Your Whole Outfit

Should be faultless if you are to meet well-bred people at dinner or reception, and above all your linen should be snowy white and immaculate as that which caps the snow-clad Alps. There is no outward mark of gentility that tells the tale so plainly as irreproachable linen such as we send home in perfect condition and with a color and finish that only the artist can reach.

FINE RECEPTION IN MONTREAL

Altho it Was 2.30 a.m. When the Mounted Police Reached the Metropolis.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—The Northwest Mounted Police arrived in the city at 2.30 this morning. Despite the early hour, there was a large gathering of military and civilians to bid them bon voyage. On account of the men being informed that they would not reach Montreal until a late hour, the whole of them had retired, but when "God Save the Queen" was sung Lieut.-Col. Herchmer put in an appearance on the platform. He was greeted with cheers, and, after he had shaken hands with the officers, Lieut.-Col. Starke, in a few words, proposed the health of the contingent of the Northwest Police, and of Col. Herchmer, who was in charge. There was no doubt that they will do their duty as Britishers. [Cheers.] He then mentioned the name of Col. Greenwood, which was also received with ringing cheers. Col. Greenwood modestly replied that he would do his best, which evoked more cheers.

NO WORD YET TO GO.

Mounted Infantry Still Await Orders—Trooper Tobin Will Not Leave.

And still no word from Ottawa as to when the mounted infantry are to leave for Halifax. The men at the barracks are getting impatient at the delay and it will be good news to them when orders do arrive.

Trooper Tobin, on account of bad health, will not be permitted to go to South Africa and his place in the ranks will be taken by Trooper Ross, who lives in the vicinity of Kingston.

Quartermaster-Sergeant.

Sergt.-Major Sparks has received instructions to act as quartermaster-sergeant to the second Canadian contingent, and will leave Stanley Barracks this morning for Halifax.

A MEETING OF FENIANS.

Britain's Enemies Give Up Money to Help Boer Red Cross Fund.

Buffalo, Jan. 21.—Three thousand people crowded into the Lyceum Theatre to-night and as many more stood outside, vainly clamoring for admission, the occasion being a pro-Boer meeting. State Senator Mac. Kay presided, and strong pro-Boer speeches were made by ex-Congressman Shahan, Father Cronin, Rev. T. M. Meredith and others. About $1000 was raised for the Boer Red Cross Fund. Resolutions were adopted denouncing England, wishing the Boers godspeed, and calling upon President McKinley to intervene and stop the war.

Two Little Fires.

Petrolea, Ont., Jan. 21.—One fire brigade had two runs yesterday. The first was about 7 o'clock in the evening, to the east end, to an unoccupied frame building on the flats, formerly occupied by The Petrolea Advertiser. The other fire was on Princess-street, being a barn belonging to Mr. McLean. In both the loss is small. Cause of fire unknown.

BRITAIN'S NEW BATTLESHIP

The Montague Will Be the Most Powerful Fighting Monster in the World.

COST OVER A MILLION POUNDS.

This New Vessel Will Be the Model for All British Warships in Future.

London, Jan. 21.—The new battleship Montague, now in course of construction at Devonport dockyards, will be equipped with the most complete propelling machinery ever placed in a modern man-of-war. The engines will be the most powerful ever used in a battleship, developing an 18,000 indicated horse-power, or 3000 in excess of the engines of other ships of the bulwark type, they being the largest and most powerful in the service of Great Britain. The difference in the horse-power of the Montague's powerful engines will only give the ship an increased speed of one knot. The two sets of triple-expansion engines and 30 Belleville water tube boilers, will cost $750,000. The total cost of the new warship will be over $5,000,000, and its gun equipment will be so complete as to make it the most formidable war vessel afloat. It is the purpose of the Admiralty to construct the other proposed battleships of the navy on the same lines, as the Montague, and the completion of this ship will furnish a model for the English first-class battleships of the future.

Death of Mrs. Proctor.

Within a few days of reaching the advanced age of 80 years, there passed away on Friday evening, Mrs. Mary Proctor, one of the best known residents of King Township. With her husband, the late Mr. Isaac Proctor, deceased, had resided on a farm near Kettleby for many years, the same neighborhood having been the scene of her younger days. After retiring from active life Mr. and Mrs. Proctor first lived for a short period on Yonge-street, but afterwards took up residence with their son-in-law, Mr. W. A. Sanderson of Richmond Hill. Deceased's husband died about two years ago, but her health had been exceptionally good, and her bearing youthful, considering her years, until stricken with paralysis of the throat some three months ago. Only two children survive deceased, Mrs. George Wilson of Newmarket and Mrs. W. A. Sanderson of Richmond Hill. The funeral will take place to-day to Newmarket.

WHERE IS THIS MAN?

