dream?"

A Smile.—Winchell, the humourist, tells a story of a dog, which undertook to jump across a well in two jumps. There are great many people just like that dog—folks who think they can jump across a well in two jumps. They that undertake it usually "bring up" down in the water.

Very Charitable.—"Well, neighbour, what's the most Christian news this morning?" said a gentleman to his friend.

"I have just bought a barrel of flour for a poor woman."

"Just like you! Who is it that you have made happy by your charity this time?"

"My wife!"

Two boys, one of them blind of an eye, were discussing on the merits of their respective masters.

"How many hours do you get sleep? asked one.

"Eight," replied the other. "Eight! why, I only gets four." "Ah,' replied the first, "but recollect, you have only got one eye to close and I have two."

A Frenchman in Canada thus advertises his better half, who had left his bed and board:

Notice.—My wife that's Catrine—she left my house—shant ax me—any man truss him on my name that is loss for you.
