He was very reticent when asked regarding the small bit of ribbon that indicates that the wearer has received the D. S. O. "I just carried on," he evasively answered. For some months Major McCrimmon was extra-regimentally employed as divisional salvage officer, during which time he was mentioned in dispatches for his successful work in that capacity. He threw up his divisional appointment to get back to his battalior, however,

SUCCESSFUL ATTACK

Major McCrimmon of 18th
Battalion Tells of Fierce

Fight.

Additional details of the engagement in which Lieut. Joe Walters, a member of The Advertiser staff, met his ueath, were obtained from Major K. H. McCrimmon, D. S. O., of the 18th Battalion, who was in the city yesterday on the way to his home in Kincardine.

Speaking of the fighting that led up to the engagement in which Lieut. Walters was killed, he said: "The Germans had put on an exceedingly heavy counter-attack to take a strong position at Fresnoy, one of the villages on the engagement in which Lieut. Walters was killed.

Attack Successful.

"The counter-attack to take a strong position at Fresnoy, one of the villages on the light and the said and part of the attack fell on the 19th. The 20th Battalion (in which Lieut. Walters was a subaltern) was in reserve at the time, and was called on to make a counter-attack, and it was in that attack that, judging by the description given me by his father, I think, Lieut. Walters was a killed.

Attack Successful.

"The counter-attack was successful, and the Bosches were driven out of the trenches they had occupied, but the 20th lost quite a number of menaming them Walters, who died bravely leading his men. Horse Bolted.

Regarding the mishap which caused him to come back to Canada with his arm in a sling, he said that his horse had become terrified, as a result of being left standing for some time in a locality that was being shelled, and when additional shells fell near by, after he had mounted the horse, the animal ran away, and, reaching a cobblestone road, fell, with the result that he was now suffering from a compound fracture of the left arm.

Keeping Political "Pull" Out of Draft Exemptions

l'olitical influences in the working of the draft exemption boards in the United States is a peril various journals foresee with alarm, and in their support they have no less an authority than the president himself, who sounded a note of caution on this point in his proclamation announcing the rules and regulations governing the selection of men for service in the national war-army.

In a Washington dispatch to the Socialist New York Call, the charge is made that both Republicans and Democrats were wrangling for places on the exemption boards "in order that one party or the other may have an opportunity to punish their political foes by sending the sons to the trenches."

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for this week, July 14 number, the general rules governing the selection of men for the national war-army are given, and the note of warning that boards shall not be derelict in their duty, is heard from various sources

Among other articles of supreme importance in this number of the Digest are:

An Accurate Barometer of Financial Movement

Readers of THE LITERARY DIGEST will naturally be interested in knowing what are the movements that are going on in the financial world; how the industrial forces of the country are being marshaled and developed; what the great manufacturing enterprises are accomplishing; how the railroads and steamship lines are prospering; the condition of the crops, of banking, of real estate, and in fact of the whole vast fabric of related business undertakings that go to make up the wealth of the nation. For their benefit, and as a guide to the conservative investor, THE DIGEST publishes each week a resume of the statements of the leading financial publications of the country on these heads, presenting the results of this consensus of authorities without fear or favor for the use of the public. This department will keep you in accurate touch with financial and investment news at the cost of, only a few minutes' reading. Prove its worth for yourself today.

olved through matter, but may be ded at any requisite stage of ad-ncement. This is the theory held by pristian evolutionists and differs only Christian evolutionists and differs only in name from successive creations.

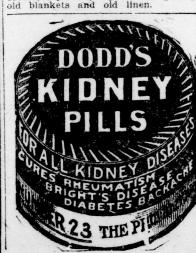

3. The theory of the spiritual monist asserts that there is only one thing in the world, i.e. God, or. as "Reader" buts it, "the universality of God," "we becoming Christs." In this case, any changes which occur in the universe the but transformations in the Deity. The essence or substance of the Deity remains unchanged. This is the docrine of Monistic Unitarians, New Chought people and others.

Just how spiritualism, which is a pronounced spiritual pluralism, can be narmonized with a spiritual monism in which everything existing is God, permarmonized with a spiritual monism in which everything existing is God, perhaps your correspondent, "Reader," may tell us. How one consciousness, though divine but composed of a countless multitude of others, can retain its own conscious entity, is a problem which philosophy has not so far solved.