Victor Jannesson of Minneapolis Disappeared in a Mysterious Way in Montreal.

Montreal, Jan. 20.—Victor Jannesson of Minneapolis, who, with his wife, was a passenger by the C.P.R. from the west, yesterday, en route with a party of his countrymen to Worcester, Mass., has disappeared in this city in a mysterious manner, and the closest enquiries on the part of the police have failed to locate him. His wife carried most of the money, but the missing man had $20 and his ticket on him when he disappeared. His wife has gone to Worcester.

DOCTORS SCORE A TRIUMPH

Inside Membrane of Eggshells Used as a Substitute for Skin-Grafting.

RESULT WHOLLY SUCCESSFUL

The Arm, Shoulder and Collar-bone Are Cut Away, Patient Seems Sure to Live.

New York, Jan. 21.—With his left arm, left shoulder blade and left side of the collar bone cut away by the surgeon's knife, Edgar G. Garbutt of No. 204 Marcy-avenue, Brooklyn, left the Seney Hospital, yesterday morning, and it isn't much wonder that the doctors there, who say he will live many a year, are proud of their work.

Garbutt's troubles came about in the simplest way possible. A fall from a bicycle, a slight bruise, to which he paid no attention, and then—almost the whole of his left side, from the shoulder down, helpless as if it had been paralyzed. Every attention was given to the sick man, and all the skilled artifice of modern surgery was brought to bear upon the injured members.

Hens' Eggs Used.

In the end it was the inner covering of eggs, used in the place of human skin for grafting purposes, that brought about his recovery.

One day, two years ago, Garbutt fell from his bicycle. He landed on his left arm. When he went home and examined his arm he found it slightly abrased and discolored. He applied an ointment to it, and gave it no more heed.

Three weeks later he was attacked with acute pains in the spot where he had noticed the bruise, just above the elbow. At first he gave it electrical treatment. Then he went to the Post Graduate Hospital, and remained there for six weeks, with his arm encased in plaster of paris. There was no improvement. He consulted a surgeon connected with the Seney Hospital, and to that institution he went.

An operation was performed on the injured arm, but necrosis had set in, and a second operation was necessary. In this the entire arm was removed from the socket. But even yet the knife of the surgeon had not intercepted the disease, that was spreading itself gradually over the patient's entire left side.

A decisive step was then taken, which deprived Garbutt of his shoulder blade and part of his collar bone.

Volunteers Not Needed.

So far the work had been successful, but it was necessary to furnish new skin to the patient. His wife, nephew, and one of his employes offered skin from their own bodies to be grafted on Garbutt. But one of the surgeons had heard of the use in Europe of the membrane of the shell of eggs for such purposes, and, upon his suggestion, it was tried. The grafting proved a success.

There have been only five such operations, including the one on Garbutt, recorded in the medical world. Two of these were performed in Paris, one in Scotland and another in New York.

MISSION CONFERENCE CLOSED.

Sessions Held on Saturday and Sunday, When Many Phases Were Discussed.

The annual missionary conference of the Methodist church closed last night, with missionary sermons in some of the principal churches. The conference was very successful in both attendance and the excellence of its program.

The meetings on Saturday had an unusually large attendance. Dr. John Burwash opened the morning session with devotional exercises.

The main subject of all addresses on Saturday morning was "The Perpetuation of the Forward Movement." This was divided into "The Responsibility Resting Upon the Epworth Leagues," and "The Responsibility Resting on the Colleges." Under the first, Mr. G. E. Laroche of Napanee gave an address on "The Spirit and Method of Missionary Work in the Individual Leagues," and Miss S. L. Bowes of Hamilton, on "What the District E. L. Executive Should Do to Help the Forward Movement." Messrs. J. Simpson and R. J. McIntyre discussed the first address, and Thos. Bengough and C. R. Cascallen the second.

Under the second division, addresses were given by Rev. R. Emerson, on "The Selecting and Preparing of Student Missionary Campaigners," and by A. C. Farrell, on "The Securing and Training of Student Missionary Volunteers." These were discussed by F. L. Farewell, J. N. Clarry, W. G. Smith and A. Lonsley.

The addresses in the afternoon were very good and were ably discussed. The first one was by Rev. G. Agar, on "A Volunteer Movement For Home Missions." The others were: "Medical Missions," by H. C. Wrinch, M.D.; "Japan and Its Regeneration," by Miss M. L. Bollert; "Dawn on the Hills of T'Ang," by Mrs. F. C. Stephenson.

The services in the evening were held in Central Methodist Church, under the auspices of Toronto Methodist Young People's Union. Good addresses were given by Rev. G. H. Raley, Kitamaat; Dr. Avison, Corea, and by Rev. L. Massicotte of the French Methodist Mission, Montreal.

Services were continued yesterday morning in Victoria University. A consecration meeting was held in the morning, and in the afternoon addresses were given by Rev. T. E. E. Shore and Rev. L. Massicotte. Missionary sermons were also preached in the morning by Rev. Principal Caven at Sherbourne-street Church, Dr. Avison at Central Church, and Rev. Eber Crummy at the Metropolitan Church.

In the evening Dr. Avison and Rev. Alfred Brown spoke at Sherbourne street Church, Rev. L. Massicotte at Central Church, and Rev. E. Crummy and N. W. Rowell at the Metropolitan Church.

STEAMER SUTTON STRANDED.

British Vessel, Carrying Iron From Spain for Philadelphia—She Will Be Lost.

Lewes, Del., Jan. 21.—The steamer which the Fenwick Island life-saving station reported last night as stranded on Fenwick Island shoals, proves to be the British steamer Sutton, with a cargo of iron from Carthagena, Spain, for Philadelphia. The revenue cutter Onondaga responded to signals for assistance, and sent boats to the rescue of the crew of 24 men, who were brought to the breakwater. The Sutton is full of water and there is slight chances that she can be saved.

Services in Gerrard-Street Church.

Continuous services have been held in Gerrard-street Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Chambers, pastor, and will be continued this week. The services have been very successful, and a large addition to the membership is confidently expected.

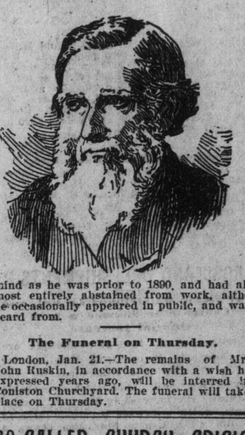
JOHN RUSKIN IS DEAD.

The Greatest Art Critic of His Time Passes Away at the Age of 81 Years.

London, Jan. 20.—John Ruskin died this afternoon of influenza, aged 81 years.

John Ruskin was born in London on Feb. 8, 1819, and was the son of John James Ruskin, wine merchant. He was educated privately, and then graduated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he secured the Newdigate prize in 1839. He was Bede Lecturer at Cambridge in 1867, Slade Professor of Fine Art, Oxford, 1870-79, 1882-84; Hon. D. C. L. Oxford, 1883; Hon. member of the Royal Society of Painters in Water Colors, 1873; also Fellow of the Geographical Society, Zoological Society and of any number of foreign academies. He was the author of Modern Painters, 1843-60; Seven Lamps of Architecture, 1849; Stones of Venice, 1851-53; Lectures on Architecture and Painting, 1854; Harbors of England, 1856; Elements of Drawing, 1857; Political Economy of Art, 1857; Two Paths, 1859; Unto This Last, 1860; Munera Pulveris, 1862-63; Sesame and Lilies, 1865; Ethics of the Dust, 1866; Crown of Wild Olive, 1866; Time and Tide, 1867; Queen of the Air, 1869; Lectures on Art, 1870; Fors Clavigera, 1871-84; Aratra Pentelici, 1872; Eagle's Nest, 1872; Ariadne Florentina, 1873; Val d'Arno, 1874; Mornings in Florence, 1875-77; Proserpina, 1875-80; Deucalion, 1875-83; St. Mark's Rest, 1877-84; Laws of Fesole, 1877-78; Bibles of Amiens, 1880-85; Art of England, 1883; Storm Cloud of the Nineteenth Century, 1884; Pleasures of England, 1884-85, and Praeterita, 1885-89. Of recent years Mr. Ruskin had not been as vigorous of mind as he was prior to 1890, and had almost entirely abstained from work, altho he occasionally appeared in public, and was heard from.



The Funeral on Thursday.

London, Jan. 21.—The remains of Mr. John Ruskin, in accordance with a wish he expressed years ago, will be interred in Coniston Churchyard. The funeral will take place on Thursday.

LONDON RAVAGED BY GRIP

The Nobility and the People are Attacked All Alike and Deaths are Daily Increasing.

DOES WORRY OF WAR CAUSE IT?

Disease Has Got a Foothold in the Queen's Household—Railway Almost Tied Up.

London, Jan. 20.—The ravages of the grip in London nowadays are worse than at any time since the original epidemic in 1891. The death rate last week was 37, as compared with a normal figure of 19.

The medical faculty is convinced that the extreme depression caused by the war conduces to aggravate this epidemic.

Undertakers are worked to death, the reserve of caskets is almost exhausted, and it is extremely difficult to get laborers to repair the deficiency.

Funerals are so numerous that the supply of black horses has run out and the undertakers are using dark bays, to the great disgust of the mourners.

Two peers—the Marquis of Lothian and Earl Manvers—died of the grip this week. Among those now ill with the grip are the Duchess of Devonshire, the Marchioness of Lansdowne, the Countess of Warwick, the Countess of Rosslyn, Earl and Countess Spencer and the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry.

The epidemic got foothold in the Queen's household at Osborne, but immediate isolation restricted it to the nine underservants originally attacked. The Duke of York got a slight attack at Sandringham, from which he is now recovering.

The House of Commons, always a centre for the grip, is being carefully fumigated thruout, with a view to the opening on Jan. 30, and the Clerk has been directed to arrange for a complete fumigation of the Chamber and all the members' rooms twice weekly until further notice.

On the Great Eastern Railway alone 93 station-masters, 200 conductors and 1070 porters have been laid aside by the epidemic, which also afflicts 32 per cent. of the prisoners and warders at Holloway Penitentiary.

A leading medical paper advises those who desire to escape the epidemic to "avoid all causes of depression, whether from overexertion, under-feeding, fear of the malady or inordinate apprehension of immediate or remote results of the war."

PATRIOTIC LAWYERS.

Hon. Mr. Justice Rose Speaks Enthusiastic Words to Students-at-Law.

In an address on "Legal Ethics," delivered recently to third year students at Osgoode Hall, the Hon. Mr. Justice Rose declared that at the same time a lawyer took the oath of office he took the oath of allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

Continuing, His Lordship said:

"It was only yesterday that from our ranks went forth noble and brave young men, with quick step, bounding pulse, and hearts filled with love for the Empire, placing at her command not only fulness of service but also the life-blood of their hearts, whose every throb is a prayer for Queen and country, and if they shall fall on the field of battle they shall not die but live—live in our hearts, live in memory, in the pages of history, in deeds which cannot die.

"We are proud of those who have gone, and, as to those who remain, I know there is but one heart, one mind, one love, and if—which may God forbid—the tide of war shall roll to our shores, it will be met by a solid wall of loyal hearts bound together by a strong tie of devotion to a united Empire, a wall against which the waves may dash, but shall dash in vain, and, broken, shall be thrown back into the sea to die with the sullen roar of final defeat, for 'God will save our Queen.'"

SO-CALLED CHURCH CRISIS

Ritualistic Deputation Waited On the Archbishop of Canterbury at Lambeth Palace.

WENT LOADED WITH PROTESTS,

But the Kind, Fatherly Demeanor of the Venerable Prelate Rather Disarmed Them.

New York, Jan. 21.—The London correspondent of The Evening Post says: "Yesterday marked another stage in what is still called the church crisis. A deputation, headed by the Duke of Newcastle, visited Lambeth Palace to present to the Archbishop of Canterbury the protest of 13,794 ritualist lay members of the church against the archbishop's ban upon the ceremonial use of incense and processional lights. The archbishop might have resented the somewhat blustering terms of the protest, but that is not how bishops are gradually smoothing down this ritualistic upheaval. Instead of angry threats he explained in kind, fatherly tones how he was guided entirely by the prayer book, and ridiculed the idea that he wanted to set up a sort of Anglican Papacy at Lambeth. Certain matters had been referred to him. He had heard them, and had given his opinion. That was all. He claimed no coercive jurisdiction. It was quite open to any bishop, who took a different view, to refuse to adopt, in his own diocese, the opinion of the archbishop. In moving words he prayed God that, old as he was, he might not live to see the church split in twain, and with deep feeling he counselled the memorialists to seek the peace of the church. The deputation, which had entered with so many truculent protests, left wondering whether they or the aged prelate had proved the victor.

JAUNDICE.

Burdock Blood Bitters permanently cures a Montreal man of this deadly disease after hospital treatment failed.

Most people are aware what a serious and death-dealing disease jaundice is.

There is a blockade of the liver and impairment of its functions, so that the bile, instead of passing out of the system, goes into the blood, permeates and poisons every part of the body.

There is a pronounced yellow tint to the skin, the bowels are constipated, the stools are almost white and putty-like, and there is excessive languor and listlessness.

Doctors generally have set jaundice down among the incurable diseases.

Burdock Blood Bitters, though, has cured many a case of severe and malignant disease after the doctors failed.

It permanently cured Mr. George Sullivan, 485 St. Dominique St., Montreal, Que., of jaundice after six weeks' treatment in the hospital had done him little good.

This is his statement:

Four years ago I was taken ill with jaundice and spent six weeks in the hospital, then I was discharged as relieved, but not cured.

My appetite was poor, my bowels constipated, and I felt miserable all the time.

I confided my troubles to a friend, who advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I bought a bottle and gave it a trial.

Before that bottle was finished I found great relief, and after I had taken three bottles I found myself a new man. All the symptoms of jaundice had left me. I could eat well, my bowels were regular and natural and I gained nine pounds in weight.

B.B.B. has proved a veritable Klondyke to me.—(Signed), GEORGE SULLIVAN.
